COMMUNITY BOOTHS

JOHN H. CARTER, Superintendent.

1. Exhibits open to Garrett and adjoining counties.
2. The building and arrangement of booths at the Fair must be done by bona fide residents of the community making the exhibits.
3. The community exhibits will be judged as a whole; products exhibited in a booth cannot compete for general exhibit purposes.
4. The size of the booths must be twelve feet long by ten feet deep.
5. All booths must be completed by 12:00 o'clock noon, October 1.
6. All entries must be in place not later than October 1.

RULES AND SUGGESTIONS

1. The exhibits in the booths should include only farm and garden products, either in the original state or preserved. These may include: (1) corn; (2) small grain; (3) hay and forage crops; (4) fruits; (5) potatoes; (6) other vegetables; (7) dairy and meat products, eggs; (8) home canned and preserved goods, bread and cake; (9) bee products; (10) wool, maple products, etc.
2. In order that all products in competitive booth exhibits may be judged on the same basis, each individual exhibit within the booth must be of the same quality as required for the general exhibit. For example: An exhibit of corn should consist of ten ears; of grain or potatoes, one peck; of apples, a plate of five specimens. Products displayed in any other quantity will be regarded only as part of the decorations.
3. The booth will be judged on the following basis:

|---|---|
| Quality | 50 per cent |
| Completeness | 20 per cent |
| Arrangement | 25 per cent |
| Record for the year | 5 per cent |
| Total | 100 per cent |

Quality—This includes uniformity, trueness to type, maturity and market condition, freedom from insect diseases and mechanical injuries and general appearance of individual products. Flavor, texture and aroma are considered in such products as butter, cheese, honey, pickles, preserves, jellies, ham, bacon, hay and other products.

Completeness—The kinds of farm, garden, orchard and household products shown should represent the economic and agricultural activities of the community. Neither the number of kinds of products nor the number of varieties of particular species of products will compensate for poor quality.

A booth will be considered complete in proportion as it has representative exhibits in each of the following groups: (1) corn; (2) small grains; (3) hay and forage crops; (4) fruits; (5) potatoes; (6) other vegetables; (7) dairy and meat products and eggs; (8) home canned and preserved goods, bread and cake; (9) bee products; (10) wool.

Arrangement—This relates to the artistic grouping of products displayed. As far as possible, similar products should be grouped together, i. e., fruits should be in one place, grains in another, canned goods in another, and so on. Exhibits should be so arranged that all products are easily accessible for judging.

Decorations should not predominate, but should blend with the various commodities exhibited in order that the entire display may present an artistic effect.

The name of the community should be attractively displayed.

PREMIUMS

|---|---|
| First prize | $40.00 |
| Second prize | 30.00 |
| Third prize | 20.00 |

MT LAKE PARK.

It is interesting to note the more or less optimistic attitude of our citizens relative to the future of the Park. For many years there has been a feeling that it would be useless to attempt to stage a "comeback" of this resort. We were not alone in that view, as similar resorts all over the country suffered a slump in patronage. This was due both to economic conditions and to the changing times. Formerly those desiring to spend a vacation rented cottages and prepared to spend the heated months in the place selected for that purpose. Now it is different. Desire for change of environment coupled with an increasing spirit of restlessness on the part of vacationists prompts them to spend a day or so at this resort and a few days at another. This is easily accomplished by the use of the automobile.

Up until now we have been depending upon the old method to attract summer visitors, promising little save a desirable climate, pure air and water. This is not enough. Other communities and other states are advertising to the tourist world the scenic beauty of their several localities. In the latter respect we are on a par with all and hold a distinct advantage over most of the surrounding states. Western Maryland is in a class by itself and it only remains for us to develop what nature has bestowed upon us to lead the eastern section of our country as a mecca for vacationists.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

Your attention is respectfully called to the following quotation from the Weekly Infectious Animal Disease Bulletin issued September 1, 1929.

"Hog cholera outbreaks of greater intensity continue to be reported. The Eastern Iowa Veterinary Association. The extreme virulency and rapid spread from farm to farm at this early season causes concern as a widespread epizootic may be expected."

This condition means that a great deal of infected pork is sure to enter the channels of trade and unless care is used bones, rinds and scraps of such pork will reach the hogs in Maryland via, the swill pail. A repetition of last year's condition might be looked for under such circumstances.

A grain mixture for cows on good pasture as a rule need not have as high a percentage of protein as the winter ration. The two following grain mixtures for supplementing pasture, without other roughage, are recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: Ground oats, 100 pounds, wheat bran, 100 pounds, and corn meal, 50 pounds; or wheat bran, 100 pounds, corn meal, 100 pounds, and cotton seed meal, 25 pounds.

There are five basic factors which have a material bearing on whether you produce a profitable wheat crop in 1930.

They are:

1. Preparation of seed bed for wheat.
2. Selection of variety and seed to be sown.
3. Selection and application of fertilizer.
4. Weather condition during growing season.
5. Market condition at time of selling your crop.

The first three of these factors, producers have under their control. It is accepted among all good farmers that one of the most important factors in producing any crop is the preparation of seed bed. A few hours spent in preparing a good seed bed means bushels of grain at harvest time.

Selection of seed is important. If your seed is not free from disease and forage matter you cannot expect to harvest a full crop at harvest time.

Citizens and the [illegible] to use most economically requires a knowledge of the treatment of the soil on which it is to be used for the past two years.

If the first three factors are given due consideration it will have very much to do in solving the other two.

ZIHLMAN IS DISCUSSED FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

Republicans Ponder Over Chances of Western Maryland Congressman in The Race

Political discussion concerning the Gubernatorial nominees in November, 1930, in the Republican ranks has turned to the name of Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Western Maryland, it was learned yesterday.

Gossip over the Democratic nomine, which was aroused last month by the indorsement of David G. McIntosh, Jr., President of the State Senate, by the Baltimore county organization, has simmered down and attention shifted to the Republicans temporarily.

Although Mr. Zihlman admitted that a "number of persons have spoken to me about running," he asserted that there was no organized movement in his behalf to obtain the nomination.

Too Early For Decision

"It is too early to decided whether I will go after the nomination," Mr. Zihlman asserted.

The Western Marylander, who represents the Sixth Congressional district, long has been a prominent figure in State politics. He became a State Senator in 1910 and continued in that office until 1917 to take his seat in the Sixty-fifth Congress. He has been re-elected every two years since that

With Mr. Zihlman known to be in a receptive mood for the nomination, it was contended by political observers that his political backing in Western Maryland will not allow consideration of his name to be put aside lightly.

Republican leaders in the State said Mr. Zihlman was popular in the party and that there had been "some talk" of Mr. Zihlman, along with the names of Mayor Broening and Albert G.

Check On Broening

The mention of Mr. Zihlman was taken in some quarters to mean that the informal candidacy of Mayor Broening was not particularly satisfactory to a number of Western Maryland counties. While the Mayor has been taking steps to make himself known outside of Baltimore City, it was held that the Republican organization leaders were openminded and that the nomination of an influential and prominent Republican thus far inactive was a possibility.

In Democratic circles the informal candidacy of Senator McIntosh has lost considerable interest, it is said. Governor Ritchie has indicated he will not be hurried in making any decision for the fourth term and other Democratic leaders have been content to sit by and wait developments.

While it is generally conceded that Governor Ritchie desires another term, he does not intend to commit himself thirteen months before the election, it is understood.

Two Wrecks Occur Friday, the Thirteenth

Two automobile wrecks occurred on Friday, the thirteenth, one near Oakland and the other near Crellin.

Jake Smith, of Terra Alta, had his car cut off and received a number of cuts and bruises when the Chrysler roadster in which he was riding jammed into the end of the bridge across Youghiogheny River near Crellin. The car was owned and was being operated by Mr. Wolfe, a merchant at Terra Alta. He and the third occupant of the car, Dr. Harris, also of Terra Alta, were badly shaken up but were not seriously injured.

The car was badly wrecked.

The Studebaker sedan, owned by Brady Brothers, street contractors, overturned at the intersection of the Thomas-Mt. Lake highway, about a half mile east of town when the driver failed to negotiate the turn into the Thomas road. The car was badly damaged but the occupants were not injured.

SERIOUS BLAZE AVERTED SATURDAY ON R. R. ST

Local Firemen Extinguish Incipient Fire In Naylor Building

Fire of undetermined origin in the basement of a building in the rear of Naylor & Co.'s store, facing on Railroad street, was extinguished by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department about eight o'clock Saturday morning before much damage had been caused. The fire was discovered by George Yutzy, who detected the existence of the fire when he went to the Dixon warehouse, adjoining the Naylor property, and who at once turned in the alarm.

"Had the [illegible]ze been given fifteen more minutes before its discovery, Oakland would have had to combat one of the worst fires in its history," Fire Chief George Kerins said. "The fire would have involved the main building of the Naylor firm, Dixon's warehouse, the Frantz Hotel and a number of other frame structures in close proximity, and would have been extremely hard to combat. It is fortunate that it was discovered at the moment it was."

It is supposed that the fire was caused by a lighted cigaret which had been dropped by someone along the boardwalk of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company and which the wind had carried beneath the building.

Second Person Waives Hearing In Alleged Assault Case

Enoch Plunket, who is being held in the County Jail on a warrant issued in connection with an alleged assault on a fifteen-year old girl, Ethel Rosenberger, near Johnson's, Garrett county, on June 30, was given a preliminary hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder yesterday afternoon. Plunket waived a hearing, however, and was returned to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury at the [illegible] Term of the Circuit Court.

Brought to Oakland by Sheriff Casteel.

Bernard Preston, of Frostburg, is being held in the local prison for his participation in the alleged crime. He was arrested shortly after information had been lodged against him.

Two Inch Thickness of Amiesite Being Laid on Second Street.

Decision to make the amiesite covering on Second street two inches instead of one and one-half inches, was arrived at at a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council held Monday in the City Hall.

This additional thickness of the material to be used was made necessary owing to the heavy traffic expected on this street. The staying qualities of the amiesite to withstand the expected additional heavy traffic is guaranteed by the manufacturers it was stated.

Completion of the entire job within ten days, weather permitting, is promised by Brady Brothers, contractors. At present there are one block on each of Third and Oak streets, two blocks on Second street and all of the paved portion of Liberty and Green streets yet to be completed. Cold, wet conditions of the weather has delayed the work.

Maryland University Has Large Enrollment

With a record enrollment of Freshmen at the University of Maryland, plans for the expansion of the school to care for the annual increase in attendance are under way, President Raymond A. Pearson said yesterday.

Approximately 750 students applied for enrollment, and 450 Freshmen will start their studies on Friday, making up the largest first year class in the history of the school.

Dr. Pearson said that the total enrollment in all schools of the University of College Park and Baltimore, would be between 2,700 and 2,800 students.

Herbert C. Leighton Will Retain Postmastership at Park

Mr. Herbert C. Leighton, postmaster of the Mt. [illegible] Park postoffice, who resigned his position several weeks ago, has withdrawn his resignation, it has been learned and will continue to serve the public until the expiration of his term in April, 1934.

There were 14 applicants for the position, examinations for which were to have been held in Oakland, in the near future. A vacancy still exists, however, at Barton, it was stated, and a competitive examination will be held to fill this position.

Larceny Case Dismissed Against Two Girls

The charge of larceny brought by David R. Deming, Swanton, [illegible] years old, against Nina [illegible]s, Frostburg, and Ruth Elder, 17, Lonaconing, was dismissed by W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, after a hearing of the case yesterday afternoon.

Deming claimed to have had $170 stolen from him Saturday afternoon, and charged the girls with the theft. During the hearing it developed that the two girls had gone to a dance with two boys, Friday, who afterwards took them to Deming's house, where they remained for the night. They denied having stolen any money but stated that Deming had given [illegible] to replace those torn the night before. Deming denied having given them any money.

Testamony from all witnesses was contradictory, it was said.

Maryland 1930 License Plates To Be Green and White

Automobile license tags in Maryland for 1930 will have a green background with white figures and letters, E. Austin Baughman, state commissioner of motor vehicles announced Saturday.

The plates are being manufactured in the shops of the Maryland penitentiary it was explained at the commissioner's office, and an order for 350,000 was expected to take care of the increase in the number of cars for the year.

Governor Ritchie will get the tag numbered 20,000 as usual but the commissioner said that experience of past years when requests for assignment of special numbers had caused additional work for the clerical force and occasional confusion in the records, had led to a decision not to honor such requests this year.

COMMENDS FAIR MANAGER FOR ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Rev. C. A. Shilke Tells Why Thirteenth Annual Fair Should Be Supported by Everyone

"Garrett County can well congratulate the Fair Association and Henry M. Speicher, manager, for the unusually attractive program announced in The Republican and in the premium catalogue for the Thirteenth Annual Fair, October 1, 2, 3 and 4," Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church of Oakland, stated yesterday when asked about the prospects for a successful exhibition the first of the coming month.

"Nothing has been spared by Mr. Speicher to make the fair the best in its history and it has required much effort and money to present such an attractive program," he said.

Aside from the regular published premium list, which has a wider scope and is more generous than ever, the business men and business interests of Oakland are offering many additional and attractive premiums, a full list of which appeared in the last two issues of The Republican.

"The Garrett County Agricultural Fair is a real challenge to the people, a challenge to the entire county for its full support and success. Garrett county depends upon the pursuit of agriculture more than upon any other industry for her financial stability. Therefore, the agricultural fair which is a beneficial and educational institution, commands the hearty support of every citizen.

"Its success depends largely upon the cooperation of the people. The fair depends upon the farmers to bring their select stock and farm products for exhibition where they can be [illegible]ted and judged side by side; it depends also on the housewives to [illegible] their arts in canning, preserving and needle work; it depends on the [illegible]ools to depict the progress in ed[illegible] it depends on those who complete projects for better home facilities and health conditions, and many others.

"The success of the fair also depends upon the cooperation of the business interests, not only of Oakland but the entire county. It depends upon the attendance of people to the Fair, where they can receive the educational opportunities which are offered there, and enjoy the attractions which the fair has to offer. The larger the patronage this year, the better will be the fair next year.

"We have every right to be boosters for the fair and show our interest by buying season tickets, and commending the fair to our friends. Attend both day and night programs; enjoy the new attractions and help put Garrett county's fair on a par with other county fairs in the State and surrounding country."

Friday, The Thirteenth, Cuts Down on Marriages

Only four marriage licenses were issued from the offices of E. Z. Tower, clerk of the Circuit court last Friday, a great "come-down" from the usual eight or ten.

Last Friday, however, was Friday, the thirteenth.

Not anybody around here is superstitious or anything like that, but it is a very good day for that, though a few brave the superstition that dates back to Norse mythology.

The explanation as to Friday being a bad day, according to Dr. John Harrington Cox, instructor in Old English and Anglo-Saxon at the University of West Virginia, Morgantown, W. Va., is that the Norsemen named the seven days after their seven gods. Only one of these was a goddess, Freya, for whom Friday or Freya's Day, was named.

Freya, being female, was therefore fickle, and it was [illegible]ed bad medicine to start anywhere on the day of her reign. That, combined with thirteen, a mysterious number that could not be divided by anything but itself, made a combination that has extended its black sway into the present.

Couples who had no superstitions at all when it came to tieing the knot were Herbert Mitchell and Wilma Wilson, of Pullman, W. Va.; Raymond T. Abel and Ethel Rankin, of Fairchance, Pa.; and John Kost and Wilma Strawser, New Kensington, Pa. One other couple requested that their names not be published, which may or may not be [illegible] with us.

ALLEGANY COUNTY YOUTH WINS

Garrett County Entry Defeated by Man from Wicomico

Fred. Hamilton, Cumberland youth, won the State championship in the horseshoe pitching contest staged by the Sunpapers in Baltimore and the Playground League of Baltimore, last Friday and Saturday. He defeated Melvin Renn, Howard county champion in the finals.

Hamilton won the first and third games by the scores of 51-6 and 50-43. Renn won the second game, 50 to 45. The victor received a pair of gold horseshoes as prize for winning the State title.

Paul Welch, Garrett county winner, was defeated in the eliminations on Friday by the champion of Wicomico county. He was beaten two straight games by close scores.

More than 2,000 horseshoe pitchers from the 25 counties in Maryland took part in the State-wide tournament. Hamilton, the Allegany county champ, is president of a horseshoe club in his section of Cumberland and has won several local tournaments in that section. He is 19 years old and attended Penn Avenue High School last year where he starred on the basketball court.

COURT MAY ORDER SALE OF KENDALL LUMBER CO.

Interests of Concern In West Va. May be Sold to Satisfy Creditors

Action is expected to be taken in the Preston county (West Va.) Circuit court today on a motion for an order of sale of the Kendall Lumber Company properties in Monongalia and Preston counties, to satisfy certain judgements awarded plaintiffs against the company in suits in that court.

The report of Charles P. Wilhelm, special commissioner, was presented to Judge A. G. Hughes at a special [illegible] Tuesday and certain exceptions thereto were filed. It was announced by Judge Hughes that further consideration of the case would be postponed until this morning, with the possibility of a decree of sale.

The property involved includes large timber holdings in the two counties, in the Cheat mountain section. It has been estimated that the property is worth approximately a half million dollars, with heavy mortgage liens against it as well as claims of individuals who have procured judgments.

The Kendall Lumber Company operated at Crellin for more than twenty years where [illegible]mber hauled into the mills from Preston county was manufactured and shipped by rail. The concern disposed of all its holdings at Crellin and in that section of the county to the Stanley Coal Company several years ago.

Judge Frank Cox, of Morgantown, represents Clayton and Brown, Philadelphia, holders of two first mortgages against the company totalling more than $50,000, while Pittsburgh concerns hold bonds of the company aggregating $100,000 given to secure a loan of $220,000.

Of Union Evening Service

Oakland School Enrollment Increased by Forty-one

Forty-one more students have entered Oakland schools during the past week, bringing the total enrollment in Oakland High school Oakland Grammar school, and St. Peter's Parochial, to 690.

Oakland High school showed an increase of 21 pupils and now has 333 pupils enrolled. Oakland Grammar school showed an increase of 16 and now has enrolled 285. St. Peter's has 72 enrolled, an increase of 4 over last week.

An additional number are expected to enter the halls of learning during the latter part of this week and the first of next. Miss Katharine Conley, principal of Oakland High school, stated.

COUNTY SCHOOL TEACHERS INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP

Terra Alta Youth Also Very Seriously Hurt When Car Overturns Near Morgantown

Bulletin!

William Miller died at 9 o'clock this morning in the City Hospital, Morgantown, from injuries sustained in an automobile accident which occurred on Monday evening on the Morgantown-Kingwood highway. He received a compound fracture of the skull and an operation was performed early Tuesday to remove some of the pressure on the brain caused by the fracture, in an effort to save his life.

One man is in the City Hospital, Morgantown, W. Va., in a critical condition, while three companions, two of whom are Garrett county school teachers, are also in the hospital painfully but it is believed not seriously hurt as the result of an automobile accident which occurred at ten o'clock Monday night on the Morgantown-Kingwood highway at a point locally known as Pioneer Rocks, near Dellslow, a few miles east of Morgantown, when the Ford coach in which the four were riding left the highway and crashed into a telephone pole.

Others Painfully Hurt

M. H. Campbell, of Charlottesville, Va., driver of the car, sustained cuts about his head and face; Miss Marian L. Bloss, of Oakland, the owner of the car, suffered a serious injury to her right shoulder and deep lacerations of her head and face. Mrs. Rebecca Simons, of Cumberland, the fourth member of the party, is suffering from deep cuts in her right arm.

H. N. Rexroad, State policeman, who was summoned to the scene of the accident from Morgantown, said that it was apparent that the car was traveling at a speed which made it impossible to negotiate the sharp curve in the highway at Pioneer Rocks. The party was going toward Morgantown when the accident occurred.

Miss Bloss is teacher at Cherry Creek school, located six miles south of Oakland, and Mrs. Simons teaches at the Bethlehem school, south of Deer Park.

The car, which was recently purchased at the Ford agency in Oakland by Miss Bloss, was badly wrecked.

Scouts To Install Officers Tomorrow Evening

Installation of officers and patrol leaders of Oakland Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will be held tomorrow evening in the City Hall, Mr. Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the Troop committee, will be in charge. The new officers and other scouts will be told what is expected of them this year by a member of the troop committee, and then officially given their positions for the term.

Preparation for the Scout exhibition at the Fair are being made by Bernard Gonder, Jr., who is in charge. Space for the exhibit has been granted by Henry Speicher, Fair manager.

Carroll Casteel completed his preliminary tests at the meeting last Friday, and was enrolled as a Tenderfoot scout. This brings the troop's total enrollment to 46.

Fined on Drunk Charge

Clyde Mayle, of Deer Park, was fined $20 and costs by Justice W. A. Gonder this morning after he had been found guilty of being drunk and disorderly.

Mayor Charles A. Ashby of Deer Park, supported by the better element of the town are determined to break up rowdyism and bootlegging, even if "the town has to be depopulated," as expressed by Mr. Ashby this morning. The arrest of Mayle is one of a number that has been made by Mr. Ashby in recent weeks.

Corn Crop Small

The Mount Airy Canning Company will close its plant at Loch Lynn tomorrow, according to J. Howard Reinhardt, manager. The plant has been operating the past few weeks canning corn. The crop this year is said to be smaller than that of last year.

Lesson for September 22

MALACHI FORETELLS A NEW DAY

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me.

LESSON TEXT—Malachi 3:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparing the Way of the Lord.

The subject of today's lesson is broader than the printed text. In order to teach this lesson effectively the entire book should be surveyed. The prophet pointed out the sins of a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, and failure to pay tithes.

I. The Base Ingratitude of Israel (1:1-5).

God approached them with the tender affirmation, "I have loved you." It was the burden of the prophet to declare this fact unto them (v. 1). So worldly were the people that they failed to discern God's good hand upon them. Israel's attitude toward God is shown in the skeptical question, "Wherein hast thou loved us" (v. 2)? Malachi answers this question by showing God's choice of Jacob and his passing by of Esau, his destruction of Edom and his saving of Israel.

II. God's Severe Indictment (1:6-2:17; 3:7-15).

1. Against the priests (1:6-2:9).

They were guilty of:

(1) Profanity (1:6). Their profanity consisted in despising the name of God. To fail to honor God is to be profane. To use His name in any unreal way is to be thus guilty.

(2) Sacrilege (1:7, 8).

Their sacrileges act was in offering polluted bread and blemished sacrifices. To bring such offerings to an earthly ruler would be a gross insult.

(3) Greed (1:10).

They were not willing to open the doors of God's house without pay.

(4) Weariness (1:12, 13). Because of the absence of love, the routine of priestly duties became irksome. God threatened them with severe punishment unless they would take His rebukes to heart.

(5) Not teaching the law to the people (2:1-9). Those set apart to teach God's law to the people have a great responsibility and God will most assuredly demand an accounting.

2. Against the people (2:10-17; 3:7-15).

(1) For ungodly marriages (2:11, 12). God's purpose in the prohibition of mixed marriages was that He might raise up a holy seed (v. 15). The marriage of the believer with the unbeliever today brings confusion into the fold of God and turns aside His purpose.

(2) For divorce (2:13-16). Divorce in Israel was the source of great sorrow—even the tears of the wronged women covering the altar (v. 13).

(3) Public wrongs (3:5, 6).

a. Sorcery—magic arts. This includes the practice of occult sciences.

b. Adultery. This is a sin of wider extent than to the parties directly concerned. It is a canker which gnaws at the very heart of society. Unfaithfulness to the marriage relation should be regarded as a public sin.

c. False swearing.

d. Oppression of the hireling, widow and fatherless.

e. Turning aside the stranger from his rights.

(4) Withholding tithes (3:7-12). Failure to pay tithes is robbery of God. His claim upon Israel was the tenth, plus free-will offerings. Our responsibility is to give as God prospers us (I Cor. 16:1).

(5) Blasphemy (3:13-15). They openly spoke against God, saying that it was profitless to serve Him.

III. The Awful Judgment Which Shall Befall the Nation (3:1-5; 4:1-6).

1. By whom executed (v. 1).

It is to be done by the Lord. All judgment has been committed unto the Son of God (Jno. 5:22, 30, cf. Acts 17:30, 31). When Christ comes in power and glory to render judgment, He will distinguish between the righteous and the wicked, rewarding them according to their deeds.

2. The time of (3:2-4:1).

It will be at the second coming of Christ. John the Baptist was the forerunner of His first coming. Elijah will be the forerunner of His second coming.

3. The result (3:3, 4, 16-18; 4:1, 2).

For the righteous it will be a day of healing and salvation; for the wicked a day of burning and destruction.

More Sorrow, More Joy

The more sorrow the more joy. If we have loads of sorrow, then the Lord's power will turn them into tons of joy. Then the bitterer the trouble the sweeter the pleasures; the swinging of the pendulum far to the left will cause it to go all the farther to the right. The remembrance of the grief shall heighten the flavor to the delight: and the brilliance of the diamond shall be the more clearly seen because of the black foil behind it.—Spurgeon

THE PASSING SHOW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer.)

Preparations are going forward to make it possible for Governor Ritchie to make his talked-of trip around the world, the start to be as soon after the second Wednesday in January, 1931, as convenient. Those who are cooperating in the Governor's tentative plan are doing what they can to release him from his present office so that he may take an indefinite vacation.

In the last few days there has been a good bit of laughing about that round-the-world trip. It had been kept pretty well under cover until Harrison Rider let it out when pressed by a reporter. He said that before accepting the appointment as State Commissioner of Insurance he had been told by State Senator Dan Chambers that the Governor would not run for a fourth term but intended to take a trip around the world.

When asked about it the Governor gave the impression that the trip around the world was a new thing to him but I hear that it wasn't so new as the Governor professed it to be. In fact, I hear that there are Senators other than Chambers who were told about it by the Governor, so Rider was well within the limit when he told of the assurance he had been given of the proposed post regal expedition.

Of course, the friends of His Majesty can make a good explanation now that the Zeppelin has completed its globe girding flight, as the journalists call it. Only twenty one days are required to make the trip in the Zeppelin and that is not as long as a Democratic convention sometimes sits when the Tammany cohorts are in the ascendancy.

Thus a Governor might take a trip around the world and not have to be away from Annapolis very long either. And there's not much going on at Annapolis anyway when the Legislature is not in session.

Ritchie Men Raising Ingratitude Cry

The last-ditch Ritchie people are doing a lot of talking as an offset to the break made by the Baltimore County organization Democrats in indorsing State Senator McIntosh as the Ritchie successor. One song they sing is that Ritchie is getting stronger every day. Another is that no one can be found to enter a primary election fight against him. But the latest is that all those Ritchie appointees who are not in favor of keeping the present Governor in office indefinitely are traitors and ingrates.

But the shortest and most effective reply I have heard to this particular plaint, is that a man must go into court with clean hands and that of all men in Maryland politics today Ritchie should be the last to complain of ingratitude. From the beginning of his political career his ingratitude has been coupled with his inordinate selfishness and this all who are acquainted with him very well know. He gives little cakes to others in the hope they will help him to keep the big cake for life.

Governor Made Effort To Silence Rider

A report is going around that a day or two before the meeting of Baltimore County Republicans at the Rider home to indorse McIntosh the Governor sent for Mr. Rider and urged him to stop the movement. Mr. Rider, I am told, explained that he was not the whole show in Baltimore County, that the meeting had been arranged and that he saw no reason for trying to stop it.

Of course, it is the Ritchie game to try to tie, hand and foot, every man he appoints to office and it is through his appointing power that he has built up a State machine. Yet such machines do not always last. For instance, there was the late Governor Crothers. He had the second term idea in his head the biggest way and to further his plan he named a number of county political bosses to important State offices. But when he announced himself a candidate for a second term he found they would not support him but lined up with Gorman, the machine candidate, or Lee, the anti-machine candidate. So he quickly withdrew.

Crothers did not have the patronage at his command that Ritchie has had nor did he have in his hands the expenditure of practically every dollar of the State income through a one-man budget. Had Crothers had this money power he could have done more although it is doubtful that he could have renominated himself as Ritchie has done twice.

Ritchie Defeat Is Now In The Air

Although Democratic politics is still far from an organized state the one thing that appears certain is that Ritchie will not be reelected. This thing is in the air and in every part of Maryland. It is to be a Democratic nominee other than Ritchie, or a Republican Governor. The last ditch Ritchie people may yell and swear but they cannot change the handwriting on the political wall. It is plainly there. There are sufficient Democrats in audible rebellion against the Ritchie dictatorship to beat him by joining with the Republicans in the general election.

The fact is slowly sinking in and as a result some of the Ritchie people are becoming desperate as judged by their talk. But the Governor's case cannot be helped by desperate talk—facts are facts. Abusing the opposition does no good—it has never yet saved a falling politician.

Reports from various counties indicate that Ritchie is becoming weaker all the time instead of stronger, as the last ditch Ritchie men claim.

Further, many of the women voters who have followed Ritchie are weakening. They realize that he has given them nothing much except words. As to the offices they get the go by. Broening has treated the women better than has the Governor though he hasn't broken his back in helping them.

Potee Campaign Is Starting Early

A real early bird is Sheriff John E. Potee, who is bestirring himself for a third term. Lawyers or rather Democratic lawyers have been receiving a circular letter from retired Judge James P. Gorter who seems to have been chosen as the head of the Lawyers' Potee For Sheriff League, asking indorsement for the Sheriff.

I have not heard anything about the responses to this early bird move to head off the opposition but I do recall that at the last banquet of the Deputy Sheriffs' Association, Mr. Potee was reported as making a Ritchie fourth term speech and I doubt that this fact will greatly help him to get a renomination and election. The Sheriff may find that while the last ditch Ritchie people are making their noises and their threats, the last ditch anti-Ritchie men may also do some desperate work. Under the unhappy circumstances now enveloping the local Democracy it might have been better for the Sheriff to delay his indorsement getting.

And, by the way, what has become of that Pohlhaus-for-Sheriff business? Has it been abandoned?

Frank Furst Kicks on Suggestion of Dennis

One of the interesting bits of gossip of this more or less turbulent pre-campaign period is the reported attitude of Frank A. Furst toward the suggestion that the Democrats get together and urge the Gubernatorial nomination of Judge Samuel K. Dennis.

Those politically minded well know that despite the Baltimore County indorsement of Senator McIntosh the most frequently suggested of all possible candidates is Judge Dennis. One hears little of any one else among the Democrats on the Eastern Shore and in some other counties while his support in Baltimore City is so remarkable that many are saying that he will eventually have to be the candidate.

But mention of Judge Dennis puts Mr. Furst right up in the air, so I am told, and he goes so far as to give the Judge quite a lambasting for what, lacking a better designation, may be termed his non-bootlicking attitude toward the current Governor.

This is a bit surprising because the late John Walter Smith, with whom Judge Dennis was associated politically, was a great friend of Mr. Furst. However, it is possible that the Furst hostility to Dennis dates back to the year 1923 when John Walter Smith was opposed to the second term candidacy of Ritchie and hoped to have Furst with him. But Furst left John Walter cold and sided with Ritchie. Possibly Mr. Furst knows the present Judge Dennis did not admire his performance on that now historic occasion and, not admiring it, would not, if made Governor, run to the upper floor of the Fidelity building for advice about appointments, a la Ritchie.

But it does not appear that Mr. Furst will cut any great figure in making the next nomination. He lost a great part of his political strength when, in 1927, he threw cold water on the proposed nomination of R. Walter Graham for Mayor and gave his support to a candidate that all well advised people knew could not be elected.

We all now know that Mr. Graham demonstrated his strength by going on the ticket that year for a second term in the Comptroller's office and getting the high Democratic vote. This high vote for Graham was a severe blow to the Furst political prestige which, since that day, has been in steady decline.

Unfortunately for Mr. Furst he has all along been a Ritchie backer for three terms. And enough has been revealed to show that each of these three terms was marked by wholesale plundering of the taxpayers.

Candidates Plenty For Attorney General

Assuming that Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson is to be retired with Governor Ritchie next year candidates for nomination on the Democratic ticket for that office are already sufficiently numerous. Frequently one hears of Robert R. Carman, who was U. S. Attorney in succession to Samuel K. Dennis. Then there is Saul Praeger of Allegany county, who has had the bee in his bonnet for quite a time, Clinton McSherry of Frederick, W. R. Offutt of Garrett and a half dozen others I might mention but won't, as I must save some for another day or week.

County Republicans Beginning to Stir

Baltiomre County Republicans have begun their next year's campaign down at Dundalk where George R. Norris is looming up as a party leader, and a meeting held last week was marked by much enthusiasm over the prospects of carrying the county next year. A shot or two was taken at Senator McIntosh by Tom Murray who wants to see control of the court house at Towson change hands.

I note, too, that the Belair Times, which is committed to the Broening Gubernatorial candidacy, takes a shot at McIntosh, so the conclusion is that the Broening backers are doing all they can to throw cold water on McIntosh in order to help along as much as possible the fight of Ritchie for renomination. What these lads want is a contest in November of next year between Ritchie and Broening. In other words, they want the State House handed them on a silver platter.

The Greater Garrett County FAIR!

CAPT. E. H. HUGO

Much has been said and written in reference to the thrilling performance of Capt. E. H. Hugo, but mere words seem utterly inadequate in describing his feat of reckless daring.

High up in the air on a huge frame structure, the top of which is a steep incline, this carefree daredevil astride a bicycle, careens madly down the deep sloping chute and taking off at the end, he precipitates himself and the wheel through space, passing through a blazing barrier of flames in mid-air, to land on a gentle slope a considerable distance away, still seated on the cycle which he nonchalantly rides away.

There have been many dare-devil stunts attempted but none that could ever compare with the hair-raising performance of Capt. Hugo.

CHEFALO

There have been many persons who have proclaimed themselves to be the highest divers in the world, but we are convinced that these same people would surely hide their heads in shame after one glance at the lofty ladders used by Chefalo, for his ladders tower so high in the air that it seems although they must touch the clouds.

In place of the usual tank for a landing place Chefalo uses only a ridiculously small net, thereby increasing the hazard of his dangerous undertaking tenfold.

Wild Animal Circus Coming

Silvan-Drew Circus, which will be here next Tuesday, September 24, for two performances, great interest attaches to that event, particularly so because the big show is one of the few tented exhibitions offering an array of trained wild animals. That means that lots of little boys and girls are trying very hard to be good, and elder boys and girls are figuring on playing hookey from school, if they have to.

Among the features of the big show there is an army of clowns, girls and men on flying apparatus far alof in the dome o fthe big top, agile athletes, one of the outstanding big hits of the present season Miss Sis Riddle, the equestrienne, who is as dainty as a butterfly with her many whims and fancies, in swagger raiment, ablaze with color swathed in silk, on beautiful horses, beautifully outfitted in hazardous feats of horsemanship, makes an effective ornature to the circus arena. Another beautiful girl, Miss Wallace, with her dancing horses Pretty girls are only a small part of the show. Wild and domestic animals trained in many amazing stunts. Twelve ponies under the tutelage of Miss Wallace, the most successful of all equine trainers, perform with humanlike precision without one word of command. Performances are scheduled for 2 for the afternoon and 8 for the night show.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

Written on Tuesday.

The rain is raining all around—
It rains on amicsited streets,
On highways and on boulevards,
And those in rumble seats.

The rain is raining, and I know
Just when it is going to stop—
Hasn't it done it time and again?
Why, after the Fair has been all slop.

—Sin-onymous.

Maybe not, this year, Archibaldson says. From the national weather bureau on Meadow Mountain comes the news that Fair weather will be fair weather when all farmers get together. Whether or not they do depends on the people who are going to be foul or fair minded.

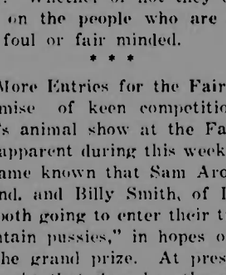
More Entries for the Fair.

Promise of keen competition in Scoop's animal show at the Fair became apparent during this week when it became known that Sam Aronhalt, Oakland, and Billy Smith, of Hoyes, were both going to enter their trained "mountain pussies," in hopes of getting the grand prize. At present it is thought that Sam has the advantage on Billy because he has so many more from which to pick the prize winner, as Crook Crest is known as the amphitheatre for their nightly meetings. From this rendezvous they "spread" good cheer and whatnot.

Billy, nevertheless, is optimistic, and says that Hoyes has the quality, if not the quantity, that Crook Crest has.



Col. Bell has already declined to be the judge.

Another Entry Promised

On Friday, the thirteenth, the animal pictured in the following snapshot, showed up at Scoop's office, and since no one has claimed it, Scoop has decided to enter it among his collections at the Fair.

A booklet on what the black cat has done, why it crosses the road in front of one, and a full explanation of the reason for its existence and effect on superstitious people will be compiled by Col. Bell, and sold on the grounds at cost. All bad luck can be averted by subscribing for The Republican, and reading each issue.

Waiting His Chance

* * *

If you don't think Oakland has grown, think of Second street sixty years ago. It was nothing but a cow-path. What was then a cow-path is now a very popular parade ground for all manner of jackasses and a roosting place for half-dressed chickens.

Get Your Speckled Beauties

A new means of taking trout from Deep Creek Lake has been discovered. It appears that two local fishermen were having poor luck whipping Meadow Mountain Run when one suggested that the bait be soaked in some of the "snake-bite medicine" that had been found along the bank. This was tried, and at the first east the rod bent nearly double, and it took the combined efforts of the two sportsmen to reel in the prize.

Then it was discovered that the worm had seized a big fish by the throat and was choaking it. (This is vouched for by Harry Mickey and Jim Painter, but they say they weren't the two who did the fishin'.)

Too Cold to Squat Long

Squatters have been complaining about the cold weather and rainy spell during the past week, and as much as they dislike to get on the move, they feel that something just has to be done. If they can't squat and be dry and warm, they won't squat. So they decided to join hands with the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work and hold a big square dance, goose step and turkey trot, on the Court House Lawn. They figured this would keep them warm without looking too much like work. The details of this will be worked out next week, as well as having the date of the celebration fixed. The fiddlers, figure-caller, and keepers of law and order will all be named next week in addition to a number of other important positions.

The dance will be open to all, and not just to the cold squatters. Already, in anticipation of the event James Fazzalari, Bill Gibson, Charles Tower, Reese Friend, Doc. Kercheval and Bill Butts are in training. Col. Bell took a snap shot of Fazzalari, Tower and Kercheval as they tried to bring in a little aesthetic dancing skill with the old fashioned hop.

TOWN'S FAULT IS YOURS

Now that the summer season is over one is beginning to hear frequently and on every hand, "Oakland is dead; wish I could get out of this darned place; nothing to do; I'll go crazy before the winter is over," and so on far into the night.

Early this summer a series of radio programs were broadcast in which the advantages of Oakland were enumerated. According to these programs, Oakland was the paradise of Eastern United States and the spot where everybody would eventually congregate, settle down and live indefinitely in such a healthful climate.

Any radio enthusiast "listening in" may have believed everything said about Oakland, and decided to come here to live, only to hear a number of people exclaiming when he got here, "If I could only get out."

People who feel that Oakland is a forsaken spot on the face of the earth are merely helping to make it so. The town cannot be greater than its people, and if they are going to be "small potatoes," it is their own fault, and they shouldn't be blaming the town for their littleness. On the other hand, the town has a right to blame them for laying down on the job. But most of them are not even content to just lay down on the job. They "knock" everything that is for the good of the community and hold back those who believe in Oakland as an ideal town and who are striving to make it equal to the reputation gained thru radio broadcasting and other advertising.

This summer a Boy Scout resented the fact that a Pittsburgh youth called Oakland a "hick town," and quietly asked him if he had ever done anything to make Pittsburgh what it is. He had not. It just happened that he had been born there. The Boy Scout, however, believed in Oakland and had had a part in making it a better place in which to live.

Those who are always belittling Oakland because it is dead according to their thinking, should ask themselves just one question, "Did I ever do anything to try to liven it up a bit?" and if they haven't they haven't any more right to knock Oakland than the Pittsburgh boy had.

If Oakland is dead, the knockers are making it that way. If it is dead it is so because they enjoy being dead themselves.

Get awake themselves and the town will be awakened.

Set the alarm clock for seven or six o'clock tomorrow morning.

ARE YOU "JUST FISHING?"

Helpful lessons which frequently spell success or failure can be learned from the "homey" things of every day life. Two men prepare for a day's outing along the streams. One makes little or no preparation. His tackle is carelessly assembled, his bait is inferior and not adapted to the fish he seeks for the season of the year. Arriving at the chosen spot, he carelessly and without thought or design casts his lure in the water, allowing it to drift whether it will. Then he perhaps sleeps and without effort on his part expects results. He is just fishing.

His companion is of a different character. He carefully selects his rod, his hook, his line and his bait. His lure is most attractive, suitable for the season of the year and the fish he is seeking. He is successful, where the former fails.

We can apply this to ourselves. Some of us are just fishing. One summer resort is flourishing, teeming with life and business. The other is stagnating. The former advertises its advantages. The latter is content to drift, leaving to chance whether the tourist stops or passes through. It is just fishing.

One marchant decides to try a little advertising, feeling that he is not getting his share of business. He carelessly prepares his advertisement, takes a few inches on the cheapest page of the paper and then dozes, awaiting results. If his first ad fails, he does not take the trouble to cast again, but condemns advertising.

His competitor just across the street, in the same block, realizing that it is an off season, that business is dull, spends much thought in his endeavor to attract trade. He carefully goes over his stock, selecting certain seasonable articles for leaders, and then flashes the news to the reading public in a full page display advertisement. There is instant response. He gets the business. He follows up his advantage, using the same care each week in the preparation of his lure, with the result that at the end of the season there are no red entries on his ledger.

Advertising in a manner best suited to our needs, whether by the individual or by a community, pays.

MUSSOLINI SUPREME

Premier Benito Mussolini, the supreme and unquestioned dictator of the Italian government and the lives of individual Italians under his dominion, has made a spectacular but empty gesture which, to the informed, will be recognized at first glance as insignificant.

The Monarch of Italy has resigned seven of the eight cabinet posts he had previously held in his own government and retained the two key positions in the government—that of the premiership and secretary of interior. Seven hand-picked secretaries, doubtless well trained in the ritual of their routine, fill the vacant posts. What will happen to those underlings should they have the audacity to move against the will of their master is painful to contemplate.

There is not the most vague shadow of doubt but that Mussolini still is and very probably will continue to rule the destinies of Italy exactly as he wishes and any who would brook his will are tampering with sure and sudden vengeance.

Mussolini dominated the Italian government for years through control of eight of the thirteen cabinet votes but the fact that he has released seven of those votes and thus technically no longer holds the necessary majority in the palm of his hand for the whole world to see, does not indicate that the Duce has the slightest intention of relinquishing his power.

Benito the Great held on to absolute control technically as well as literally of the government until he had trained Italian statesmen to never dispute his suggestions. After years of training the premier is satisfied that said statesmen will do just what he expects them to do and in compensation for their aptitude in memorizing their parts has conferred upon them the various secretaryship titles—empty it is true, but titles nevertheless.

However nobody has any delusion as to who still rules Italy.

Schools Plan More Attention For Their Juvenile Unfortunates

By Katherine Scarborough, in the Baltimore Sunday Sun

Baltimore through the recent appointment to the public school system of Dr. J. E. W. Wallin, is about to make its public school really public. Under Dr. Wallin's supervision the hundreds of piteous little cripples whose legs are twisted or whose backs are crooked, the pale-faced youngsters whom nature failed to supply with hearts strong enough to permit them to run and play and climb the stairs, the shy, diffident, small fry to whom the world of sound is closed, and those who can't see or talk like the others do will have the same big chance to develop the resources they have in them that has been given so lavishly to normal children.

Some of this work has already been begun in Baltimore, but it has been carried on under tremendous handicaps. Lack of proper facilities has stood in the way for cripples and children with heart trouble must be housed on the ground floor of the school building, and there are other handicaps in this respect, in addition to a scarcity of teachers trained for this kind of work, but the rough places have been provided for and the education of Baltimore's handicapped children will begin in earnest with the opening of the schools this fall.

In taking this step in behalf of its juvenile unfortunates Baltimore will assume a position in the front rank of cities which are bestowing scientific attention upon the plight of their future citizens who will have to face life without the mental and physical equipment of normal individuals. And, incidentally, such work will remove from the city of the future a great part of the burden humanity has been carrying since civilization began.

The theory that physically or mentally handicapped persons are capable of being trained to make their own way in the world is scarcely a generation old, but already it has proved itself worthy of being developed to the full. Scattered over the country in almost all of the large cities are men and women of whom the world seldom hears, but who, without the aid of eyes or ears or other organs, are earning their own living, strangely happy and asking nothing more of the world than the opportunity to work.

Only a comparatively small number of those who are suffering from disabilities of one kind or another, however, have had the opportunity to secure the training which will put them on the road to financial independence. The efforts made by educators in behalf of such individuals on anything like a large scale really dates from the World War, when the need for labor called into industry thousands of persons who hitherto had been shut outside the gates.

In Baltimore this work was taken up as part of the Strayer survey made not long after the war. "Classes already have been established," says Dr. David E. Weglein, superintendent of schools, "for cripples, the deaf and hard of hearing, children whose speech needs correction, sight conservation, cardiac cases, anaemic and undernourished children and those who are in hospital schools. We also have for children who are unable to go to school at all special teachers who go to their homes to give them instruction there.

"Mentally retarded children also are recognized as claimants for special attention. For these we have made provision, too. In every school building, tests have shown, there are three classes of pupils who can be cared for under normal conditions—those who are unusually bright, those of average ability and those who are slow. In addition to these the school population includes almost 2,000 children who do not fit into these easy, natural groupings, and who must be taken care of by teachers specially trained for the work.

"Children for these classes are selected as the result of examinations, by trained phychologists. The work of grading them and augmenting these classes, for there ought to be a great many more of them than there are now, will be carried out on a much more elaborate scale when Dr. Wallin assumes his duties here than has been possible heretofore."

Investigation will show the work done for handicapped children in Baltimore already compares favorably from an academic point of view with that accomplished elsewhere, but in point of equipment necessary to take care of them the city is conspicuously wanting. Should the $1,500,000 enabling act passed for the purpose at the last session of the Legislature be ratified at the election of 1930, the School Board has ready plans to remedy the situation in a manner which will provide this city with the finest plant in the world for the education of unfortunate children.

"We are preparing to build a large central building to which all white cripples and cardiac cases can come and a similar one for Negroes," says Dr. Weglein. "The deaf classes probably will be accommodated on the second floor of the central building and special class rooms with proper equipment will be provided in the regular school buildings for the sight-conservation classes, the classes for anaemics and those for speech correction.

"Some of the special mental classes also can be taken care of in the regular school buildings and others will be provided for in separate buildings scattered throughout the city. In almost all of these classes a greater amount of manual instruction is given than in the ordinary course of study. This means that material with which the children can work must be provided, the kind required differing with the different types of classes.

"Many children who are not now in special classes ought to be in them. Statistics show that a certain proportion of the population does not conform to the normal, and this proportion is considerably in excess of that for which we have made provision in the schools. It will be part of Dr. Wallin's duty to discover who the children are who need special consideration in order that the schools may take care of them.

"Determination of the children who shall enter special classes is a highly specialized profession. Dr. Wallin, of course, will not be able to do this work himself, but he will be supplied with assistants who are eminently qualified psychometrists—persons who are trained in measuring the mind—so that it will be possible to tell, for instance, whether the candidate for special classes is suffering from some psychopathic ailment, or from eyestrain which proper glasses and the attendance at sight-saving classes will relieve. There are 'border-line' cases, of course, and some in which more than one of the symptoms is present. To determine accurately how such children can be helped most effectively is the work of some one who not only is a highly trained psychologist but a real humanitarian as well."

The humanitarian phase of the work among handicapped children is one to which Dr. Wallin is strongly committed. In a textbook on "Clinical and Abnormal Psychology," of which he is the author, he says that > while the function of the psychoclinical examiner is that of an unprejudiced, dispassionate and alert observer of a human reagent, he must always be actuated by a deep, abiding and unselfish interest in the welfare of the unfortunates.

>
> Deep human sympathy is the indispensable prerequisite of success in all types of regenerative social service. * * * The suggestion to students in the clinic course that they review their findings in the light of the query, "What would you recommend if this were your own child?" has more than once produced a transformation in attitude and point of view that is almost incredible.
>
> Once the child has been directed into the special class best adapted to its needs it is necessary, of course, that his instruction be given by competent and specially trained teachers. A number of these already are in the school service, but with the expansion of the work among handicapped children there will be need of more. The Johns Hopkins University is preparing to meet this demand by presenting a training course which students who have a leaning toward this type of work may take. A liking for work of this character is, perhaps, even more important in the case of the teacher than in the case of the examiner, for the teacher will have constant calls upon her resourcefulness from the same individuals, day in and day out, and only those whose sympathies are bound up with the highest interests of the unfortunates can stand the strain and really benefit the children under their care.

* * *

In order to receive the benefits of the educational facilities the public schools are providing for "all sorts and conditions" of children it is obviously necessary that some kind of transportation be provided for cripples and other children who can neither walk nor use the street cars. To meet this need the school system some years ago established a bus service of its own, but the venture did not prove entirely practical and was abandoned in favor of the service of the large motor companies in the city. The results have been entirely satisfactory over a period of two years, the company providing the service being selected by competitive bidding.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Jennie Wiegand vs. George Weigand. No. 2914 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that on the .... day of ....., 1922, the plaintiff was married to the defendant, with whom she resided in Pennsylvania and elsewhere until March, 1924.

That although the conduct of the plaintiff toward her husband has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond a reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That no children were born to the parties as a result of said marriage.

That the plaintiff is a resident of Garrett County and that the defendant is a non-resident of this State.

The Bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, by the plaintiff from the said defendant.

IT IS, THEREUPON, This 4th day of September, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of October, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 21st day of October next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Al Jolson Wins In The "Singing Fool"

When Al Jolson's first picture, "The Jazz Singer," broke records all over the country, people said it would be impossible to equal it in glitter, glamour and heart appeal. The impossible has been done, for Warner Bros. now present Al Jolson in his second special picture, "The Singing Fool."

The world's great entertainer is seen in a part of tremendous and moving pathos and he proves that he has what his legions of followers have always insisted he possessed—the genius for tragedy.

The night clubs of the Big Town—the haunts and the home of the singing waiter—whose heartbreaking humorous story makes the play.

The original for G. Graham Baker's picturization is by Leslie S. Barrows. Lloyd Bacon directed and the star cast includes Betty Bronson, Josephine Dunn, Reed Howes, Edward Martindel, Arthur Housman, David Lee, and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

"The Singing Fool" with Al Jolson in the star part is an event. It is the most unique heart-stirring screen effort ever offered. Visit the Maryland Theatre September 24, 25 and 26.—Advertisement.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

The time is here to begin selecting your exhibits for the County Fair. It will be well to keep in mind some of the essentials of a good exhibit when selecting your production.

First, know what to exhibit to the best advantage to do this study carefully the fair catalog, giving particular attention to directions given for each class of competitive exhibit such as size, type, market quality, how to enter, etc. Select only those products which will show quality when they are exhibited.

Second, make your exhibit show market quality. An exhibit has market quality when it is true to type, uniform in size, shape and color, free from disease and blemishes. Prizes are seldom won on mixed varieties unless catalog calls for it. Therefore it is important to have specimens true to name and type.

Uniformity in size and shape is another important requirement. All specimens should be as near the same size as possible and the size should be the average size for the variety. Extra large specimens are not desirable and seldom win prizes when exhibited with specimen of typical size of the variety. The same holds true for small specimen.

Uniformity of shape is important. Select specimens as near the same shape as possible and be sure they are the typical shape for the variety.

The next most important essential in uniformity is color. An exhibit which is true to type, uniform size and shape may get third or fourth prize just because of a variation in color. Again the color should be the typical color for the variety. This applies especially to all fruits and vegetables.

It is generally understood that specimens are not desirable for exhibit if they are diseased, neither will they have much chance for a prize if they have blemishes of any kind when a competitor shows good products.

Don't forget maturity, be sure your products are fully matured. Immature products are not desirable on the market or at fairs.

Flavor, texture and aroma are important in such products as butters, jellies, cake, bread, cheese, syrup, etc.

In conclusion, select exhibits according to catalog requirements with marketable qualities such as uniformity in size, shape, type, and color, free from diseases and blemishes and fully matured.

Third, packing, transporting, and handling exhibits. After products are chosen care should be taken that they are not damaged in handling. Pack well with old newspapers before moving them to the fair to deliver to proper departments.

Ancient Indian Blow Gun Has Modern Uses

It's a far cry from stealthy savages armed with the little known, swift, quiet, blow gun to a white man adopting the primitive weapon to scare stray cats from his birds. But Bob Becker claims that is just what he is using a blow gun for. Writing in Field and Stream he tells of the champion "two lung gun" hunter in America now on the Cherokee Indian reservation in North Carolina and how he learned from him the trick of the blow gun.

The American blow gun, he says, is a long hollow tube of bamboo cane through which is blown short arrows feathered with thistle down. At 40 feet enough accuracy and speed can be attained by blowing these small missiles to kill a squirrel or other animal of similar size. After learning how to blow the gun this Field and Stream writer took it home to find uses for it. Having a number of birds on his place he had to protect them from cats. By throwing open a window and aiming his blow gun he could practice hitting these stray felines with a blunted thistle down arrow. He discovered that it gave him quite a kick, annoyed the cats without hurting them and protected his birds in the bargain.

HORSERACING IS CARDED FOR AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Thirteenth Annual Exhibition to Open Tuesday, October 1, with Automobile Day Exhibits

That there would be free-for-all horseracing events at the Thirteenth Annual Garrett County Agricultural Fair, to be held October 1, 2, 3 and 4, at the Fair Grounds, Oakland, was announced by Henry M. Speicher, the general manager, yesterday. For this purpose, he is inviting everybody in the county who has a horse that is able to run, to attend the Fair and place their entries in the events. Races will be run on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

This is the first time in the history of the Fair that there will be horseracing of any description, and it is expected to attract a large number of people.

Fair To Open on Tuesday.

The Fair will officially open Tuesday morning with an automobile parade, and a number of special prizes are going to be awarded to owners of decorated cars. These awards are to be given by the various dealers and are listed in another story in The Republican today. The association is also offering a prize.

Following automobile day will come "School Day," "Business Men's Day," and "Farmer's Day," each of which have special inducements for entries in the street parades.

An award of $10 will be made for the best saddle horse appearing in the parades on Wesdnesday and Friday, and $5 for second best.

Many Exhibits Expected

Entries in the animal departments, especially in the cattle section, are numerous, according to Mr. Speicher, and promises for sufficient exhibits to more than fill the buildings have already been made to the manager.

Good weather has been predicted by Ralph Weber, at the government station near Oakland, and with this to look forward to the largest Fair in several years is expected.

A number of men have been at work for some time in getting the fair gounds in condition, Mr. Speicher said. The roofs of the buildings have been painted, the exhibit building and barns thoroughly cleansed and the grounds cleared off in preparation for the four day celebration. A runway, to accommodate the Reddy Shaw airplane, will be constructed this week.

Plenty of Amusements

Free attractions will be plentiful throughout the four days, it was said by Mr. Speicher. Capt. E. H. Hugo will dive 110 feet into a small net, once each day, and in addition Cheffalo will ride down an incline on a bicycle and leap through a flame. W. J. (Thunderbolt) Knight will make a double parachute leap from the Reddy Shaw airplane on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

There will be a number of shows and rides and independent concessions both day and night, and everything possible has been done to make the people want to attend the fair, Mr. Speicher said.

There will be four grange booths entered in the Fair this year, and exhibits in live stock, poultry, farm products, horticultural products, boys and girls club work, school work, household articles, domestic arts and many special premiums, more than ever before, are being offered by a number of merchants throughout the county.

"Attendance of the people at the fair is all that is needed now to make it a success and I am sure that everybody is going to get behind it, boost it, attend it and take part," Mr. Speicher concluded.

Final Union Service Conducted By Women of Town

The union evening services, conducted during the past two months by the churches of Oakland, came to a close last Sunday evening with a service presented and carried through by the women of the various denominations taking part.

Mrs. C. A. Shilke read the scripture lesson and offered the opening prayer. Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell spoke of the women in missions; Miss Marion Leary spoke on her experiences as a teacher in the public schools and Mrs. Charles F. White gave a reading.

Mrs. Frederick Thayer rendered a solo and the congregational singing was led by members of the combined choirs of the churches of town.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Browning, who are comfortably located on their beautiful farm about seven miles north of Oakland, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage Sunday by entertaining a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. Browning is a grandson of Meshack Browning, noted pioneer settler in Garrett county.

Mr. Browning is a prominent Democrat of the old school and at one time was a candidate for the Legislature. For several years he was chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of the county. He will be 82 years old in November. Mrs. Browning was formerly Miss Mary Watson and was born and reared in the State of Pennsylvania.

CLASSES WILL ORGANIZE FRIDAY AT HIGH SCHOOL

To Elect Officers and Discuss Important Business Matters

Organization of classes at Oakland High School will take place on Friday afternoon, Miss Katharine Conley, principal, stated, at which time officers would be elected, dues decided upon, and matters of interest to the classes for the coming year discussed.

Conditions at the school are more congested than ever before, Miss Conley stated, but classes are being conducted as best they may with the space available.

Eight more students registered during the week, thus increasing the enrollment to 311. It is impossible to carry on the work in several classes as there is no plaace for the students to assemble.

County Commissioner George D. Browning visited the school last Friday and noted the crowded condition prevailing.

Volley ball teams and the soccer squad are both practicing for the opening games next Wednesday. Jacqueline Lockyer and Bernard Gonder were named reporters for the school.

Shriners to Entertain.

The Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in Garrett and Preston counties will entertain their wives and friends at a banquet to be given at the Cassady Hotel, Terra Alta, W. Va., on Monday, September 30, beginning at seven o'clock.

More than a hunderd are expected from Friendsville and Oakland, and Terra Alta, Kingwood and Rowlesburg, Preston county, W. Va.

An elaborate menu and program have been arranged, it has been stated.

Pleasant Valley Grange Confers Third and Fourth Degrees

The candidates were Mr. Harry Beggs, agriculture instructor at Accident High School; Mrs. Harry Beggs, Mrs. John Carter, Mrs. Ernest Friend, Mr. Walter W. Dawson, Misses June and Lucille Sembower and Beulah Friend.

The meeting was attended by forty members, among them being Mr. and Mrs. W. Clayton Jester, a former county agent of Garrett county. Mr. Jester made a brief address in which he expressed his pleasure at being able to be present and talked of conditions in Randolph county, W. Va., where he is now county agent. There the granges were doing work which in quality and service compares very favorably with that of other organizations existing among farmers, he stated.

Mr. Carter spoke concerning the fair and regulations governing it. Mr. Dawson spoke of the value of organizations and the significance of the lessons taught in the third and fourth degrees. Refreshments were served.

MOTHER ILL, WANTS HER BOY.

John J. Hazlett, wearing an oxford gray suit, and a light gray felt hat, left his home, 1106 Abbey Place N. E., Washington, D. C., and has not been seen since July 16th. At the same address his mother is ill, hoping for the return of her boy. His return, the doctors say, means much to her.

John, who is just 16 years old, is five feet five inches tall, has light eyes, light brown hair, has fair skin, a bit tanned. A wide search is being made in an effort to comfort the sick mother. Have you seen him?

URGES WOMEN IN COUNTY TO ENTER FAIR EXHIBITS

The Home Demonstration Agent Says There Must Be Many Exhibits to Make Fair Successful

An exhibit from every woman in the county for the Thirteenth Annual Fair, to be held October 1, 2, 3, and 4, is asked by Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, in the last of a series of interviews, obtained by The Republican in promoting the success of the celebration.

"Just four more days until the Garrett county fair is on. Have you decided on your one or more exhibits? I should say this plan for Fair week is as important to you now as those glorious Christmas holidays that we count on our fingers in December.

"Other contributors to The Republican before me have mentioned the many phases of the County Fair to you. Each year the Fair should grow better and I think this year will be a great success over last year.

"I draw my conclusion from the interest people show as I talk to them. The only way to make the Fair amount to anything is to have something to look at. This is up to every Garrett countian. Then, take time to observe what has been exhibited.

"If your comment is that you have something at home just as good or a lot better, that is your loss. You should have made an exhibit. At an agricultural fair you will enjoy competitive as well as educational exhibits. Every item will be worthy of attention and interest as someone has made an effort to display them for you, no matter how large or how small the exhibit.

"I urge every homemaker in Garrett county to feel it her duty to make at least one entry in the women's departments. Your cooperation will make the fair interesting.

"Second, I urge you to attend the Fair, even if you can come but once. Choose your day, be it Automobile Day, School Day, Farmers' Day, or Oakland Business Men's Day, be a booster. If we could have the attendance at the Fair that get together at reunions throughout the county we would judge the fair a success.

"Statistics show that the fairs of the middle and far west grow bigger and better each year and why not? That's their slogan and they live up to it. It is my sincere good wish that the Garrett county fair will be bigger and better than ever."

Soccer Coach Expects Winning Team For Oakland

Although the candidates for the Oakland High soccer team are younger and naturally lighter in weight than in previous years, a winning team is expected to be put on the field this season, according to Foster Speicher, coach, as the fighting qualities more than make up for the deficiency in the other two departmens.

Among the veteran players are Chuck Dodge, Don Porter, Lewis Lawton, Walter Killias, Wilmot Brown, Donald Moore, Kenneth Graves and "Babe" Maroney, while the most promising of the new men are John Stevenson, Charles Davis, Dennis Colaw, Joe Sollars, Richard Glotfelty and Morgan Adams, some of whom will probably be on the first team.

Stores To Close October 3 Business Men's Day

All Oakland stores will be closed on Thursday, October 3, from 12:30 to 4:30 p. m., in celebration of Business Men's Day, at the Thirteenth Annual Garrett county Fair, according to L. M. Fraley, member of the committee. A parade is to be held at 1 o'clock and will consist of the Rotary club, the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and a number of business floats.

A committee will call on each business man and solicit his cooperation in making Business Men's Day a successful one. The committee arranging for the third day of the Fair, is composed of Mayor L. M. Fraley, D. Emroy Bolden, Harry Stemple, and Blaine Giessman.

That the Crellin Band would play during the first two days of the Fair and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band during the last two days, was announced this morning by Henry M. Speicher, general manager.

AGED MAN DIES IN AUTO MISHAP NEAR FROSTBURG

Two Cars and Truck Collide on National Highway at Garrett-Allegeny County Boundary

Elihu Lyle, 84 years old, of Swissvale, Pa., died at ten o'clock Sunday night in the Miners Hospital, Frostburg, from a fracture of the skull and other injuries received about 6:50 o'clock in the evening in a motor accident west of Frostburg, on the Garrett county side of the boundary line separating Allegany county, on the National Highway.

Fred. W. Lyle, the dead man's son, who was driving the automobile at the time of the accident, was taken into custody by State police and will be given a hearing next Monday afternoon.

Conflicting accounts were given as to the cause of the accident. Young Lyle, it is said, in an attempt to pass between a truck driven by Bertram Minnick, of Garrett county, who was going west on the highway, and an automobile driven by Allen Jenkins, of Fairmont, W. Va., going east, hit the truck, ripping its left front wheel from the axle and bending the frame, at the same time turning Lyle's car over, demolishing it and throwing the elder Mr. Lyle through the wind-shield of the machine. He was badly lacerated about his face and shoulders and striking upon his head suffered a fracture of his skull. He never rallied from the shock. His son escaped with minor cuts and bruises and denies having attempted to drive between the other machines. The Jenkins car was not damaged.

Minnick, owner of the truck, has entered suit against Fred Lyle for $500 damages. A foreign attachment was placed against Lyle's car. Lyle was permitted to accompany the remains of his father to Waltham, Pa., after posting a bond for his appearance in the People's Court, Cumberland, next Monday. The funeral of the dead man was held yesterday.

The elder Lyle had been visiting his son at Wilkinsburg and the pair were en route to Washington, D. C., to visit another relative.

Pleasant Valley To Have Agricultural Show Saturday

An agricultural show for the benefit of the Pleasant Valley will be held in the grange hall there on Saturday, September 28, plans for which are under way for more than a month. It is being sponsored by the Pleasant Valley Grange but is not a grange membership.

Exhibits are to be at the hall by 10 a. m. There will be no entry fee, it was stated, and suggestions as to size and quality of the exhibits to be the same as are found in the county Fair catalog.

The committee is planning a program of entertainment for the afternoon which will consist of games, horseshoe pitching, speed ball games and various other amusements. "Daddy" Jenkins, University of Maryland, and Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank of Oakland, are on the evening program as speakers. There will also be special music.

Religious Education Council to Hold Convention

The eighty-seventh annual State convention of the Maryland-Delaware Council of Religious Education will be held at Annapolis Thursday and Friday, October 17-18. This is the first year that the two States have planned a convention together.

Worship and its materials will be strongly stressed throughout the convention program. Dr. Walter S. Athearn, well known in religious educational circles, and Dr. Frank M. McCubbin, professor of Religious Education at the University of Pittsburgh, and other noted speakers, will be at the convention, and noted leaders will be in charge of the children's, young people's and adult groups for conferences.

Firemen to Give Demonstration.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will give a demonstration in pumping and fire-fighting at the fair grounds immediately after the parade on Business Men's Day, Thursday, October 3, George Kerins, fire chief, announced this morning. The department will also take part in the parade.

Several practice demonstrations in handling the apparatus have been made during the past week.

Mr. Mac Murry to be Host to Electric Inspectors

Traveling in large busses, approximately forty members of the National Electric Light Association, will spend a portion of Sunday inspecting the plant of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Company in Garrett county. The party will visit Lake Lynn, near Morgantown, Saturday and will arrive in Oakland early Sunday morning. At the power house of the Garrett county corporation they will be entertained by the Associated Gas and Electric Company, of which Mr. C. E. MacMurray is the superintendent in charge. Dinner will be served at Rainbow Inn at two o'clock and from there the return will be made to Pittsburgh.

That the Court of Honor would meet on Monday, October 7, was announced at the Friday meeting by Mr. Jones, chairman. The change from the regular date was made in order that the scouts could devote their time to their exhibit at the fair, which will include a number of accomplishments of members of the troop along scout lines.

Children of Rev. S. J. Westfall Injured in Auto Accident.

Rev. and Mrs. Sherman J. Westfall were badly shaken up and their children cut and bruised when the Durant car in which they were returning to Deer Park from Belington, Monday about noon collided with a Ford car driven by Morris Sisler at the Red House cross roads.

Ruth Anna, youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Westfall, received several cuts and a scalp wound, while Vaughn, their son, received a deep nose cut. Mary Gene, the third child, was unhurt.

Rev. Westfall had been to Belington, to which point he was recently transferred by the United Brethren conference, where he preached Sunday and was on his way back to Deer Park to superintend the removal of his household effects to his new charge when the accident occurred.

Sisler's car was slightly damaged while that of Rev. Westfall was almost completely wrecked.

Dr. Davids Present at Meeting of Religious Council

Dr. Robert Davids, general secretary of the State Council of Religious Education, was present at an official meeting of the Garrett County Council held in St. Mark's Lutheran church yesterday evening.

The resignation of Rev. E. E. Campbell as president of the council was presented but not accepted. An effort is being made to have Rev. Campbell reconsider his action.

Two meetings were arranged for; one at Oakland and the other at Grantsville, to set up teachers' training schools, during the week of November 17.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter E. Waybright were elected delegates to the State Sunday school convention to be held at Annapolis on October 17 and 18.

ADDITION TO BE BUILT TO OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL

Will Be 30 Feet Wide and 108 Feet Long, Adding Six Rooms —Completed by End of Year

An addition to the Oakland High School building, 30 feet wide by 108 feet long, two stories in height, of brick construction, and containing six standard size class rooms with an extension of the study hall on the second floor, will be constructed this fall, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, following action taken by the Board of Education last Friday authorizing the work to be done. Notice to contractors relative to construction work appears in The Republican today.

The proposed addition will be attached to the rear of the building, and the 108-foot sides will face east and west. It was not necessary to purchase additional ground for the accommodation of the proposed new addition, Mr. Rathbun said.

Construction work will be started the middle of October and with favorable weather conditions will be completed by the first of the year. The plans and specifications were prepared by Holt Hitchins, architect, Cumberland, and call for four standard size classrooms and three corridors on the ground floor and two standard size class rooms and a 25-foot extension of the study hall on the second floor. A large stage is to be constructed at one side of the hall and will be flanked by suitable off-stage rooms.

The new addition will increase the number of rooms by 66 per cent and is expected to take care of the 311 pupils now registered there without any further difficulty. The addition will be so built that more additions can be added at any time in the future or when occasion or conditions require it, Mr. Rathbun said. At the present time two thirds of all the pupils enrolled in the school live outside the corporate limits of Oakland.

The study hall, which is approximately 37 by 58 feet, when remodeled and enlarged, will be 37 by 83 feet and will be used for larger community activities of all kinds.

Lesson for September 29

REVIEW: SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE AND THE RESTORATION

GOLDEN TEXT—The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Stories Retold.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Some Great Men of the Period.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Providence in the Exile and the Restoration.

The grade of the class, the aptitude of the scholars and the genius of the teacher are factors which determine the method of review. For adult classes the following suggestions are made:

I.

Study the lessons of the quarter as illustrating the philosophy of history in God's dealings with His people in their captivity and restoration. Assignment of topics should be made at least one week in advance. Only adult scholars should be expected to use this method. The following subjects might be assigned:

Why God Permitted Israel to Go Into Exile.

What Changed Vows of Life Resulted from the Exile.

The Bearing of the Exile Upon Prophecy.

II. Character Study.

Assign the outstanding heroes of the quarter's lessons to members of the class to have them report. This assignment should be made at least a week in advance. Some of the outstanding characters for consideration are: Ezekiel, Daniel, Nehemiah, Ezra, Zerubbabel and Malachi.

III. Summary of Contents.

This method is usable at all times and can be adapted to most of the grades. The following suggestions are made for carrying out this method:

Lesson for July 7—Before Ezekiel was commissioned as a prophet he was given a vision of the Almighty. After this vision he was given an experimental knowledge of God's Word.

Lesson for July 14—Ezekiel sets forth personal responsibility as bearing on the prophet and upon the people to whom he ministered. Ezekiel's responsibility was to hear God's Word and sound the warning. The people's responsibility was to hear and obey.

Lesson for July 21—Ezekiel is the prophet of hope. He ministered to Israel in captivity. God sent him to show to Israel the fullness of His plan for the world through them.

Lesson for July 28—Because Daniel made the Lord the arbiter of his life, he was able to make known the king's dream, with its interpretation.

Lesson for Aug. 4—While Belshazzar and his lords were engaged in drunken revelry, a mysterious hand recorded divine judgment.

Lesson for Aug. 11—Because of jealousy certain wicked men plotted Daniel's downfall. They trumped up a charge against him on the ground of his foreign religion. Though the foolish decree of the king was executed, Daniel was delivered and his accusers were cast to the lions and destroyed.

Lesson for Aug. 18—Though Israel went into captivity as a chastisement of the Lord, later He restored them.

Lesson for Aug. 25—In the restoration of the people to their own land, the first thing necessary was the provision of a place for the worship of God. As soon as this work was done, violent opposition was in evidence. That which God sets out to do shall be completed.

Lesson for Sept. 1—Through Zerubbabel the people were brought back and established in their own land, but they had gone far away from God. There was now need of a religious leader. Ezra was moved by the Spirit to lead them back to fellowship.

Lesson for Sept. 8—When Nehemiah heard of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem he took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord gave him favor with the king, who permitted him to go back and build the walls.

Lesson for Sept. 15—The method used in bringing back the people to God was God's Word. Because the Word was made plain, the people repented of their sins.

Lesson for Sept. 22—Malachi as an aid to Nehemiah in effecting reforms pointed out the sins of the people, namely, base ingratitude, a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, and robbing God by withholding tithes. He pointed to a Day of Judgment when righteous retribution would be meted out to the wicked and rewards would be given to the faithful.

Jesus Prophesieth His Death

And Jesus went before them. And he took again the 12, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him, saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him unto the Gentiles; and they shall mock him, and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him; and the third day he shall rise again.—Mark 10, 32 to 34.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

Some Essentials For Storing Potatoes

Every potato grower should be able to provide good storage for the majority of his annual crop, should he not be able to market his full autumn crop to a good advantage.

Some of the requirements for successful storage of potatoes are:

1. Protection from extreme temperature with a range from 35 degrees to 40 degrees F. being the most satisfactory.

2. Sufficient ventilation to remove foul air and moisture.

3. Provision for excluding light.

4. Tubers dry and reasonably free from dirt.

5. All diseased, badly cut, or bruised tubers be removed from the crop.

It is not advisable to store potatoes in bins more than 5 or 6 feet deep; also bins should not be more than 12 feet square unless sufficient ventilation shafts are provided for the escape of moisture and heat. Division walls providing ventilation are desirable.

Potatoes stored 10 to 15 feet deep generate more heat, making conditions for decay and disease more favorable. Also shrinkage will be greater when stored in deep bins.

FAIR!

CAPT. E. H. HUGO

Much has been said and written in reference to the thrilling performance of Capt. E. H. Hugo, but mere words seem utterly inadequate in describing his feat of reckless daring.

High up in the air on a huge frame structure, the top of which is a steep incline, this careless daredevil astride a bicycle, careens madly down the steep sloping chute and taking off at the end, he precipitates himself and the wheel through space, passing through a blazing barrier of flames in mid-air, to land on a gentle slope a considerable distance away, still seated on the cycle which he nonchalantly rides away.

There have been many dare-devil stunts attempted but none that could ever compare with the hair raising performance of Capt. Hugo.

CHEFALO

There have been many persons who have proclaimed themselves to be the highest divers in the world, but we are convinced that these same people would surely hide their heads in shame after one glance at the lofty ladders used by Chefalo, for his ladders tower so high in the air that it seems as though they must touch the clouds.

In place of the usual tank for a landing place Chefalo uses only a ridiculously small net, thereby increasing the hazard of his dangerous undertaking tenfold.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

A Disappearing Act.

Numerous chickens have been disappearing from various coops around here within the past few weeks and Scoop has been swamped with letters asking that he start a Sherlock Holmes department. One of the letters came from Henry Gibson at the Park.

Hats Off To a Good Loser.

STRAYED OR STOLEN—Sometime between bedtime and sunrise, one rooster chicken, one pullet and three hens, a total of four, not counting the rooster chicken, or time keeper. They must have been stolen as they did that way before. Into whosoever hands they fall, care for them, for they will pay you—they are good stock of the Buff Orpington breed.

The pullet was laying every day and one of the hens laved an extra large egg. The rooster chicken was all that I had of that gender and hence there isn't anything left to crow for getting up on time.

So I will miss them. Have a few more hens left but they got the best ones. They were a good judge of chickens. Do something.—Mayor Gibson.

Exhibit Additions

To Scoop's exhibits at the fair, which include the genuine horse with a bright beginning but a dark ending, against which all farmers are urged to compete; the gentle parrot, ancient in looks but modern in speech and action; the "mountain pussies" of Sam Aronhalt and Bill Smith, aged in woods, around which pervades the aroma of ammonia, zonite and cheap perfumed soap all combined, is added the part to the chain which hasn't yet been found. This animal escaped from the circus on Tuesday and broke up the show. Mr. Silver Draw gave Scoop permission to keep the beast it he could catch it.

With the aid of Col. Bell and Mike Maroney he was finally found at the house of a social dame. Her name is (censored by Gov. Ritchie). Anyway the animal was easy to catch because it had almost gibbered itself to death in trying to outtalk its hostess. After Doc Melody had been called and had saved the animal from an attack of lockjaw, it was taken to the rose room of Col. Bell's studio and a picture taken of him.

Monkey Business

* * *

There is certain to be a lot of other things exhibited at the fair worth going to see. Club girls are going to exhibit their calves, and then there will be rabbit furs and bear skins and other articles too numerous to mention.

Not a Bull Slinger.

Social Notes—Carl Frazee is still able to be in charge of the cattle department at the fair, notwithstanding his record-breaking 110-yard dash the early part of this week. He was caring for an early entry at the fair grounds when the entry declared war. Retreat was necessary, but the order came too late. The tusk caught him in the rear of the entry building. He was ten feet from the line of barbed wire which would have saved him, when he was heard by George White to yell: "Not one cent for tribute, but millions for defense."

Dance Called Off.

At a meeting of the members of the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work, held on the green bench in front of The Republican office, Slim Shaw, presiding, it was decided to call off the square dance and turkey trot because it interfered with local conditions and also because it was thought that it would not attract sufficient people.

Instead of the dance the members of the society decided to hold one of two things: a corn cob chewing contest, which would include all those who took part in the corn festival this spring, or a coaster wagon riding contest down the Court House hill, which would include verybody who could move a leg.

Details as to the selection of the contest, rules and regulations, reasons for and date are to be decided by a committee composed of Bill Frazee, Neil Fraley, Betty Dawson and Carlton McComas. Carlton is just a temporary member of the society but is interested in the organization.

Nothing definite will be decided until after the fair, as the society plans to exhibit its new invention which hasn't been patented yet, and probably never will be. It is a sort of magnet, light as a feather, small enough to carry in the pocket and strong enough to lift any article three feet. "This will save many a backache and strain on the fracas," Thad Hinebaugh, inventor, exclaimed.

Accident Chautauqua a Success

The Swarthmore Chautauqua, held at Accident September 21 to 24, was well attended and much enjoyed by all. Saturday the Russian Musical Company entertained with both vocal and instrumental selections. Perhaps the best lecture ever given at a Chautauqua here was delivered Saturday night by Dr. Beshore on the subject, "Things for Sale." At a service Dr. Beshore gave an address and musical numbers were given by the Russian Musical Company. Monday afternoon Mrs. Lillian Borst, nutritionist, gave a lecture on "Modern Housewifery" and conducted a demonstration at which time salads, sauces, etc., were made. Monday night "Dead Man's Holiday," a mystery play, was presented to a large audience. On Tuesday afternoon a pageant was presented by the members of Junior Chautauqua, after which a concert was given by Petrie's Novelty Quintet, who also entertained with a splendid musical program Tuesday night. A number of guarantors have signed a contract to hold another Chautauqua next year and it is hoped enough will be secured to have the entertainers back next year.

On Vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Speicher left Sunday by automobile for a trip to Canada and other points of interest. They expect to be gone a week. Mr. H. E. Liston, of the Accident garage, is driving the school bus in the absence of Mr. Speicher.

Gone to California.

They made the trip by bus and will visit some points of interest along the way. Both the Misses Speicher were former Garrett county school teachers and are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Speicher.

CRITICISM NOT CURATIVE

Critics, too often, only jar and hurt. Most criticism does not the slightest good. It just irritates. It is in no sense curative.

It is an old saying that only your best friend will tell you your faults. That is a doubtful statement. Most people who tell you your faults are not your best friends, but folks who take a special delight in presuming upon acquaintanceship. They sometimes "kid" themselves that it is their duty. But it is not. It is simply a desire to exalt the superiority complex at the expense of their friends. Under cover of pretended friendship they simply gratify themselves by telling you your failings. Deep down they are simply gossips.

The facat is the average man or woman knows his or her own faults better than anybody. If he or she does not correct them it may be because it is impossible or some other less worthy reason. At any rate, your pointed reference to them is more likely to hinder than to help. If you don't know how to handle personal criticism in the proper fashion, just lay off. Spend your time in correcting your own faults. W. C. F.

RUSSIA AND RELIGION

One of the things which puzzles the average American is the fact that so many of the so-called "liberals" in the churches of America as well as out, have been prone during the past few years to look with a kindly eye on the communistic experiment in Russia. Surely the present Russian system has nothing in common with Christianity nor with any other sort of religion for that matter.

And indeed the latest dispatches from the soviet autocratic government would seem to indicate still further effort to make Russsia an atheistic country. Plans have been made by the Supreme Council of Industry in Russia, it is stated, looking toward the abolition of Sunday as a day of rest. Factories, mines and brickyards are to run throughout the week so that there will be continuous industry, and many holidays, especially those having to do with the church, are to be abolished. This will make 560 working days in Russia and a day off per week is to be allowed, one-seventh of the workmen in each industry one day during the week.

Communistic leaders have asserted that a Russian calendar with church holidays is quite out of the question as a permanent institution in the red republic, and that the sooner these are abolished the sooner the people will forget religion. The object of forgetting Christianity is, of course, that it is not in line with the teachings of communism, free love and the destruction of family life.

But this is not all the story. We are informed by press dispatches that the Russian Commissariat of Education recently set aside sums of money to maintain schools wherein the youth of the land would "be enlightened with regard to the non-existence of God and the faults of religion: be taught that religion is a farce and a fraud originated and maintained for the purpose of keeping the workers under the heel of capitalism." Communist Russia also has a "no God" society, the purpose of which is to muster as many people as possible under the banners of no-religion.

It is not certain of course that the plans of the communists will succeed. The Russian peasants have always been intensely religious. But it is to be remembered that the reds are well organized and constantly on the job in everything that they undertake.

When American "liberals," some wearing the cloth, tour Russia as guests of the red republic and come home to tell us about the beauties of communism they generally fail to relate the startling facts as set out above. Either they do not see what is going on in Russia or they purposely suppress part of the truth because under the guise of their "liberalism" they are in sympathy with the anti-religious, anti-family plan of the communists of Russia. At any rate, no real American who believes in the value of religion and the sanctity of the home to civilization ought to be fooled by the platitudes spilled on their return to America by these "week-enders" in Russia. The best evidence of what the reds are trying to do comes from the lips and the pens of the red leaders themselves.

ALIEN PROPAGANDA

There is no excuse to be offered for Wm. M. Shearer and the American ship-building companies which employed him, if, as is charged, Shearer went to Geneva to interfere with a program of international disarmament in behalf of business concerns which hope to profit by the construction of additional warships. There is reason to believe that the influence exerted by Shearer at Geneva and elsewhere has been greatly exaggerated, however, and that he was but a small drop in the bucket of propaganda at the Geneva conference and in the discussion of the questions of national defense and naval parity. There is also reason to believe that Shearer's propaganda, however selfish in its origin, is far less menacing to the country than the vast volume of propaganda, of both foreign and domestic origin, with which this country has been flooded during the last few years in a highly financed and heavily organized effort to break down resistance in the United States to efforts of alien inspiration to sacrifice just American interests to foreign desires. This, after all, is the sort of propaganda which Americans need most to worry about, for it is carried on with a cleverness and on a scale which has attained results of the most important significance.

Geneva, it is true, was a hot-bed of propaganda. For propaganda is a weapon which European diplomats and European commercial interests well know how to employ, and Americans are babes-in-arms in the art of influencing public opinion by concealed and indirect methods, as compared with them. But no amount of propaganda could conceal the fact that the Geneva conference failed for one reason, and one reason only, namely that the representatives of Great Britain would not concede parity as intended at the Washington Arms conference, and the American representatives were too sincerely devoted to the interests of their own country to sacrifice the program to which this country was committed. International ill will is certainly no more the cause of the American desire to secure the naval parity agreed on at the Washington conference, than of the British big navy advocates' determination to avoid it.

An effort has been made to make it appear that because some ship-building companies may have engaged in propaganda, based on selfish motives, in behalf of a ship-building program, the sentiment in this country in behalf of national as against international interests is of sorded origin. We have had no more outspoken propagandists in behalf of an adequate navy than Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt. Surely no one will argue that they were working under the instigation of ship-building interests. On the other hand a thorough investigation would show that propaganda against national interests heavily organized and financed, is one of the most powerful political agencies operating in this country. We even permit the expenditure of millions of dollars in this country in the propaganda and organization, directed from Moscow, of armed insurrection against the government of the United States, until it is beginning to result in bloodshed throughout the nation. So long as the enemies of American safety and prosperity are permitted to pour out millions in behalf of national injury and destruction, surely the friends of American institutions, of American economic independence, of American freedom from the control of selfish foreign commercial and revolutionary propaganda, should be permitted in a land of free speech to have their say without imputations against their honesty and patriotism.

A few years ago an inquiry into propaganda in favor of a subsidy for the American merchant marine was launched in Congress. At the same time propaganda against the governmental fostering of our merchant marine was so successfully carried out that the measure was defeated. When the World War came on our lack of ships cost the American people billions of dollars, creating an annual national interest charge many times the amount proposed as a subsidy. Only one important fact was developed in that inquiry, and that was that British and German shipping interests were paying a large salary to a Washington representative of a great news gathering association which furnished American newspapers with information from the State, War and Navy Departments.

If all the facts were known as to alien propaganda in the United States the American people would understand why the championship of foreign as against American interests, on such questions as the tariff, immigration, the Monroe Doctrine, national defense, the League of Nations and the like, is so general and so formidable. They would also understand that the organized efforts in behalf of American interests are feeble as compared with the movement against them, and that for every penny spent to educate public opininon along the lines of sound nationalism, a dollar is thrown into the jack-pot of internationalism, anti-nationalism and revolutionary radicalism.

Mayor Fraley Extends City's Welcome to Visitors at Garrett County Fair

The City Officials of Oakland extend to the citizens of Garrett County and neighboring communities a most cordial invitation to visit the Annual Garrett County Fair, to be held in Oakland, October 1, 2, 3, and 4.

The exhibits at the Fair this year are expected to be better than at any of the previous Fairs and the management has arranged for high class entertainment. An added attraction this year will be a double parachute jump from an airplane by a professional parachute artist. This attraction will be a real thriller.

It is the duty of the citizens of the county to give their cooperation toward making the Fair a success. Garrett County's products are second to none and an annual display and an honest effort to advertise these products is bound to result beneficially to every citizen.

Again, on behalf of the City Officials and citizens of Oakland, we extend a cordial invitation to every one to come to Oakland on the above dates.

L. M. FRALEY, Mayor.

CRITICISM NOT CURATIVE

Critics, too often, only jar and hurt. Most criticism does not the slightest good. It just irritates. It is in no sense curative.

It is an old saying that only your best friend will tell you your faults. That is a doubtful statement. Most people who tell you your faults are not your best friends, but folks who take a special delight in presuming upon acquaintanceship. They sometimes "kid" themselves that it is their duty. But it is not. It is simply a desire to exalt the superiority complex at the expense of their friends. Under cover of pretended friendship they simply gratify themselves by telling you your failings. Deep down they are simply gossips.

The facat is the average man or woman knows his or her own faults better than anybody. If he or she does not correct them it may be because it is impossible or some other less worthy reason. At any rate, your pointed reference to them is more likely to hinder than to help. If you don't know how to handle personal criticism in the proper fashion, just lay off. Spend your time in correcting your own faults.—W. C. F.

RUSSIA AND RELIGION

One of the things which puzzles the average American is the fact that so many of the so-called "liberals" in the churches of America as well as out, have been prone during the past few years to look with a kindly eye on the communistic experiment in Russia. Surely the present Russian system has nothing in common with Christianity nor with any other sort of religion for that matter.

And indeed the latest dispatches from the soviet autocratic government would seem to indicate still further effort to make Russsia an atheistic country. Plans have been made by the Supreme Council of Industry in Russia, it is stated, looking toward the abolition of Sunday as a day of rest. Factories, mines and brickyards are to run throughout the week so that there will be continuous industry, and many holidays, especially those having to do with the church, are to be abolished. This will make 260 working days in Russia and a day off per week is to be allowed, one-seventh of the workmen in each industry one day during the week.

Communistic leaders have asserted that a Russian calendar with church holidays is quite out of the question as a permanent institution in the red republic, and that the sooner these are abolished the sooner the people will forget religion. The object of forgetting Christianity is, of course, that it is not in line with the teachings of communism, free love and the destruction of family life.

But this is not all the story. We are informed by press dispatches that the Russian Commissariat of Education recently set aside sums of money to maintain schools wherein the youth of the land would "be enlightened with regard to the non-existence of God and the faults of religion: be taught that religion is a farce and a fraud originated and maintained for the purpose of keeping the workers under the heel of capitalism." Communist Russia also has a "no God" society, the purpose of which is to muster as many people as possible under the banners of no-religion.

It is not certain of course that the plans of the communists will succeed. The Russian peasants have always been intensely religious. But it is to be remembered that the reds are well organized and constantly on the job in everything that they undertake.

When American "liberals," some wearing the cloth, tour Russia as guests of the red republic and come home to tell us about the beauties of communism they generally fail to relate the startling facts as set out above. Either they do not see what is going on in Russia or they purposely suppress part of the truth because under the guise of their "liberalism" they are in sympathy with the anti-religious, anti-family plan of the communists of Russia. At any rate, no real American who believes in the value of religion and the sanctity of the home to civilization ought to be fooled by the platitudes spilled on their return to America by these "week-enders" in Russia. The best evidence of what the reds are trying to do comes from the lips and the pens of the red leaders themselves.

ALIEN PROPAGANDA

There is no excuse to be offered for Wm. M. Shearer and the American ship-building companies which employed him, if, as is charged, Shearer went to Geneva to interfere with a program of international disarmament in behalf of business concerns which hope to profit by the construction of additional warships. There is reason to believe that the influence exerted by Shearer at Geneva and elsewhere has been greatly exaggerated, however, and that he was but a small drop in the bucket of propaganda at the Geneva conference and in the discussion of the questions of national defense and naval parity. There is also reason to believe that Shearer's propaganda, however selfish in its origin, is far less menacing to the country than the vast volume of propaganda, of both foreign and domestic origin, with which this country has been flooded during the last few years in a highly financed and heavily organized effort to break down resistance in the United States to efforts of alien inspiration to sacrifice just American interests to foreign desires. This, after all, is the sort of propaganda which Americans need most to worry about, for it is carried on with a cleverness and on a scale which has attained results of the most important significance.

Geneva, it is true, was a hot-bed of propaganda. For propaganda is a weapon which European diplomats and European commercial interests well know how to employ, and Americans are babes-in-arms in the art of influencing public opinion by concealed and indirect methods, as compared with them. But no amount of propaganda could conceal the fact that the Geneva conference failed for one reason, and one reason only, namely that the representatives of Great Britain would not concede parity as intended at the Washington Arms conference, and the American representatives were too sincerely devoted to the interests of their own country to sacrifice the program to which this country was committed. International ill will is certainly no more the cause of the American desire to secure the naval parity agreed on at the Washington conference, than of the British big navy advocates' determination to avoid it.

An effort has been made to make it appear that because some ship-building companies may have engaged in propaganda, based on selfish motives, in behalf of a ship-building program, the sentiment in this country in behalf of national as against international interests is of sorded origin. We have had no more outspoken propagandists in behalf of an adequate navy than Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt. Surely no one will argue that they were working under the instigation of ship-building interests. On the other hand a thorough investigation would show that propaganda against national interests heavily organized and financed, is one of the most powerful political agencies operating in this country. We even permit the expenditure of millions of dollars in this country in the propaganda and organization, directed from Moscow, of armed insurrection against the government of the United States, until it is beginning to result in bloodshed throughout the nation. So long as the enemies of American safety and prosperity are permitted to pour out millions in behalf of national injury and destruction, surely the friends of American institutions, of American economic independence, of American freedom from the control of selfish foreign commercial and revolutionary propaganda, should be permitted in a land of free speech to have their say without imputations against their honesty and patriotism.

A few years ago an inquiry into propaganda in favor of a subsidy for the American merchant marine was launched in Congress. At the same time propaganda against the governmental fostering of our merchant marine was so successfully carried out that the measure was defeated. When the World War came on our lack of ships cost the American people billions of dollars, creating an annual national interest charge many times the amount proposed as a subsidy. Only one important fact was developed in that inquiry, and that was that British and German shipping interests were paying a large salary to a Washington representative of a great news-gathering association which furnished American newspapers with information from the State, War and Navy Departments.

If all the facts were known as to alien propaganda in the United States the American people would understand why the championship of foreign as against American interests, on such questions as the tariff, immigration, the Monroe Doctrine, national defense, the League of Nations and the like, is so general and so formidable. They would also understand that the organized efforts in behalf of American interests are feeble as compared with the movement against them, and that for every penny spent to educate public opininon along the lines of sound nationalism, a dollar is thrown into the jack-pot of internationalism, anti-nationalism and revolutionary radicalism.

Mayor Fraley Extends City's Welcome to Visitors at Garrett County Fair

The City Officials of Oakland extend to the citizens of Garrett County and neighboring communities a most cordial invitation to visit the Annual Garrett County Fair, to be held in Oakland, October 1, 2, 3, and 4.

The exhibits at the Fair this year are expected to be better than at any of the previous Fairs and the management has arranged for high class entertainment. An added attraction this year will be a double parachute jump from an airplane by a professional parachute artist. This attraction will be a real thriller.

It is the duty of the citizens of the county to give their cooperation toward making the Fair a success. Garrett County's products are second to none and an annual display and an honest effort to advertise these products is bound to result beneficially to every citizen.

Again, on behalf of the City Officials and citizens of Oakland, we extend a cordial invitation to every one to come to Oakland on the above dates.

L. M. FRALEY, Mayor.

MARYLAND NOW HAS NEW FOREST FIRE SYSTEM

Graphing System of Map Locations Inaugurated by Mr. Klein

The first move of its kind to be inaugurated in Maryland forestry supervision has been announced by City Forester C. Cyril Klein, of Frederick, the graphing and arranging of plots through which the exact location of a forest fire may be found as soon as it is detected from two or more stations within the Catoctin and South Mountain areas. The apparatus has been set up in the forester's office at Frederick, and is ready for use whenever it is needed.

The city forester also acts as assistant district forester in charge of fire protection in the Catoctin and South Mountain area, which comprises approximately 150,000 acres of timber land extending through Frederick county and embracing the borders of the adjoining county of Washington. He also has charge of all city forest land, comprising about [illegible] acres. [illegible] and these governmen with some fifty forest rangers compose the remainder of the [illegible] organization.

The new equipment in the Frederick forester's office consists of a map of the forest area, with the three lookout stations at Hamburg, Foxville and Quirauk as centers. The map is designed jointly with separate maps at each of the three lookout towers, with reference to the area of each. Each lookout map is equipped with a protractor sheet which divides the rim of the chart into 360 degrees or parts. In all these diagrams, zero or true north is located as the center of the map, coincident with the tower itself. As a fire is reported, the approximate location is given by the tower keeper, with the reading in degrees. As these readings are telephoned into the office of the Frederick forester, they are plotted on his central chart of the same scale, by means of a cord running from the center of another protractor circle, the center of which is the exact location of the tower. As the reports from two or more towers are received and plotted, the intersection of the cords is taken, as a very accurate location of the fire.

While this method is an innovation in Maryland forestry supervision, it has been very successfully used for some years in the national forests of the west. Each of the fifty wardens in the Western Maryland area is numbered and located on the maps in use, with the aid of a key which is supplied to each tower station. In this way the lookout may call the proper warden or ranger to the scene of a fire as soon as it is sighted.

WASHING OF HANDS WILL PREVENT MANY DISEASES

State Department Adivises Children to Keep Clean

"I wish we could enroll every boy and girl in the State in a Handwashing League," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health said the other day. "We always expect," he continued, "an increase in the communicable diseases among children at the beginning of the school year, when large numbers of children are brought together in close association in the school room and on the playground diseases such as the every-day cold, measles, whooping cough, mumps, chicken pox and even scarlet fever and diphtheria.

"But the children themselves could help keep down the sickness from the 'catching' diseases by cultivating two habits that are of the utmost importance. The first is:

TO WASH THE HANDS OFTEN AND THOROUGHLY, BUT PARTICULARLY BEFORE EATING.

The second is:

TO KEEP THE HANDS AWAY FROM THE MOUTH AND NOSE.

"When you realize that a very large proportion of the illness from communicable diseases is caused by germs that either enter or leave the body by way of the mouth or nose, you can understand why these two health habits are so important. Germs in the secretions from the nose or mouth pass easily from the mouth to the hand and from the hand to whatever or whomever we touch. One of our most effective safeguards against the danger from the hand carried germ is the handwashing habit.

"Very few of us realize how often our hands touch the mouth or nose or find their way to our faces. Dr. C. V. Chapin, one of the most distinguished health officers in this country, speaking of sources and modes of infection, said that if our saliva were colored say an indigo blue instead of being colorless, and if it could color the fingers, most people, because of their bad habit of touching the mouth, moistening of the fingers, etc., would have their fingers tips deeply tinted all of the time.

"Knowing, as we do, that we are either carrying germs away from the mouth or back into it, every time our hands touch our mouths, it would be a good idea for everyone of us grown ups as well as boys and girls to say 'hands off' every time we find our fingers straying up, unnecessarily to our faces."

Jennie Weigand vs. George Weigand. No. 2014 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that on the .... day of ....., 1922, the plaintiff was married to the defendant, with whom she resided in Pennsylvania and elsewhere until March, 1924.

That although the conduct of the plaintiff toward her husband has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond a reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

Thought All City Girls Alike

By ADELAIDE D. HUFF

(Copyright.)

"GEE, golly, this is the deadest place that ever was!" Margaret Adair exclaimed to herself as she sat on the porch of the old farmhouse nd listened to the tiny songs of myriad insects in the dewy grass.

Back home they called her Margaret the Heartless, Margaret the Flapper. All men were grist to her mill, this she openly admitted; but if she had ever once become the least bit interested herself no one ever found out. She knew exactly the route her affairs would take—frank admiration, ardent love-making and subsequent proposal followed by flat refusal.

It was natural that Elmwood farm should prove a trifle monotonous to Margaret, but the doctor had said that a complete rest was essential after her breakdown and had insisted that she be sent where late hours would be impossible and jazz music a thing unknown.

At the sound of footsteps on the graveled walk, Margaret looked through the honeysuckle vines and saw Claire Elmwood and Bill Dickson come slowly up the path. Such a plain little thing, Margaret reflected. How did she manage to get even a country man interested? At the steps they stopped and Bill kissed the girl good night.

"You're the sweetest little thing," he whispered, holding her close, "You love me?"

"Oh, Bill," the girl answered, "how can you love me after seeing that pretty Miss Adair? I was so afraid—I believe I'd die if—"

"Shucks," Bill said. "She couldn't make any fellow love her. She's too stuck on herself. I wouldn't give a snap for a dozen like her."

"So-o-o," thought Margaret, her eyes narrowing in the dark, "I'll have to start a little campaign. Here's some thing to do at last."

In a moment Claire ran into the house, Bill turned and went down the road. Margaret, still half-covered, sat on in the deep shadows and thought. Bill owned half interest in the adjoining farm, she knew, and she had often watched him as he followed the plow, his sunburned, muscular arms bare almost to the shoulder.

The next morning Margaret appeared in her smart knicker suit. She knew how absurdly diminutive she looked in this outfit, and that it was always a sure-fire hit. As soon as breakfast was over, she climbed the fence that divided the two farms and picked her way over the rough, shody ground.

"Good morning," she called as she approached Bill and the team, standing at the end of a row. "I wanted to pat your horses."

She put out a daintily manicured hand and stroked the sleek neck of the nearest horse. The animal shied slightly and Margaret jumped back to safety.

"Oh, he frightened me," she said in a scared little voice.

"He won't hurt you," said Bill protectingly. "I'll hold his bridle. Now, you can pat him all you want."

"I'm awfully lonesome up here," the girl said pensively after a moment. "I'm just dying to take some hikes around here, but I haven't anyone to go with me and I'd be afraid to go alone. I'm crazy to go up on Sunset hill, but—"

"Would you—go with me?" Bill asked after a moment.

"Oh, would you take me?" exclaimed Margaret clapping her hands. "When could we go? Way not after supper tonight?"

"Yes, I reckon that'd be all right. You could meet me over at that oak at the far side of the field. I—Claire—"

"Yes, I know," Margaret answered quickly.

"You're engaged to Claire and she mightn't like it. We won't tell her."

That evening Margaret ran along the edge of the field toward the big oak tree. She found Bill waiting for her.

"You have the most adorable way of smoking a pipe," she greeted him, "It's so—he-mannish or something."

Bill laughed and took her arm as they started off toward Sunset hill. They climbed for an hour or more before reaching the top, then finally dropped on a huge rock to rest.

"It's gorgeous here," she said after a moment, slipping her hand into his. And she was amazed by the thrill his touch gave her.

"You reckon it's wrong when you're engaged to one girl to kiss another?" he asked after a moment.

"Of course not, silly," she laughed.

She felt his arm tighten around her and a second later kisses were raining on her face.

"Bill, you darling," she whispered at last. "Why, why—what's the matter?" she stammered.

"Nothing," he answered. "It's just like I thought. All these city girls are alike. I've been to town once or twice myself. I'd like to see Claire kissin' a fellow she'd never seen more than once or twice in her life and him engaged to another girl at that!"

For a second Margaret stared at him in the dim light of the moon, then suddenly she burst out laughing. "That's the biggest joke on me yet," she said at last.

"I don't see the joke," the man answered irritably.

"No, you wouldn't," Margaret retorted good naturedly.

Behind the Green Curtain

By KATE EDMONDS

(Copyright.)

IT WAS a fashionable bazaar at the beautiful country home of the Forbes family, who were keen about charitable affairs. All the world of society was there, among them Boyd Mercer, one of the richest young men in the country, and one of the best! Everybody liked him, and many scheming mothers thought of him as a desirable husband for young daughters, or, possibly, daughters not so young! Boyd had met a thousand girls, and not one had raised more than a thrill of admiration in his stony heart.

Boyd was here today at the Forbes charity bazaar, and as usual he was wandering around, finding friends and a welcome at every turn. He bought flowers and distributed them to older women, he bought sweets, which he also distributed. He took all sorts of chances and had phenomenal luck, and then, suddenly bored, he wandered off by himself, admiring the soft lighting of the different gay tents.

In one tent he found the smell of fresh violets and was not surprised to discover a great crystal bowl filled with the purple flowers. Within this tent a pale green curtain separated the crystal gazer from her clients, who waited in the outer part of the tent until they were summoned behind the curtain where the "seance" took place. Boyd stood there in the outer tent, gazing down at the bowl of violets, and hearing the sound of a gentle voice nearby. Suddenly he was aware that it must be the voice of the crystal gazer and he listened eagerly, shamelessly, for he was fascinated by the sweetness of the tone with its occasional lilt. Then the voice ceased and he heard a girl's soft laughter, and a merry goodby, then utter silence. At last, a slim mulatto girl in swathings of eastern draperies glided toward him and salaamed. Then as she straightened herself, she swept one arm in a graceful gesture inviting Boyd to enter behind the second green curtain.

Boyd found himself in the presence of a woman, a straight, slim figure, clad in a long mediaval gown of jade green with the lower part of the face hidden in a swathing of white.

The woman lifted such wonderful eyes to Boyd Mercer that for the first time in his carefree bachelorhood, he felt a peculiar sensation in the region of his heart. "Hold it," he told himself savagely, "the rest of her face is most likely hideous. Eyes are deceiving."

"Eyes are the windows of the soul," came the lilting voice of the woman in green, as she sank into a straight, high backed chair that was a fitting throne for her mediaval figure. Her voice had followed so swiftly upon his mental conclusions, that it was just as if she had read his mind.

As she pulled toward her on the green covered table a crystal ball, she looked up and caught his intense gaze with the snare of her unusual eyes. Then she dropped them swiftly and murmured, "Now, I will gaze into the heart of the future and read fortune's gifts for you."

"Well done," Boyd was thinking. "Very well done. I should like to know that girl."

"Deep in the well of silence lie the great secrets. Think not concentrate on nothing—the future will be revealed," came the voice of the crystal gazer.

Boyd lost himself in thoughts of what she was doing, gazing deep, deep, into the crystal's heart. He sat tensely trying to think about nothing—a difficult task for an amateur. Then came the voice again, strange, faraway, as if her mind was in the future and her voice was in sympathy with it. "You have wealth—all the wealth of the world could not make you richer if you were not the poorest man in the world! You have not the love of any woman who is not related to you—you have looked in countless eyes—and looked away. Always you will be alone, surrounded by friends who are fond of you. Your face is here in the crystal, but you are always alone. Fame you may have, for you are talented. Go forth and seek the love of a woman for no fortune teller can tell the fate of a man who—"

Noiselessly Boyd Mercer crossed the rug and stood on the other side of the table. He, too, leaned over the crystal ball and their faces were reflected together in the dark surface.

"Who says that I cannot love, oh, gazer of crystals! Tell me who you are in real life, where you have been all your days that I have never met you before?"

At the sound of the person in his subdued voice, the crystal gazer sighed deeply, then answered lightly, "I have always lived in California. When my people took a trip around the world they left me with your cousin, Mrs. Hilton, who was my godmother! I am Grace Allen. Your interview is over, Sir. A silver dollar for sweet charity's sake!" And then the brown maid was bowing him out, perhaps with subdued laughter in her eyes.

Of course, Boyd Mercer sought and found his cousin, Myra Hilton, and heard about her friend, the crystal gazer. And later, when Grace Allen came from her tent, laughing, radiantly lovely, she held Boyd's cold heart in the hollow of her little warm hands. And she never gave it back to him!

Has The Summer Been An Uneventful One? Asks A Baltimore City Writer, and Suggests That All Prepare For Winter Activity.

To the Editor of The Republican.

"Time to take the cheese cloth from the pictures and mirrors and to get linen covers off the furniture. Summer's about over—ho—hum! Soon things'll be moving again." Perhaps a mid-Victorian actuality, but the spirit behind such a declaration still persists; that is, in urban life, of course. With the farmer it is another story. But it is the urban life which at present gives the most persistent picture of the age. The idea with the major part of the people of the country at large is that in the summer months there comes a hiatus, a long, long swing of the pendulum from activity through a slow nothing-doing, back again to activity. But one wonders.

Is that true, even in social life? Social life has learned to move on from city to shore, to mountain, to camp—no break in between. Then, too, social life has no longer the emphasis it once had. The dial swings to political life and soon will swing to economic. Social life no longer predominates. But has political life been idle this summer of 1929? And can a season be termed idle which has these achievements to its credit?

First might come the reparation question early in June.

And after that:

Plans for establishing an international bank.

Announcement by President Hoover that he would try to bring about a cut in army expenditures.

Steps toward an agreement on a general policy of naval reduction between England and the United States.

Celebration of the tenth anniversary of the League of Nations and laying of the cornerstone for the Palace of Peace.

Acceptance by the Council of Signatory Nations to the League and by the League Assembly of the reservations of the United States in its proposed adherence to the World Court.

Suggestions to the League Assembly as to forming a United States of Europe.

Suggestions to the League Assembly as to calling a world conference on tariff.

As for conferences and congresses like that of the Educational Alliance, of the Advertising Men of the World, of the Universal Postal Union; or for appointments of boards, such as Farm Relief, named by President Hoover; or as to the stunts and achievements of aviation—notably the circling of the globe by the Graf Zeppelin 20,000 miles in 21 days, 8 hours and 26 minutes, including stops—they are too important to mention without including the entire list and too numerous to take up one by one.

The world calendar has become too crowded for any month, week or day to be left unmarked.

But where does all this tend?

An important authority declares "toward the elimination of war, toward world disarmament, and toward

WAS. ..NG OF HANDS WIV PREVENT MANY DISERTY

State Department Adv Preston dren to Keep ..nties, W.

"I wish we could in October and girl in the St.. ing League." Dr. ost important suits of the State the Preston County said the oth.. according to last pert." he issue of the Kingwood the ..ge Hughes at a special ses- the court held last week, en- childr.. decree for the sale of the vast ..dall Lumber Company properties ..ated in Preston and Monongalia ounties, W. Va. The action is a re- sule of a suit brought by Attorney J. V. Gibson on behalf of the Rowles- burg Grocery Company and other creditors, and involves property esti- mated to be worth more than half a million dollars. The sale will be held on October 19th, according to the decree of the Court.

The report of Charles P. Wilhelm, special commissioner in the case, was considered at a special term of court held Tuesday by Judge Hughes. Two exceptions to the report were made by P. J. Crogan on behalf of the Evans Manor Land Company and S. B. Weil- er, of Pittsburgh. These exceptions which were both upheld by Judge Hughes at the special session, were relative to the priority of a lien on the Kendall properties by reason of the payment of the 1927 taxes by the land company amounting to some $5,000. Payment was made to protect the vast holdings from being returned delinquent and the Court sustained Mr. Crogan's contention. The other exception to Mr. Wilhelm's report made by Mr. Crogan was whether all lands purchased subsequent to the making of the deed of trust should be subject to the trust and the Court held all the landds were covered by the deed of tr..

The property involved in the suit, which was brought by Mr. Gibson at a recent term of court, includes more than 18,000 acres of virgin timber land in Preston and Monongalia coun- ties and is valued at more than a half million dollars. A large mill near Cheat Haven is also owned by the Kendall interests.

The suit is styled Rowlesburg Gro- cery Company vs. the Kendall Lum- ber Company, and was brought by J. V. Gibson on behalf of small credi- tors in Preston county.

There are three deeds of trust aga..st part or all of the property. Clayton and Brown, of Philadelphia, brokers, represented by Frank Cox of Morgantown, hold two first mortga- ges, totalling $50,000, secured by liens on the J. M. Guffey and Chess tracts. S. B. Weiler, of Pittsburgh, and the Evans Manor Land Company, of Pitts..rgh, each hold bonds amount- ing to $100,000 offered by the lumber ..mpany to secure loans amounting to $200,000.

The deed of trust securing the bonds contained a clause which pro- vided that all property acquired by the company after the deed was made Mar.. 15, 1927, would be covered by the mortgage. The commissioner held that property acquired by the c.. after the mortgage be- came effective would be covered by the deed of trust, but ruled out five or ..x tracts which were not specifically described.

Inclusion in the tract which Mr. Crogan argued should be subject to the deed of trust of his clients, is the Cunningham tract which the Kendall company purchased on December 15, 1927, nine months after the deed of trust was executed. The tract lies between the Cheat Haven mill and uncut timber in Preston county. The land is crossed by a narrow gauge railroad owned by the company, but no right of way has been granted for the track.

At the March, 1928, term of court the Rowlesburg Grocery Company se- cured a judgment against the lumber company. In May following the deed for the Cunningham tract was re- corded.

Mr. Crogan also asked that his cli- ents be given priority along with back taxes and costs in a claim for $5,000. His clients paid 1927 taxes amounting to approximately $5,000. Mr. Crogan argued that his clients had to pay the taxes to protect their interests. The payment was to prevent a tract being returned delinquent.

Special Commissioner Wilhelm, in his report, recommended that the Kendall holdings be sold either in sep- arate tracts or as a whole. There was considerable argument among the attorneys regarding the terms of the sale. Mr. Cox requested that the two tracts securing Clayton and Brown be sold separately for cash.

The two deeds of trust held by the Philadelphia firm specify that the sale may be for cash. It was pointed out, however, that in order to secure max- imum of sale and to protect other ..dors, the ..dge, in a court of ..ity, could disregard such a clause.

There was another clash of at..r- neys over offering the holdings in tracts as a whole. Mr. Cox and S. Fuller Gla..cock, trustees of the Clay- ton and Brown mortgages, both ar- gued that the J. M. Guffey and the Chess tracts should be offered sepa- rately so that Clayton and Brown might either bid in the property or secure their money.

The Court finally declared that the decree of sale would be prepared to protect all creditors and not merely a few of them.

An effort made by the Kendall com- pany to amend its original answer was unsuccessful. In the amended answer, the company sought to deny the claims of Weiler and the Evans Manor Land Company. In the original answer the claims were admitted. Mr. Crogan argued the amended answer should not be admitted because it contained nothing to indicate that the company had come into any new in- formation it did not have at the time the original answer was submitted.

The Kendall Lumber Company never went into a receivership, but was simply forced to suspend busi- ness because of the pressing claims of creditors.

The case under consideration by the Kingwood judge was brought in- to court by the suit of the Rowles- burg Grocery Company and was re- ferred to Special Commissioner Wil- helm at the November term last year. Mr. Wilhelm held hearings to take depositions in Kingwood and Pitts- burgh and last month completed his 100-page report.

The above, taken from last week's issue of the Kingwood Argus, will be read with regret by many Garrett countians as in years gone by the Kendall Lumber Company, operating large mills at Crellin and also at Kendall, in this county, contributed very largely to the employment and welfare of hundreds of men.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Police Protection Needed.

We wonder what the Annual Com- mittee is going to do about leaving more light during the winter to illu- minate our streets and providing some police protection. This wonderment is occasioned by the fact that there was another near-robbery in the Park the other night. A noise disturbed one of the lady guests and she arose and switched on a light. As this was done she looked out of the window and saw a car containing two girls and two men moving off. The next morning an examination revealed the fact that the putty had been removed and a pane of glass taken out of the sash of a window and carefully laid upon the ground. A good fat hen disappeared from the same premises the same night.

It is mighty inconvenient and exas- perating to have chickens disappear, but there is slight danger from a chicken thief. But when thieves be- come so bold as to attempt to enter an inhabited house in the night time it is evident they will leave nothing undone to successfully accomplish the purpose they may have in mind.

While we have said privately, and in this column, that we are of the firm opinion that the Annual Committee is composed of men of the highest type aand of strictly honest inten- tions, yet we are just as firmly of the opinion that some plan should be devised by them to protect the lives and property of the citizens of this community.

It will certainly be a relief to be able to report some definite favorable action in this column.

OFFICIALS STUDY STREAM POLLUTION IN GARRETT

Inquiry Begun In Western Maryland Following Complaints—Earle Makes Inspection Trip

Investigations are being carried on by the Conservation Department of Maryland to determine the cause for the death of numbers of fish in the Youghiogheny and Potomac Rivers in Garrett county, Swepson Earle, conservation commissioner, stated Saturday. Complaints of stream pollution had been received at the office of the commission from both Garrett and Allegany counties, according to information received at The Republican office. Mr. Earle returned to Baltimore Saturday from an inspection trip to this section of Maryland.

Abnormal Condition

"It is believed that while drouth cannot be blamed directly for pollution, the low state of the streams due to the lack of water during the month of August has caused a condition to exist that normal rainfall would have prevented," Mr. Earle explained.

"The Conservation Department has many complaints from early spring until fall relative to pollution. I have decided that it is necessary to have a sanitary engineer run down these complaints and to determine the source which aggravates the cause.

"Delay in following up the complaints or the delay in being able to run down the direct cause often makes it impossible to place the blame."

The complaint as to the number of dead fish in the Youghiogheny River came from the Friendsville section, where it was said that three weeks ago dead fish by the hundreds had lined the banks of the stream. All species of fish were victims of the pollution.

Different From Bay

"Since the department has been active in stocking the streams of Western Maryland with fish," Mr. Earle stated, "it naturally has had to deal with the pollution question in this part of the State, which is entirely different from the Chesapeake Bay pollution.

"Pollution is a serious menace to fish life and the department is doing everything possible to run down the cause."

TRIP THRU HEALTHLAND MAY BE TAKEN AT FAIR

Public Health Nurse Has Unique Exhibit at Fair Grounds

A trip through Healthland, via the Garrett County Electric Limited, may be taken any day during this week in the northwest room on the second floor of the exhibit building at the Fair grounds, Oakland, where Miss Rhesa King, public health nurse, has located her offices for the period of the fair.

The trip starts at Bathtubville and passes through Drinkwater Springs, Cercaltown, Hot Soup Springs, Play Meadows, Spinach Greens, Baked Potato Hill, Bookland, Milky Way and Long Sleep Mountain. This little railroad was constructed for Miss King by Bernard Gonder, Jr., and Elvin Iman, two Scouts, and is attracting much attention among the children and grown-ups as well, it was stated.

Miss Ruth Martin, who is assisting in public health work at Kitzmiller temporarily, contributed to the exhibits in the room with two ladders, one depicting the way to health and happiness by rungs of cleanliness, proper food, proper amount of sleep, etc., and the other one depicting the way to illness and unhappiness.

Literature concerning a number of diseases is available to anyone who visits the health department of the fair.

To Decide Concerning Band Uniforms at Meeting of Auxiliary

For the purpose of determining whether or not it will be possible to supply uniforms for members of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, a meeting of the Band Auxiliary will be held next Tuesday evening, October 8, at 9:00 o'clock, R. R. Gilbert, director, has announced.

A report made at a meeting held last Tuesday, at which there were approximately fifteen members present, showed that fourteen uniforms had already been promised by people interested in the band and by members of the auxiliary.

Everybody who is interested in the band in any way is invited to attend the meeting next Tuesday, Mr Gilbert said.

FIREMEN MAKING PLANS FOR HALLOWE'EN JUBILEE

Mammoth Mummers' Parade and Street Whoopee To Be Staged

Preliminary plans for the Hallowe'en celebration and whoopee, to be held on October 31, under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, are now under way, according to Walter W. Dawson, a member of the committee in charge.

"We are planning on the biggest mummers' parade ever to be held in Oakland," Mr. Dawson said, "and the celebration will be a lively one for all concerned."

Second street will be roped off for the street carnival and there will be a number of concessions and amusements along the thoroughfare. A dance is being planned to be held in Fraley's Hall for both round and square dancing.

The hope chest, donated by the Bolden Company and filled with articles donated by the women of Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, now on display in the window at the Monongahela System office, will be given away on that night. Every articles in the chest is a treasure and will be appreciated by all upon sight.

The Hallowe'en celebration last year was held under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias and took the place of the annual Labor Day picnic, but this year it has been turned over to the Fire Department.

CLERKS ARE KEPT BUSY ISSUING HUNTING PERMITS

One Hundred Twenty Applied for In One Day at Court House

Monday, the day prior to the opening of the squirrel season in Garrett county, was the busiest day for the issuance of hunting licenses that there has ever been in the history of the license bureau, according to E. Z. Tower, Clerk. One hundred and twenty applications were given permission to hunt on that day.

There have been more than 500 hunting licenses issued since early fall, the majority of these being issued to county residents. Ten State-wide permits have been granted and 13 to non-residents of the State.

The squirrel season in Garrett is from October 1 to November 9, inclusive. Dove may also be hunted between these dates. It is unlawful to hunt wild turkey and partridges in Garrett county until the lawful open season in 1931, according to the game laws of Maryland.

A state deer with six-inch antlers may be killed in Garrett county December 1 to December 3, inclusive, but only one per season is allowed each person having taken out a license. The rabbit season opens November 10.

SCOUT TROOP INSPECTION TO TAKE PLACE TOMORROW

Court of Honor is Scheduled to Meet Monday Evening Next

The monthly inspection of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will be held at the Scout hall tomorrow evening. Members of the troop will be marked for neatness, uniform, dues and scout activities during the past month, and patrol having the highest percentage will be known as the "Distinguished Patrol" until the next inspection.

The regular meeting of the Court of Honor will be held on Monday, October 7, Harland L. Jones, chairman, has announced. Approximately ten first and second class scouts will apply for merit badges. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock at the Scout Hall.

Stuart Hamill, Jr., was made a First Class Scout at the regular meeting last Friday, and Carroll Casteel, a Tenderfoot. "Buddy" Hamill is the first boy since last December to be passed to the rank of First Class, he being one of a large number who joined the troop at that time. He has one merit badge already, that of swimming.

Two new applicants were received at the meeting last week: Robert Utterback, Mt. Lake Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Utterback, and Geo. Butz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Butz, of Oakland. Both will pass their Tenderfoot requirements within the next few weeks and be enrolled as members of the troop.

Teacher Training Course To Be Conducted November 17

Dr. Robert Davids, general secretary of the Maryland Council of Religious education, met with the Oakland religious council last evening in the Presbyterian church, and laid definite plans for a Standard Teacher's Training course to be held in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oaklandd, the week of November 17.

Three courses will be offered: 1. Material Primary Methods, by Miss Lillian McCormick, Baltimore; 2. Old Testament Introduction; 3. Principles of Teaching, Rev. Simon Snyder, Wheeling, W. Va.

AFTER PEACEFUL INTERLUDE, CATS ARE AGAIN BEING CARRIED TO EDGE OF TOWN AND DROPPED

Following several months of peace from the usual concert rendered from the back yard fence in the dead of night, there seems to be a possibility of its return, especially in sections just at the edge of town, according to reports from farmers and residents in these localities.

The feline species, which became so rare following a complaint about this time last year, is again invading the outlying sections surrounding the town and are bent upon destruction of wild life and anything else that may tend to allay hunger.

Last September a complaint was registered at The Republican office accusing a large number of Oakland people with depositing kittens, some too young to get food for themselves and others old enough to find food and wise enough to go to the hen houses for it, at the edge of town.

People who did not have the heart to drown the frequent additions to their cat family, had no compunction whatever in giving someone else the trouble of taking care of them, until after a complaint was raised. Then the "big parade" was stopped.

Now, after "marking time" for a number of months, it looks like they are again making a drive on the people at the edge of town. There must be one reason only for it. Winter is coming and there aren't enough old maids and fireplaces in Oakland to take care of them properly.

There is only one sure way of getting rid of a cat—shoot it nine times.

FAIR DATES TO INCLUDE SATURDAY, WITH EXHIBITS MORE NUMEROUS THAN EVER AND OF HIGHEST QUALITY

Grantsville Postoffice Moves To New Quarters

The Grantsville postoffice, which has been located since July, 1922, in a small building on the G. A. Younkin property, has been moved into a new brick building just completed by L. G. Bittinger, on the opposite side of the street. The postoffice is 22x28 feet in size, well lighted and heated, with the latest designed equipment for postoffices. There are 73 combination lock boxes and 96 call boxes, two windows and parcel post department.

The room formerly occupied has become crowded since the rural mail routes were instituted and the increased amount of parcel post and other mail matter handled as a consequence. In the new building there will be plenty of room, it is said, and will be convenient for the postmaster and his assistants.

Stewart Rodamer has been postmaster for seven years and many improvements have been made since he stepped into the position.

U. S. COURT SENTENCES VIOLATORS OF LIQUOR LAW

Alphonse Borelli To Serve 45 Days In Jail—Mrs. Philip Crissinger Placed on Parole

A number of Garrett county liquor law violators were given jail sentences and fines during the present session of the United States District Court at Cumberland, Alphonse Borelli, Oakland; Mrs. Jennie Dekleva, of Kitzmiller, and Richard Riggleman, of near Bayard, being given jail sentences, and William S. ("Western Bill") Harvey, James Nally and Mrs. Gracia Borelli, Oakland, being subject to fines. Mrs. Philip Crissinger, of Oakland, was paroled.

George Bittinger, of the Bear Hill country, was another Garrett countian to receive a jail sentence.

Judge William C. Coleman was on the bench. He later modified the sentence of Mrs. Jennie Dekleva, of Kitzmiller, who was sentenced to serve 75 days in jail on Monday for manufacture and possession of liquor, to six months' parole. The woman, a foreigner, does not speak English, and her 15-year old daughter, who stood by her side interpreted the decision of Judge Coleman to her mother.

James Nally, Oakland, charged with the sale of liquor, first entered a plea of not guilty, but later changed his plea to that of guilty, and was fined $10, without costs.

Alphonse Borelli and Mrs. Gracia Borelli, his wife, possession, nuisance, 45 days in jail in the case of Borelli; Mrs. Borelli, $50 and costs.

Mrs. Marguerite Kight, who was indicted on a possession charge, was not tried.

The Court recessed last night with twenty cases going over until the term next May.

Because of the crowded condition of the Cumberland jail, twenty-two of the number given jail sentences for violation of the Volstead Act, are to be brought to the Garrett County Jail to serve their terms.

Oakland Rotary Club Congratulates Boys' Clubs

Boys' clubs in Garrett county were congratulated by the Oakland Rotary club, after a visit of the Boys' Work committee had been made to the Garrett County Fair, where a number of exhibits are being shown. Rev. Shilke, in a congratulatory note to this paper, says:

"The potato clubs, sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, have some wonderful exhibits and are a credit to the county. We congratulate Ernest Hauser, Friendsville, for winning first place. The local boy scouts have a very attractive exhibit and other boys' work in high school exhibits are also commendable.

"The Oakland Rotary club is at all times ready to assist in the organization and promotion of agricultural clubs, calf, sheep, chicken, potato clubs, orchestras, boys' bands, Boy scouts, and other worthwhile organizations."

Mammoth Parade of All Floats And Cars to be Held Tomorrow Morning at 10 O'clock

In order that the people of Garrett county may see the exhibits at the Fair grounds, which are four times as numerous as they have ever been and of the highest quality ever shown, and due to the inclemency of the weather during the first two days, the dates of the Thirteenth annual Garrett county agricultural Fair will be extended to include Saturday, H. M. Speicher, manager, stated yesterday.

Mammoth Parade Tomorrow

A mammoth parade, including the decorated cars which were to have been in the Automobile Day parade, the school children who were to have been in the School Day parade, the floats of the business men, and the annuals and floats of the Farmers' Day parade, will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock, according to the latest announcement from Henry Speicher, the Fair manager.

It was thought at first that Saturday would be termed School Day and a parade of the school children held then, but it was finally decided to have one large parade on Friday, including everything.

"While attendance the early part of the week has been practically nothing, it is hoped that many will take advantage of today, tomorrow and Saturday to inspect the most attractive exhibits ever placed in the Fair," Mr. Speicher said.

"In the cattle, horse and other live stock departments there are some of the finest specimens I have seen anywhere, and the quality of agricultural products, household articles, domestic arts, club work exhibits, etc., cannot be bettered in any county in Maryland or many other states."

Amusements to Remain

All amusements and free attractions will remain until the end of the week, and the parachute jumper will make his leap on Saturday. Weather permitting there will be a number of horse races in addition, Mr. Speicher stated. Five ponies were brought to the Fairgrounds on Wednesday, especially for racing, and they will run on Saturday if possible.

Five Grange Booths

There are five grange booths this year, which is the largest number since the inauguration of the Fair. Some of the finest potatoes ever seen in this section, according to a number of spectators, can be inspected in the department exhibiting those of the Certified Seed Potatoe clubs of the county. These potatoes occupy practically one whole room.

Grains are exhibited in great quantities, vegetables, fruits, etc., are numerous and the women have entered a large display of jellies, preserves, bread, cakes and other foodstuffs. The fancy work and art departments are more than filled, and those in charge say that this is a real agricultural fair.

Awards in the different classes were made on Tuesday and will be announced and listed in next week's issue of The Republican. Winners of special premiums will also be listed.

Friendsville High School Wins Judging Contest

Friendsville High school vocational agriculture team won the annual dairy cattle judging contest, at the Fair grounds, Oakland, yesterday, with a score of 830, while its nearest rival was the Oakland team which scored 583 points. Accident was third with 570 points.

Mr. J. A. Conover, dairy specialist, University of Maryland, acted as judge. As a result of the placing Friendsville wins a silver loving cup for the third time, making it permanent property. Individual prizes were $5 to Bruce Jenkins, Friendsville, first; $3 to Lawrence Bittinger, Oakland, second; $2 to Samuel Miller, Accident, third. Ernest Hauser, who won first cash prize last year was ineligible to win this year.

The teams were composed of the following: Accident, Everett Weitzel, Samuel Miller, Albert Buckel; Friendsville, Bruce Jenkins, Ernest Hauser, Carroll Rush; Oakland, Lawrence Bittinger, William Spiker, George Porter.

Mr. Jonas H. Knox, of near Accident, was here Monday when he called at The Republican office on business.

Lesson for October 6

RECOGNIZING OUR DEBTS TO OTHERS

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping One Another.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping One Another.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Do We Owe to Others?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fulfilling Our Obligation to Others.

The sum total of human duty as set forth by Christ in Matthew 22:34-40 is love to God and one's neighbor. This comprehends every conceivable relationship and responsibility of life. The measure of love to God is the whole capacity of man to love. The measure of love to one's neighbor is one's love for himself.

I. Loving God (Mark 12:28-30).

Man's first duty is to God. The word which sums up his duty to God is love. By loving is meant a sincere desire for and a delight in the welfare of the one loved, and a willingness to do everything possible to further it. Love is not a sentimental emotion, but an ardent passion which absolutely sways the one who loves. When one is swayed by the passion to please, honor and glorify God, he is loving Him with his whole heart, strength and mind. To fail to render full obedience to this, the first and great commandment, is to be guilty of committing the greatest sin. By this test we can readily estimate our freedom from sin. Determined by this standard, all are guilty before God. We should put God first in all of life's relationships.

II. Loving Our Neighbor (Mk. 12:31-34).

This obligation is like unto the obligation to God in that it centers in love. The measure of love is not the same. The measure of love to God is the absolute limit of human capacity. That unto our neighbor is "as thyself." Our neighbor is a finite being, therefore the love is not absolute. Who is my neighbor? This is answered by the story of the good samaritan in Luke 10:30-37. Our neighbor is one who is in need of our help. It is not a question of where he lives, but of his need of help. Some of the ways we can love our neighbor, as suggested by the texts selected by the lesson committee, are:

1. By co-operation (Neh. 4:15-23).

The walls of Jerusalem needed to be rebuilt. The task was great and the enemies strong. Nehemiah could not have done it alone, though working all the days of his life, but "every one unto his work" made the walls a reality in a short time. Racial solidarity is a reality. "No man liveth unto himself," therefore human life is lived at its best in co-operation with one another.

2. By the strong bearing the infirmities of the weak (Rom. 15:1-7).

By this means we build up each other. We are given strength, not to use for ourselves, but that we may help sustain the weak. We are not to please ourselves. Our supreme example in this is Jesus Christ. If He had pleased Himself, He never would have come down to earth, taken our nature and suffered the shame of the cross. The rich are to help the poor. Indeed, some are made rich in order that they may intelligently render helpful service to the poor.

3. By rendering lowly service (Phil. 2:1-9).

The supreme business of life is to serve, not to be served. Christ came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (Mark 10:45). Christ, though equal with God, humbled Himself to become the servant of men. The human mind is naturally selfish, therefore the only way man can possibly render lowly service to others is to have the mind of Christ. The only way this mind can be in us is as Christ is in us, the Lord of our lives.

4. By rendering justice to everyone (Col. 3:12; 4:1).

All our fellows have rights which must be recognized to accomplish which the elect of God must put on a mind of mercy and kindness (Col. 3:12). This kind of treatment finds illustration in our home relationships—wives and husbands, parents and children, masters and servants. Failure to render justice is a source of discord and confusion.

5. By giving to others (Jas. 2:14-17).

Christianity shows itself in practical living and charitable giving. To profess to have faith and be destitute of practical deeds is to give the lie to our profession.

Brothers All

During the World war a desperately wounded German and an equally desperately wounded Englishman were lying on the field side by side. They heard each other murmur "Mutter" and "Mother," and through ignorant of each other's language they found in "mother" a word that made them brothers. They made each other feel that they must pray together, and together they prayed "Unser Vater der bist im Himmel!" and "Our Father which art in heaven."

Emily and the West

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

EMILY sat with her eyes glued to the flying landscape as the great transcontinental train bore her across the plains.

For a girl whose previous wanderings had been limited to an occasional trolley ride between her own home town and the city some fifteen miles away, this sudden journey carried elements of drama.

Her entire equipment for the affair consisted of a wardrobe done in the best manner of the local dressmaker, a chamois bag about her neck containing what was left after paying for her ticket of the money sent by Uncle Will, and a mind stored with much reading of so-called "Western fiction."

The wardrobe was the least important item. Emily's great gray eyes, her delicate nose, her comehither mouth would have surmounted any inadequates of raiment.

The money—well, of course, that was an essential without which, along with Uncle Will's invitation to spend a summer on his Wyoming ranch, Emily would still be back home, playing the piano for Jane Stiles, the kindergartner, and trying to make up her mind whether or not to marry Brent Appleton, embryo druggist.

But it was the hours that Emily had spent poring over tales of the Great West that were now coloring the whole trip for her. Not a horseman on the horizon but became for Emily a rope-throwing, bronco-busting cowboy.

Her fellow passengers, especially a pleasant looking young man in the seat opposite, could not help but be amused at Emily's enthusiasms. The young man, Philip Granger, found himself watching her even as she watched the scenery.

Suddenly, just after the train had left behind a tiny town consisting of a station, six or seven other buildings and a grain elevator, and was pulling up a slight grade that signalled an approach to more rugged country, the cars stopped with a jerk and a grinding of brakes that all but threw down one or two passengers standing in the aisle.

Philip got up and, hands in his pocket, sauntered toward the front of the car. He was halted by the sound of a clear, sweet voice making itself heard above the general hubbub. "It's probably a holdup. Better hide your money and your jewels!"

The laugh which followed relieved the tension, but Philip noticed that, although Emily flushed at the derision with which her warning was greeted, she did not appear convinced of her mistake. "It's a holdup," she insisted. "You'll see—"

At that instant, the door in the rear of the car was flung open. Two masked men, holding aimed revolvers, entered.

"Hands up!"

Grins at Emily's remark had long ago faded from all faces. White-faced women and impotent, raging men were swiftly relieved of purses, watches, rings.

Then they were gone. The passengers saw them join half a dozen similarly masked companions and gallop off into the hills.

Emily became the center of attention. It was Philip, however, who asked the question that trembled on all lips. "How did you know it was a holdup, Miss—"

"Tremont!" supplied Emily promptly. (What a handsome person this young man was—a truly western type!) "What else could it possibly be?" she continued. "A stop on a grade in the hills! Not another town for miles!"

Philip shook his head. "My dear young lady," he said firmly, "I have made this trip twice a year for twelve summers and this is the first episode of this kind I ever witnessed!"

Emily considered his words meekly for a moment. Then she recovered. "I expected to be held up from the minute we reached Chicago," she declared, "and was prepared. I carried my money around my neck and the instant the train stopped I took off my rings and sat on them!"

Philip, who was going to the coast, got off to carry her bag for her.

"I'll run down and see you, if I may, next winter," he said, holding her slim hand a minute longer than the law allowed. "My home is in Cambridge. This is merely the way I spend my vacations!" True western type indeed!

Presently, she was being helped into a great monster of a car by genial Uncle Will. She had hoped to be met with a buckboard and team.

Philip she never saw again. Brent married Jane Stiles, the kindergartner. As for Emily—

Emily took to writing western fiction for The West as She Is Magazine and, in due time, married its editor.

To Insure Prompt Service

Mr. Foster—Why are you trying to phone my office at this time in the morning? There's nobody there.

His Wife—I know what I'm doing. I'll want to tell you when dinner will be ready this evening, and if I commence now I'll get the connection just in time.

Pride and Prunes

By JANE GRAY

(Copyright.)

MRS. WELLES looked at her four daughters with an inquiring expression. They looked very well—very pretty, one might say—although their clothes were obviously last year's style. The Welles family had suffered reverses since the death of the husband and father.

"What do you think of my plan?" asked Mrs. Welles at last.

"It's awful," groaned Madge. "I never expected we would come to keeping boarders."

"And I particularly detest prunes," complained Cicely.

"We might make it a prunedess boarding house," and Della went off into a peal of merry laughter at her own wit, but her charming face clouded at once as she saw the disappointment in her mother's countenance. Were those new lines on her mother's placid brow? Lines of care and worry—with four idle daughters? Della stiffened in a manrod way, that was like her father.

"We can do it if we want to," she said bluntly. "We're too lazy for words—all of our friends, rich and poor, are working—none of us are qualified to take up any special line of work and taking paying guests is respectable; we can keep our own home, reserve some rooms out of this big house for ourselves. Mother can superintend everything, I can help the cook in the kitchen, Molly and Barbara can wait on table and take care of rooms at first until we can afford to keep another maid, and Cicely shall keep all the accounts and sew for the rest of us. Who will join the league of workers?

With more or less reluctance they all agreed, but Cicely, the clever needle woman, pouted. "People make such foolish jokes about prunes and boarding houses—and oh, dear—I suppose I must join, too!"

Della called them the "band of unwilling workers," but her enthusiasm soon whipped them into line with the new enterprise, and they were encouraged by their friends.

Everything was planned in advance, and every room was rented before they were ready to receive "guests."

The girls were happy. Mrs. Welles was relieved of financial worry, and money seemed to flow into the cash box in a steady stream. Table boarders came from the neighborhood, and the Welles' place achieved a reputation.

For six months everything went well; never a word of complaint reached the family, and never a prune appeared upon the table.

Madge became engaged to a young college professor and Cicely was sewing on her sister's modest trousseau. Della, who called herself Cinderella, was dubbed Cinders by the rest of the family, became famous for her delicious pastry and sang like a thrush over her work in the kitchen.

One day the singing stopped and the singer dropped her pretty head. One of the guests was going to leave—and he had given no reason beyond the fact that his mother needed a change. Mr. Payton was young and attractive. He worked in the local bank and had a bright future. His mother was a robust old lady whom they all loved, but lately she had lost interest in life. She declared she was going out West to live with her married daughter and that would leave young Payton alone.

"I hate to leave Robert. No one knows what foolish girl he might fall in love with," Mrs. Payton had confided to Mrs. Welles. "One of your daughters now—"

The two elderly ladies did not know it, but one of the daughters—pretty Cinders herself—had captured Robert's heart and lost her own in exchange.

"When he leaves, he will forget all about me in the kitchen," mourned Della.

She lifted her floury hands for inspection, and then dropped them in confusion, for Robert Payton was looking into the vine-covered window of the butler's pantry where Della made her pastry. He poked his head through the vines, caught Della's floury hands and kissed them.

"Oh—" Della began to cry a little, and then told him all her woes. "There is an undercurrent of—something. The boarders are dissatisfied—the food is good—abundant, and we have variety—"

A slow grin spread over Payton's face. "Two things lacking, sweetheart—will you marry me if I tell you? You know I love you?"

"I will, anyway!" dared Della happily. "Tell me—what is the matter?"

"Prunes!" hissed Mr. Payton, "and baked beans! I know—because I want 'em myself."

Della stared. "We haven't any in the house—we wouldn't serve them."

"I'll get them now—we'll have 'em for dinner—and after dinner—is this your evening off, Miss Cinders?"

"Yes," whispered Della happily.

"I want to tell you the rest of the story of us two! In the meantime, to my errand—prunes and beans, hurrah!"

And Della began to sing like a nightingale. Once in awhile she stopped and laughed. "Prunes and beans—prunes and pride!"

Pumpkin Pie.

Plain pastry, 2 cups cooked and strained pumpkin, 1 cup milk, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, 3 egg whites, 1¼ teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon of cloves, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt. Line a pie pan with plain pastry and pinch with fingers to make a fancy edge. Mix the pumpkin and milk together. Add the beaten egg yolks. Add the sugar mixed with the cinnamon, cloves, ginger, nutmeg and salt. Mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into the pie pan. Bake in a quick oven 10 minutes, reduce heat to hot oven and bake 20 minutes longer or until the filling is firm.

Date Bread Pudding

Two cups scalded milk, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 2 egg yolks (or 1 whole egg), 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup (¼ pkg.) sliced dates. Prepare the bread by crumbling pieces from a stale loaf; never use oven-dried bread crumbs for a delicate bread pudding. Soak the crumbs in the scalded milk while beating the eggs slightly. Add the sugar and salt to the eggs and enough of the scalded milk to dissolve the sugar. Pour the egg and sugar mixture into the remainder of the scalded milk. Add the dates and vanilla. Pour into a lightly buttered baking dish or into individual custard cups set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven until firm, about 15 minutes. Serve with hard sauce, lemon sauce, or cream (plain or whipped), or cover the top with halved marshmallows and return to the oven until they are puffed and brown. This recipe will serve six.

Baked Date Pudding

One cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup (½ pkg.) sliced dates, ½ cup nut meats, 1 egg, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Mix the sliced dates and chopped nuts through the flour with finger tips. Beat the egg, continue beating while adding the sugar gradually. Stir in the milk and vanilla. Add the dry ingredients, dates and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Spread the mixture over the surface of a well-oiled or greased shallow pan to form a layer about one inch thick. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Cut in squares when cold and serve with whipped cream or a tiny ball of vanilla ice cream. This recipe will serve six.

Jewish New Year

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins Friday evening. This will be the beginning of the year 5690 and will be observed by Jews throughout the entire world.

Reform Judiasm observes the Holy Day, as specified in the Bible, for one day, while the orthodoxy set aside two days. Unlike the New Year's Day of January 1, the Jewish New Year's Day is a religious occasion of great solemnity.

QUALITY WILL TELL

Had the Garrett county fair done nothing more than show potato growers just what their prospects might be in this county if they would follow in the footsteps of the members of the certified seed potato clubs, then it would not have been held in vain.

All of which is proof that the Fair was not held in vain, for even a casual observer, passing through the room where the potatoes were being exhibited, would see the great difference in the potatoes exhibited by the members of the boys' clubs and those exhibited by other farmers of the county.

This is not said to the disparagement of the potatoes which the older farmers exhibited. They had good potatoes and have always had since the beginning of the Fairs thirteen years ago. But there is just one difference. The boys' potatoes were better.

The boys took every precaution with their potatoes. First they planted certified seed, they checked them for disease, they sprayed and dusted when necessary, and now the result can be seen, and the county agent states that the cost of production and the time spent in tending them is no greater than that spent by the average farmer. But the boys will get 50 to 75 cents higher on each bushel.

This is just one example of the value of an agricultural fair, and a great lesson is there for anyone who wishes to see it. By seeing the best in everything and striving to reach that goal, all of Garrett county's products will eventually be on a par with the best in the United States.

Your Child And Its School

SOME HINTS TO PARENTS

Arrange the breakfast and lunch hours so that there is no rushing at home or to school.

Encourage punctuality and regular attendance, not permitting trifles to interfere.

See that the children are dressed simply, neatly, modestly and suitably in accordance with the weather.

Insist upon children under fourteen having at least ten hours' sleep.

Find out how much time should be devoted to home work, and see that it is done.

Provide a quiet place for home study, with good light and ventilation. Prevent interruptions as far as possible.

Show an interest in the children's school work, athletics and other activities.

Visit the classroom during American Education Week, and at other times, for a better understanding of conditions.

Do not criticize the teachers or school at all within the children's hearing. Always hear both sides of every question and ask the teacher about it.

Instill in the children habits of obedience and respect for authority.

Picture the school as a happy, desirable place, rather than as one children should dread.

Keep in mind that the schools offer unlimited opportunities to those who take advantage of them, parents as well as pupils.

Plan to meet other parents in the school. It will help you understand your children better. Mothers should arouse the interest of fathers in the school activities and get their cooperation. If there is a parent-teacher association in your children's school, join it. If there is none, why not form one? Intelligent cooperation brings splendid results to all.

STATE ROADS WILL CARRY NUMBERS AND NOT NAMES

Maryland Complies With U. S. Request In Aiding Tourists

Numbers and not names will be used by the State Roads Commission for many years to come to designate the different highway routes of the State. Many requests have been made to name the highways after illustrious citizens, but this plan is not practical and will not be adopted, according to the State Roads Commission.

Harry D. Williar, Jr., chief engineer of the commission, said that the touring public will have to forget that the National Highway is the National Highway and remember that it is officially Route 40. The same is to be true with all State highways.

This change, Mr. Williar declared, was caused by a request from the Federal Government that the states would cooperate in numbering highways in such a manner that they conform to the numbers assigned to national highways to enable tourists to pass from one state to another without becoming confused by mixing numbers and names of highways.

The Northwestern Turnpike, running through a portion of the southern section of Garrett county, is known as Route 50.

RESULTS OF EXTENSION WORK EVIDENT AT FAIR

4-H, Vo-ag and Home-ec Exhibits Rival Best in Country

Results of 4-H Club work, and classes in home economics and agriculture in Garrett County high schools are evident at the annual Garrett County Fair, where the members of the organization and students are exhibiting products that rival and surpass the products of some of the most successful farmers in the country, according to fair officials and spectators.

Potato exhibits by members of the Certified Seed Potato clubs were said by judges to be the best seen anywhere and would have taken first prize over all others had they exhibited in open class.

The Guernsey Calf Club have excellent exhibits and the girls' 4-H clubs have many exhibits of clothing, room improvement and canning projects.

Home economics classes of the various high schools of the county have fine exhibits in cooking, it was stated, and would compare favorably with that of the experienced housekeepers.

As an educational feature in dairying, a large model of a dairy barn was constructed by the agriculture class of Friendsville high school and other high school agriculture classes exhibited models of a milk house, different types of silos, etc. The dairy barn, more than three feet high, was modeled after the up-to-date dairy barn at Hopemont Sanitarium, and is a very substantial affair.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that on the .... day of ....., 1922, the plaintiff was married to the defendant, with whom she resided in Pennsylvania and elsewhere until March, 1921.

That although the conduct of the plaintiff toward her husband has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond a reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That no children were born to the parties as a result of said marriage.

That the plaintiff is a resident of Garrett County and that the defendant is a non-resident of this State.

The Bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, by the plaintiff from the said defendant.

IT IS, THEREUPON, This 4th day of September, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of October, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 21st day of October next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

NEW MARYLAND TELEPHONE OFFICIALS ASSUME DUTIES

New Operating Organization Includes G. K. McCorkle as General Manager and F. H. Kenworthy, General Auditor—State Headquarters Now Located at Baltimore

The new form of operating organization of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City recently announced is now in force. Under this plan G. K. McCorkle is general manager, and F. H. Kenworthy, general auditor. Mr. McCorkle is head of the commercial, engineering, plant and traffic or operating departments, while Mr. Ross, as general auditor, has charge of the accounting organization in Maryland.

Reporting to Mr. McCorkle are E. L. Florance, general commercial manager, who will supervise the commercial department, which conducts business transactions with the public, studies their requirements in relation to types and classes of service, charges for service and the future growth of the telephone business; F. J. Irish, chief engineer, who is responsible for the engineering of buildings, central office equipment and transmission systems, for the review of plans for outside plant construction and fundamental development plans and for the review and coordination of the budget; C. L. Oswald, general traffic manager, who supervises the operations of the switchboards giving service to the public, develops operating and management methods and recommends additions and changes in central office facilities; and J. W. Talbot, general plant manager, will supervise the preparation of plans for the extension of outside plant, constructs that plant, installs subscribers' station equipment and maintains the entire property.

Mr. McCorkle, the new general manager, entered the employ of the Bell Telephone System at Eminence, Kentucky, in 1902. In 1908 he became associated with the Chicago Telephone Company and later held supervisory positions in that company in Illinois and with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York. His association with the Chesapeake and Potomac system came with his appointment as general commercial manager in December, 1927.

The general auditor, Mr. Kenworthy, has been connected with the telephone system since 1901. He was made division auditor of receipts of the Chesapeake and Potomac system in 1912, and became auditor of receipts, June 1, 1913.

Mr. Florance, the general commercial manager, started his telephone career with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company as engineering assistant, March 1, 1921. He was appointed general commercial supervisor October 1, 1928.

The chief engineer, Mr. Irish first became associated with the telephone industry in 1906. He was appointed equipment engineer of the Chesapeake and Potomac system in 1921.

Mr. Oswald has been connected with the telephone industry since 1916 when he was employed by the Bell System at Philadelphia. He became traffic superintendent of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at Washington, in 1919 and general traffic superintendent of Baltimore, April 1, 1921.

The new general plant manager, Mr. Talbot, entered the service of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company at Alexandria in 1897. He later became associated with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at Washington. He was appointed general plant superintendent of Baltimore April 1, 1926.

EAST AND WEST DEFINITELY MEET-BY TELEPHONE LINE

Long Distance Ties Together Atlantic and Pacific Coasts—Transcontinental Calls Increased 100 Per Cent Last Year—All Toll Calls Increased 18 Per Cent

Walter S. Gifford

When Kipling said, "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," he evidently overlooked the telephone for long distance lines have now definitely tied together the east and west.

Last year the number of telephone messages made over transcontinental lines connecting the Atlantic and Pacific coasts increased 100 per cent. During the year the total number of long distance telephone calls throughout the country increased 18 per cent.

The most striking development in the telephone business in the United States during 1928 was the increased use of the telephone for long distance calls, Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, states in the company's annual report. "While this use of long distance service has been undoubtedly stimulated by general business activity, and the rate reductions in 1926 and 1927, the increased speed and improved quality of service have been the largest contributing factors. The country is becoming long distance minded and is acquiring a new telephone habit," he said.

Improvement of service—an essential factor in this growth in long distance usage—is in turn dependent upon the adequate and dependable facilities. With this in mind, the company began some years ago the construction of long distance toll cables, the report shows. At the beginning of 1925 the investment in long distance plant and equipment of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was $140,000,000. At the end of 1928 the investment was $262,000,000, and it is planned to spend more than $80,000,000 for additional facilities in 1929.

At the same time that the number of long distance telephone messages has been increasing, the other services furnished through the use of the long distance plant have been steadily growing. Chain broadcasting on a national scale, which has become such an important factor in the life of the nation, is making extensive use of telephone wires for the inter-connection of broadcasting stations located throughout the country.

Press associations, manufacturing enterprises, commercial and banking houses, are making more and more use of networks of circuits leased for their own exclusive use between widely separated points. The majority of these circuits are operated as telegraph or typewriter circuits, although many are for telephone use.

Dean, Dean and Son

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(©, by Dix.)

THERE were many among their mutual friends who thought that John Dean was being somewhat dogmatic in so arbitrarily trying to force his son Basil into the trade that he himself was in.

John Dean was a butcher, his father before him had been a butcher and also his grandfather and each generation of butcher Deans had put the increasing chain of butcher shops on a sounder financial foundation.

The firm name was now Dean, Dean & Son—being the three successive Deans. And now because young Basil Dean had inherited from the mother whom he had scarcely known what he called artistic ability and his father called tommyrot, Basil had determined to establish himself in the millinery and costume trade.

"Imagine a son of mine, and a mouthful of pins, draping laces and taffetas on female forms!" stormed Dean Senior wrathfully.

He stormed, however, to no avail for young Basil was both sane and sound of faculty and knew what he was best equipped for in life's battle with finance.

And deep as was the regard between father and son, the inability of each to see the other's viewpoint estranged the two so that Basil moved from the old homestead of his forebears and took a small flat above the shop which he established.

And every time Dean Senior passed the small, exclusive shop that bore the name Dean, Incorporated, and had as its window display a frothy bit of chiffon and a dainty hat or two, he trembled with rage.

John Dean missed his son's presence about the house more than he cared to admit. He had been a widower for nearly twenty years and the house was lonesome with only the servants for company.

Perhaps that was why Dean happened to fall a victim to the undoubted charms of Constance Fry, the widow of a somewhat impoverished army officer. Constance had been forced to earn her own living and also to provide for the son who was even then ready to select a career for himself.

She herself had gone into the millinery business and had succeeded remarkably only to realize that her son could find no joy in the thought of following in his mother's footsteps.

Peter Fry loved the butchering business and his only ambition was to belong to the chain of shops that Dean Senior was the head of. It had been through this idea of his that Mrs. Fry and Mr. Dean had met.

"His only inspiration is among bits of lamb and cow," she had lamented into Dean's sympathetic ear and there discussion as to Peter's future was the link that simply chained Dean Senior to her side until he could think of nothing but Constance and his longing to make her his wife and companion in the big empty house.

And having established son Peter comfortably among the choice cuts of lamb, ox tails and tripe, John Dean proceeded to lay siege to the heart of Constance.

But Constance was not so easily won, though she felt tremendously attracted to John Dean.

"I love my millinery business too much just to let it all go. I have enjoyed building it up and feel much pride in it. I wouldn't mind so much if I could find just the exact man to take over the actual working part of it and let me just continue designing costumes—but I can't marry you, John, until I find a man who exactly fits in with my scheme of keeping my business well on its feet." And with those words she had looked wistfully up into John's fine blue eyes.

Dean thought swiftly and to good purpose. He could win Constance for his wife and bring back his son to the fold—all in one big gesture of mental weakness—for John considered it a form of weakness once and for all to agree that his son should continue in any but the butcher business. However, since Constance was so desirable and son Peter ready to step into the line of Dean, Dean & Son—well—so be it.

That afternoon Dean, Senior, crossed the threshold of Dean, Incorporated, for the first but not the last time, and Basil looked up from some wonderful designs he was sketching. A smile far more wonderful than the colors of the drawings was the smile in his eyes.

"Dad—by jove! It's actually dad!" and he jumped up to grasp his dad's hand in a grip that hurt. There was nothing feminine about young Basil.

An hour later the two went out arm in arm. All was harmoniously settled.

"It's great of you, dad, simply great," said Basil. "And I say, dad, do you think the new mater will like me."

Genuine Advice

A man lent a friend a book, "How to Live to Be a Hundred."

Meeting a little later, the friend told the lender that his wife was reading the book in all the spare time she had. The lender was delighted.

A month later they met again and the lender again inquired about his friend's wife.

The Way to the Fair

Directions on how to reach the Fair grounds were compiled by Col. Bell and Scoop with great difficulty after it was seen that quite a number were stopping at The Republican office and asking their way. Here's how you get there:

Take passenger boat "Bluesky," Pier No. 6, corner of Second and Green streets, go west on Liberty street until you get there, then turn right, show your ticket as you sail through the gate, and unload at Sunset Haven, at the edge of Lake Fairweather. Boats run every half hour, so don't crowd. The photo shows George D. White waiting for a chance to get to the grounds.

Scoop's Fair Exhibits

Scoop and Col. Bell had a little trouble with their exhibits at the Fair, but it all vanished when another entry arrived at the grounds on Monday. Col. Bell was unable to get anybody to judge whose "Mountain pussies" were the best, and as he would not be the chief inspector himself, he pinned blue ribbons on both of them. The parrot refused to say anything at the grounds but "Whoopee, home again," and the judge, knowing all about that old joke, got angry and wouldn't pin a ribbon of any kind on him. Scoop's entry in the horse department was placed in the races and therefore disqualified from competing for thoroughbred honors.

The winner, therefore, was a raccoon, caught by Ralph Weber, who rarely goes hunting for anything less than moose meat, but condescended this time because he thought the 'coon might help him to get rid of the large number of cats which are being dropped around his plantation just south of town.

The 'coon's attitude toward the judges and Col. Bell, who took the picture, was not one very becoming as is shown in the snapshot, but he got the blue ribbon anyway.

Col. Bell's Special

The height of confidence or what not was reached one day last week when Bill Whorton's team of horses carried loads of cement over amnesia Second street, and put wagon tracks in the street covering to a depth of an inch or more.

He wanted to leave his mark on the world. But Bill, being a member of council, will surely see that they are filled up.

Oakland is no place for anybody to get into a rut.

The Fair got along swimmingly on Tuesday and Wednesday, according to the officials.

Gets Two Licenses

Whether or not Harry Riggleman considered two licenses necessary is a question, but it is a fact that when he went up to the Court House on Monday to get his marriage license he also got a hunting license. Probably thought he would kill two birds with one shot. It is not known which license he got first, the hunting or the marriage, but no matter, he will need them both now.

If he goth the marriage one first, it will be up to him to hunt for his living, and if he got the hunting one first, he's probably found his mate by this time, and he'll still need both. Anyway you take it, he's a hunter from now until doomsday.

BITTINGER.

The most pronounced hail storm of the entire summer swept over this village last Sunday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock. The storm was preceded by heavy thunder in the northwest and the rain came down in torrents, thickly interspersed with hail stones and which continued for several minutes.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Susnicious Characters

Every fall brings to this community a number of more or less suspicious characters who apparently have no visible means of support. They are well dressed and do not have the appearance of the run-of-mine hobo. Back-door handouts seem to be the source of their food supply. They beg for dry coffee and tea principally, but, of course, food of any kind is acceptable to them. This indicates that their rendezvous is some place where a fire can be built and the coffee and tea brewed -possibly in a house along the railroad, or, perchance, they are occupying some vacant house in the Park. It is a suspicious circumstance that anyone, although honestly out of employment, should seek the mountain top to spend the winter or even the late fall.

With strangers permitted to visit the houses of the Park asking for hand outs a feeling of insecurity is bound to arise, especially among those who are forced to be alone when their brothers or husbands are compelled to be away at their work.

Chickens are disappearing mysteriously, automobile tires and tools are being missed and wearing apparel is being taken from the line, if allowed to remain out over night. This, of course, is petty thieving, but graver things may happen.

The postodice has been broken into at least five times during the past few years. Houses vacated by summer visitors have been entered. Last winter the bowling alley was apparently used as a place to hold parties. Such happenings do not make for a comfortable feeling.

If the Annual Committee can see its way clear to give us more winter lights, especially along the thoroughfares leading to the postoffice and railway station, and a night policeman for the balance of the winter, residents would feel more secure.

A rather large number of gray squirrels have been reported as having been seen in the Park and many householders are already placing food for them in convenient places. There is a fear among those who delight to see wild life undisturbed that during the present open season enthusiastic or thoughtless hunters will kill these animals. It is hoped that they will take enough interest in the Park to allow the gray squirrel to remain undisturbed here so they will multiply and make this their permanent abiding place. It will add much to the interest and beauty of the Park to have them here at all times.

Miss Ruth Rudisill, daughter of the late L. A. Rudisill, has been at the Grove Park Inn, Ashville, N. C., advertised as the "finest resort hotel in the world." We were permitted to read a letter from Miss Rudisill to Mrs. Harry Clayton and asked permission to quote the following: "I wish we could build a hotel at Mountain Lake Park like this one and advertise our climate and air and sunrises and roads. They do not have a thing here, with the exception of the hotel, that we do not have, or surpass, and yet this place is full winter and summer with the wealth of the east. It makes me rave to hear all these wealthy people rant over the air, scenery, etc., when we have just as good and better, and just a few to appreciate it. They even have to import all fresh vegetables from other States."

This comparison coming from one who has lived here ought to be of interest to us. It sounds a little bit like what we have been saying in this column for the past year.

Of interest to citizens of this community, especially Loch Lynn, is the Annual Pilgrimage next Sunday to the I. O. O. F. Home at Frederick, Maryland, principally because of the fact that A. T. (Buck) White, of Loch Lynn is the Superintendent of the Home. It will be a great occasion with the fraternity, the principal speaker being Hon. James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor; Governor Ritchie, and Mayor Broening.

E. O. Fouch, veteran B. & O. telegraph operator, is quite ill at his home. Mr. Fouch has been suffering for some months with the ailment that is now keeping him confined to his bed.

Miss Bessie Zahn, who has been with relatives in Uniontown for some months, has returned to the Park.

The many friends of Rev. I. S. Middaugh, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be glad to learn that he has again been returned to his charge.

Mr. H. V. Leighton and Mr. C. V. Harvey motored to Grafton Sunday where they attended a session of the M. E. Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Leighton accompanied their daughter, Helen, to an eastern school where she has enrolled as a student.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Clayton, who have been in Fairmont for the past week on business, have returned.

IMPROVEMENT IS BEGUN ON THREE MORE STREETS

Fifth Street and Part of Second Street to Complete Program

Three blocks of city streets will be improved before the year's street improvement plans will have been completed, it was decided at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council, held Monday night at the Council chamber. The streets will not be amiesited but will receive a crushed rock foundation with gravel and oil as a top dressing, Mayor L. M. Fraley said.

The streets yet to be improved include Second street between Pennington and Crook, the entire width of the street; and Fifth street between Green and Oak streets, a distance of two blocks. Work on these three blocks have already been started, the street committee has announced and they will be completed in a short time.

Amiesiting of the principal streets of the city will be completed this week, weather permitting. Oak and Third streets are yet to be completed.

BAND SPONSORS DISCUSS WAYS OF RAISING FUNDS

To Hold Food Sale Every Month —Card Party November 13

Decision to hold a food sale every month and a card party on Wednesday, November 13, was made at a meeting of the Boys' Band Auxiliary on Tuesday night when that organization assembled at the city hall. Proceeds from these benefits are to go toward the purchase of uniforms for the band members and for financing the organization on other lines.

The first food sale will be held on Saturday, October 19, at the offices of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company. The card party on November 13 will be held in the Knights of Pythias hall, according to R. R. Gilbert, band director.

Acknowledgement was made of the receipt of $50 from the Oakland Rotary Club toward the purchase of uniforms. Mr. Gilbert is in receipt of a letter from Leo J. Rasche, New York City, formerly of Oakland, in which Mr. Rasche offered a few suggestions in financing the band, and if these would not prove satisfactory then to call upon him for the price of a uniform. With promises already made for 11 uniforms, this latest promise and the donation from the Rotary Club would raise the total to 18. There are over thirty members in the organization.

A horse belonging to A. P. Martin was killed, and the Ford coupe belonging to and driven at the time of the occurrence, James Sanders, of near Hutton, was badly damaged when the horse and car collided on the Gortner road, two miles south of Oakland, on Saturday night.

The horse, it is stated, broke thru a fence on the Martin farm and was standing in the center of the road as Mr. Sanders was returning home from his work. It is also said that two of Mr. Martin's employes at the farm were endeavoring to get the animal off the highway. Mr. Sanders stated that he did not see the animal until it was too late to avoid a collision. Sanders received slight cuts on his forehead from flying glass.

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL FAIR CLOSED LAST SATURDAY

Disagreeable Weather Keeps Attendance Small—Exhibits More Numerous Than Ever

With cold weather prevailing thruout the week, the Thirteenth Annual Garrett County Agricultural Fair was brought to an unsuccessful close Saturday evening. Attendance at the Fair grounds was the smallest in many years, according to Henry M. Speicher, manager, while the exhibits were four times more numerous than ever before. Prizes which will total over $900 were won by exhibitors.

The only parade of the entire week was held on Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock when Automobile Day, Business Men's Day, School Day and Farmers' Day, all combined into one procession. Friday was the first day of the entire week in which there had been on rain.

There was no horseracing on the Fair grounds, due to the wet condition of the track, Mr. Speicher said. The free exhibitions remained until Friday evening and on Saturday W. J. Knight executed his double parachute leap from the wing of the Reiby Shaw plane from a high altitude.

"From the standpoint of exhibits, the Fair was the best one Garrett county ever had," Mr. Speicher stated. "But from a financial standpoint, it was an utter failure."

ROUTE 50 TO OPEN FOR TRAFFIC WITHIN TEN DAYS

Maryland Section of Northwestern Turnpike Is Completed—Shoulders Being Finished

The Maryland section of the Northwestern Turnpike, known as Federal Route 50, will be opened to traffic on October 19, according to Leo T. Downey, supervisor for the Maryland State Roads Commission in Allegany, Washington and Garrett counties.

The early completion of the Northwestern Turnpike in Maryland is due to the efforts of Senator A. D. Naylor, who secured an appropriation from the State for the sum of $150,000 for work on this road, as well as Garrett county's share for the bridge over the Potomac River and the Western Maryland Railway at Gormania.

Work on the highway in this State was completed during the past week insofar as the pouring of the concrete is concerned, but work on the earthen shoulders will require at least two weeks more, Mr. Downey said.

When this short stretch of road is opened to traffic, Oakland will have a direct hard-surfaced connection to the east. From Oakland to Winchester, Va., a distance of less than a hundred miles, the trip can be made easily in three hours, and from thence to Washington, D. C., and the South. The road westward from Red House to Parkersburg, W. Va., has been completed for more than a year.

On U. S. 50, in Mineral county, W. Va., widening and resurfacing has been completed from Claysville to New Creek and the paving of the ten mile project between Mt. Storm in Grant county, W. Va., and Hartmansville, in Mineral county, is practically completed and open for traffic.

Pouring of cement on the Parsons-Thomas road was completed last week when the last cement was poured at the base of the mountain near Hambleton, W. Va.

POTOMAC RIVER SURVEY IS COMPLETED FOR 1929

War Department Engineers Return to Base in Washington

According to an announcement Saturday made at Washington by the War Department, fifty potential dam sites for the development of hydroelectric power have been located in the Potomac River basin above tidewater as a result of the season's work conducted by field parties under the direction of Major Bichen Somervell, District engineer for the War Department in the Washington area.

E. J. Merrick, Jr., civil engineer, who has just returned to Washington following a field inspection trip, said that Lewis M. Prindle, the geologist furnished by the Geological Survey, is now engaged in making a survey of studies of the rock formation in the Potomac River basin to ascertain if the strata are such as to permit the dams to be stable and the reservoirs to be made water tight.

Two parties, making a total of 30 men, have been working independently through the summer, now have been consolidated into one base camp at Luray, Va., as the work of surveying the Shenandoah River is being pushed forward. The fourfold survey being conducted under authority of Congress is taking into account irrigation, navigation, hydroelectric developments and flood control and will comprise the entire Potomac Valley. Mr. Merrick also said that another year will be needed to complete the investigation.

These surveys started in the spring, and up to this time the parties from Major Somervell's office have completed prolile studies in the Potomac River basin representing 1,091 miles, located 50 potential dam sites, made general cross-section surveys of 16 reservoir sites and examined 15 towns, adjacent to the Potomac River system, now being damaged by floods. The parties now are working on the topography of the Shenandoah River and have now completed 60 miles of this work.

THE PARTY AND THE INDIVIDUAL.

Under the above title the Crisfield Times prints the following editorial:

In a vigorous defense of Governor Ritchie's candidacy for a fourth term, the estimable Pocomoke City Worcester Democrat takes this newspaper to task for its opposition to the governor's renomination, and brands our editorial treatment of the subject as an ill-founded political harangue, made up generalities and scary-headlines, which expressed our own "violent" opposition that exists throughout the State.

It is not surprising that the Pocomoke City newspaper should rush to the defense of Governor Ritchie, for while the scholarly editor of that estimable publication manifests, at times, some degree of ability to think clearly and see in a straight line, his pagan worship of the governor, so apparent in his recently published exhortations, has unquestionably blinded him to true conditions in Maryland and rendered him unable to distinguish between a question of party welfare and the gratification of a dangerous political ambition.

Our personal relations with the governor have always been cordial and our own "violent" opposition to his renomination did not call forth the editorial to which the Pocomoke City newspaper takes exception. The question at issue, we think, does not necessitate an expression of our private opinion, based solely upon our personal feelings—but rather demands a frank and intelligent interpretation of public sentiment in Maryland as it relates to Governor Ritchie and his availability as a candidate for renomination at the hands of the Democratic party. And it was in the interpretation of public sentiment, and not in expression of our own personal opinion that our editorial was promoted. We are concerned, not with the political future of Governor Ritchie, but with the future of the Democratic party.

Among business men and political leaders of high and low degree, among professional men, tradesmen, watermen, packers, farmers, and the housewives in their homes, the opposition of the continued domination of Governor Ritchie is so emphatic that we had thought the situation obvious to everyone except the governor himself - so obvious in fact, that a Bill of Particulars would be superfluous. It now appears, however, that Governor Ritchie is not alone in his sublime ignorance of true conditions, but that the versatile Pocomoke City scribe is also deaf to the mutterung of the multitudes and the rumbling of the approaching storm.

With due regard for the scholarly attainments and the judgment par excellence of the Pocomoke City editor, we must disagree with him on the proposition that there is no one else in Maryland except Governor Ritchie capable of "guiding the old Ship of State safely," or of "leading the Democratic party to victory." Without detracting in the least from the extraordinary ability which he attributes to the governor, we must insist that the State of Maryland and the Democratic party, although admittedly in sore straits, have not yet reached such a sorry plight that Mr. Ritchie is the only living being who possesses those qualifications of statesmanship and political popularity essential in the election of a governor and in the administration of the affairs of state. At that, however, the proposition is not entirely new—we seem to have heard it advanced before, from quarters and through channels which lead suspiciously close to the State House on the Severn. And it has been so oft repeated that a certain class of the Ritchie job-holders and pie-counter habitues now broadcast it with as much solemnity as they would accord the Ten Commandments or the Golden Rule.

We experience no difficulty in recalling any of the miraculous achievements which mark Governor Ritchie as the "Greatest Executive," the "Safest Pilot," the ability "to administer the affairs of the state better than anyone else," or any of the many other super qualities with which the Pocomoke editor, in his childlike worship, endows his idol. We do recall, without difficulty, however, many of the outstanding events in the governor's long tenure of office—and unfortunately for the Democratic party, public memory is as good as our own.

We recall, for instance, the plundering of the public treasury by men connected with his administration. A roll call at the Maryland penitentiary would reveal the presence there of a score who left state jobs under the Ritchie regime to begin enforced confinement in the prisons of our state—and not all of them ever went to jail.

We recall that there has been more wholesale thievery, graft, corruption and scandal, more negligence, incompetency and mismangement in the departments of his government than was ever known in the entire history of the commonwealth, previous to the Ritchie occupany of the State House.

We recall that during the governor's tenure of office as Chief Executive of Maryland, tax burdens in their various forms, have more than doubled; and that the cost of government in Maryland has undergone a corresponding increase.

We recall that the state budget system, brought into being to protect the state treasury and to safeguard public expenditures, has been mutilated beyond recognition and its very spirit destroyed in order that one man—Governor Albert C. Ritchie—might absolutely control, direct and dictate the expenditure of every dollars of state funds expended under the budget provisions.

We recall that thousands of dollars of public funds have been spent in the construction of state highways, on locations and routes selected and manipulated, not in the interest of public service, but to serve Governor Ritchie's own political fortunes—to reward his supporters for their support, to punish his opponents for their opposition.

We recall that Governor Ritchie perpetrated a reorganization scheme which revolutionized every principal of government under which the state had advanced and prospered since its organization—a scheme which debauched the last vestige of governmental control by the people, and concentrated in Mr. Ritchie the power and authority which the electorate had always enjoyed and the enjoyment of which had ever been the surest safeguard against misadministration of public affairs—a scheme conceived and executed by the governor for the sole purpose of building a governmental autocracy more oppressing and more menacing to public peace and safety than Russia ever knew in her darkest hours.

We recall that after announcing as the primary excuse for his third-term candidacy the glaring need of conserving, protecting, restoring and rehabilitating the marine resources of the state, the governor has permitted nearly four years to elapse without one effective or constructive effort to solve this most vital problem; while the thousands of Maryland citizens who engage in the water industries for their livelihood have been penalized, regulated and persecuted to an unbearable degree and the natural wealth of the state has been squandered and prostituted.

We recall that the governor bartered away to a group of outside capitalists and promoters the state's most valuable water-power resource—Conowingo—on terms that deny to the citizens of this state a single participation in the manifold benefits connected with that vast resource.

We recall that Governor Ritchie has journeyed up and down the country, preaching the doctrine of states' rights and loudly proclaiming his allegiance to the principles of hame-rule and local self-government - while his official and political conduct in his home state have made a mockery of the principles he so loudly espouses; that on one occasion, within forty-eight hours after he had delivered in another state, what his admirers characterized as his master contribution to the defense of home rule, he returned to Maryland and actively participated in a movement which denied to a duly elected county government of this state the right to appoint a subordinate county official whose duties and activities were restricted entirely to the county in which he lived.

We recall, but what's the use! The public knows the whole story, and if our estimable Pocomoke City neighbor is not so well informed, there is a strong probability that an outraged electorate will impress it upon him in minute detail, should Governor Ritchie persist in his candidacy for a fourth term.

The Democratic party is faced with the most serious situation it has had to confront since the days of the Civil War. Upon its ability to rise to the situation, to bring to the party standards a gubernatorial candidate who is absolutely free of the Ritchie taint—upon the willingness of its members to place party welfare above the menacing ambitions of a single individual, depends the success of their party in the next campaign and in many campaigns to come. Failure of the Democratic hosts to measure up to their responsibility will add another chapter to the story of Ritchie's disastrous party leadership - a leadership which placed a Republican Mayor in the City Hall of Baltimore a leadership that has caused factional strife and trouble in almost every Maryland county, a leadership largely responsible for the magnitude of the Republican victory in this state in the last presidential contest.

SENECA TRAIL, A MOST PICTURESQUE HIGHWAY

Scenery Along Route Said To Surpass In Beauty Any Other Eastern Section of U. S.

By Ross B. Johnson.

The Seneca Trail, running from Mercer to Preston Counties, in West Virginia, is one of the most picturesque highways in America and will eventually be one of the best known. Construction work on hard-surfaced roads is being pushed so that in the near future it will be possible in any weather to pass over the entire route from the Virginia border through Mercer, Monroe, Greenbrier, Pocahontas, Randolph, Tucker and a corner of Preston counties into Maryland, where connection is made with the Northwestern Turnpike and eventually with the National Highway. At Princeton it joins with Federal Routes 19 and 20.

The Seneca Trail closely follows the old Indian trail, known as the Warrior's Road which topped the mountains of Western Virginia and served as a highway for the Indians from New York to Georgia. It touches the Cheat, Tygart, Greenbrier, New and Bluestone Rivers and is near the Monongahela and Shenandoah National forests.

A brief but interesting glimpse of Preston county's mountain section is had by the traveler who follows the trail south from Red House, Maryland.

Tucker county has a wealth of beauty spots, most noted of which is the falls of the Blackwater, 63 feet high. This stream drains the famed Canaan Valley, great natural bowl of more than 50,000 acres in the very heart of the mountains, which was made famous by the pen of "The Clerk of Oxenford," David Hunter Strother. Most of the country lies in the Monongahela National Forest and the forest nursery near Parsons. Near Thomas the Fairfax stone originally marked the northern and western limits of the lands of Lord Fairfax.

Eastward lies the South Branch Valley including Romney, Moorefield, Franklin and Petersburg, with their particular points of interest. Here is "The Smoke Hole," Seneca Rocks, various other giant crags worthy of almost equal note, "The Trough" of the South Branch, Petersburg Gap, Ice Mountain and other interesting objects.

Randolph County, battle scarred, has much scenic and historic interest It once had numerous blockhouses as frontier defenses against the Indians. Elkins has Davis and Elkins College, the Odd Fellows' Home, Children's Home and other points of interest. The battlefields of Laurel Hill and Rich Mountain are nationally known. Civil War earthworks are to be seen at Elkwater. The monument at Mingo Flats is said to mark the site of the last Indian village in the State. At "The Sinks" at Osceola, the Gandy River cuts under a mountain for two miles.

Middle Mountain was the summer encampment of General Robert E. Lee. The battle of Duncan's Lane, May 28, 1863, was between home guards, contesting the first election ever held in West Virginia.

Marlinton, settled in 1749, is the oldest recorded settlement west of the Alleghanies. Here stood Fort Greenbrier. Here in 1751 General Lewis marked the Charter Oak, still standing, a member of the American Hall of Fame trees. Marlinton saw Civil War fighting. Here encamped General Lee. The old Indian trail is very plainly seen at this point. Buckeye had a powder mill during the Revolution. Traveler's Repose is a noted old inn. Bald Knob, 4902 feet high, is the highest point in the State. Minnehaha Springs is a prominent health resort. Nearby is the splendid estate of Col. H. R. Wyllie. The noted Cranberry Glades with varied animal and plant life is not far away.

The Seneca Forest of 16,000 acres is a forest and game preserve. On the hill facing Hillsboro is Droop Mountain important Civil War battlefield.

Lewisburg was a mustering point for the frontiersmen of Augusta, Botetourt and Fincastle counties, from which center General Lewis marched his army to break the power of the Indians under Cornstalk at Point Pleasant.

At the camp, called Camp Union, Fort Savannah was built and near it Fort Donnelly and Fort Springs.

East lies White Sulphur Springs, fashionable summer and health resort, and frequented by notables of every generation for nearly two hundred years. Here is Kate's Mountain, noted for its rare and abundant plant life.

Organ Cave, near the border of Greenbrier and Mercer counties, is one of the largest caves in the State. It is electrically lighted and contains many interesting formations. Rapp's Cave, near Frankford, is another large cave.

Ronceverte is an important railroad and industrial center. Near Union is the old Rehobeth Church, built of logs in 1786, and dedicated by Bishop Francis Asbury, the first Methodist bishop in America, as the first Methodist church west of the Alleghenies.

Elmwood, near Union, built by Hugh Caperton, and Walnut Grove, are among many fine old Colonial mansions which grace the Greenbrier Valley. Old Sweet Springs, Salt Sulphur Springs and Red Sulphur Springs are other well known health resorts of this region.

On a highway leading west of Pickaway are Alderson, which has the Federal prison for women, and Hinton, industrial center. Peterstown is an early settlement, with many scenes of interest. The trail cuts across a corner of Virgima to Mercer county and Princeton, its county seat. North of Princeton is Athens, where is located Concord State Normal. South of Bluefield, heart of the Pocahontas coal fields, railroad center and thriving business center. Bluefield, more than half a mile above sea level, and Athens are among the highest cities in West Virginia. With its location on the Virginia border, Bluefield serves as the gateway to the South, and Federal Routes 19 and 21 separate there to make their way to different destination in the Southland.

MARRIED

Bailey — Compton — A beautiful wedding was solemnized at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at Fairmont, West Va., when Miss Gladys Compton, of that city, became the bride of J. Norman Bailey, of Chicago, Ill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. M. Given in the presence of a group of close friends and relatives. ## USED CARS

of many makes are traded in for the New Ford

Some people think we accept nothing but used Fords for trade-ins when selling the Model A. That is a wrong impression. Cars of many makes are traded in for the new Ford—some low prices and some not so low—and many of them are unusual bargains.

There is a definite reason why we can offer you extra value in these used cars. The value of the new Ford is so high, and the cost so low, that excessive trade-in concessions on buyers' used cars are not possible. In other words, we set the trade-in figure at just what the used car is worth.

Our used-car department is based on a spirit of fair-dealing—fair dealing with the first owner who makes the trade-in, and the second owner who buys the used car.

All used cars are in good running condition. Come in today and see some of the bargains. We now have on hand the following used cars:

BITTINGER.

Many farmers of this neighborhood who had planned to attend the county fair at Oakland last week were greatly disappointed by the continued wet weather which prevented their presence and hindered the success of the undertaking.

On Tuesday night of last week Sheriff W. D. Casteel, Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith and Constable Seymour, of Oakland, came to this village and placed Earl Resh under arrest on a charge of brutality to his wife. Resh was taken to the Oakland Jail the same night and the following morning the officers returned to the Resh home near this village and took John Dow into custody also and at the same time discovered about three gallons of illicit liquor on the premises and two barrels of mash in preparation for distillation. Hence both men are held in the County Jail awaiting release under bond or the action of the next term of court.

Communion services were held in the Lutheran church in this village last Sunday morning with Rev. E. E. Campbell, the pastor, officiating.

KEEPING FIT FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS

Temperance Lesson

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 1:8-20, I Cor. 9:19-27, I Tim. 4:7-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Taking Care of Our Bodies.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Keeping Fit.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Self-control for the Common Good.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Temperance Essential to the Highest Usefulness.

In the use of this as a temperance lesson it must be borne in mind that it is temperance in the sense of self-mastery rather than indulgence in intoxicating liquors.

1. The Self-mastery of Daniel and His Companions (Dan. 1:7-20).

These young men were wrenched from their homes and country in the tender years of youth and carried away as captives to a strange land.

1. Their trials (vv. 5-7).

(1) The test of conscience (v. 5). By the appointment of the king, a portion of the king's meat and wine was provided daily for the captives. This being contrary to the Jewish customs, the young men could not conscientiously partake of them. Conscience is the groundwork of human character.

(2) Changed name (vv. 6, 7).

Among the Hebrews, names were given to children which were most significant. Daniel means "God is my judge." The significance of this name was that all the problems of life were submitted to God for His decision. This was the secret of Daniel's successful life.

(3) Their religious life (v. 8).

This involved their refusal to eat meat and to drink wine. In the case of Daniel at least, it also involved his praying three times a day. Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with this food and drink.

2. Their courtesy (vv. 8-13).

Daniel seems to have been the spokesman for the company. Although his heart was fixed, he did not forget to be a gentleman. He requested that he be excused from this meat and drink in order not to be defiled.

3. Their triumph (vv. 14-21).

(1) Their physical health (vv. 14-16).

A test was made for ten days which showed that they were fairer in countenance and fatter in flesh than those who indulged in the king's meat.

(2) Their mental growth (vv. 17-20).

Daniel and his companions were found to be ten times better than their comrades in wisdom and understanding.

(3) Social and political preferment (v. 19). They stood before the king.

(4) Their temporal influence (v. 21). All were advanced to positions of influence, and Daniel became president of the college of wise men, and the prime minister of the nation.

II. Paul Advises the Corinthians as to Self-control (I Cor. 9:19-27).

The Corinthians were an intemperate and a dissolute people. No city in the world perhaps exceeded them in vices of all kinds. The surest and most effective way to combat vice is to inculcate virtue.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23).

Though free from all men, he made himself servant unto all.

2. The Isthmian games (vv. 24-27).

Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control.

(1) Life is a race (vv. 24, 25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial and definite exertion. The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; 8:36; 5:24). While he gets salvation (life) at the beginning, God places before him definite rewards as incentives to exertion. The Christian believes for life, but works for rewards.

(2) It is a fight (vv. 26, 27).

The Christian's efforts are not mere beatings of the air. He has a deadly struggle with his carnal nature.

III. Paul's Advice to Timothy (I Tim. 4:7-12).

A minister needs to have control of himself. He is urged to exercise himself unto godliness. He needs to train himself for his work as a teacher and a minister.

Doing Good

Bring God Into Your Heart

Bring God down into your heart. Embalm your soul in Him now, make within you a temple for the Holy Spirit; be diligent in good works, make others happier and better.—Amiel's Journal.

Power and Providence

No one can contemplate the great facts of astronomy without feeling his own littleness and the wonderful sweep of the power and providence of God.—Edwards.

Reward for Eloquence

Dr. Grant, to Rev. Shilke in the dentist chair: "After your powerful sermon last Sunday on The Beauty of Truth, I cannot tell a lie. This is going to hurt. It will feel like the root is fastened to your large toe, and and when I start to grind you'll thin': your eye-balls are extracting themselves from the sockets. However, you'll live through it all, and be none the worse for your experience."

Corn Rumors Again

Stories about the renewal of the corn festival have been heard for several days but Scoop could not learn whether the disaster at the Milk and Music Distilling Company would cause a postponement or not.

The corn shops have been wide open for some time, and their proprietors are said to have had a conference and decided that there was not enough excitement around the old home town. They cried for a parade of all the old members of the corn raisers club and all the new members.

The Milk and Music Distilling company comparatively new members in the society, but old at the game, were engineering the parade, which was to have been headed by a dairy wagon. Free drinks—of milk! were to be given to all who witnessed the parade, and Chas. E. M. Carr was to be the leader of the procession.

During the parade, those upon the milk wagon were to sing carols. Plenty of musical instruments were promised to enliven the occasion.

The members thought the time was ripe, or rather had aged long enough, for another big corn parade, but they didn't want any of the after effects, or hang-overs to interfere with the Hallowe'en celebration, but now it looks like they won't even have it. The Milk and Music distillers are just recovering from the theft of their "still."

If they can't locate it soon they will not be able to finance the free milk delivery. Sheriff Bill is searching everywhere for evidence so that he can give the corn paraders what is coming to them.

Col. Bell got a picture of one of the owners.

Hallowe'en Fairyland

Hallowe'en fairyland will be able to be seen in Oakland on the night of the Firemen's celebration on October 31, or at least it should be, and to make it more realistic the members of the Ancient Order of Shingle Rippers and Hose fasteners, captained by Gil. Whorton, are going to be fitted in the proper fashion for the occasion.

The entertainment planned by the firemen calls for demonstrations, songs, and impersonations of all the fabled characters of that season of the year. Alva Gortner, with his fireman's boots upon his feet will sing "Sleepy Time Al"; "On Time Monk" Stemple will show how to make a hose connection without the proper tools; Bill Browning will hold sway in a fifteen minute address on "What would be happening if Al Smith were President"; Emroy Bolden will relate his experience about "When I woke up I was driving the truck". Walter Dawson will amuse the crowd with his usual line of jokes, while R. R. Gilbert hollers "Give 'em the gas."

The fireeaters named Mike Maroney as the witch doctor for the evening, and he will brew his poison under the awning in front of Sincell's store, while Mayor Fraley, as the fortune teller, will try to inveigle innocent passers-by into his tent in Fraley's alley. His assistants will be Gene Carney, Ted Mason and J. Sweeney.

The Mayor

Cats for the occasion will be gathered from the outskirts of town where they have been congregating recently. Clowns for the celebration will be Jim Kerins, Butsy Hart, Mike Carney, and Bob Wolfe.

The Barber

Pumpkin heads chosen unanimously include Bill Gauer, "Sing" Townshend, Percy Frantz, H. P. Stuck, Ed Shaffer and Fred. Peddicord, while the goblins chosen are Mike Helbig, Jim Nally George Kerins, Ernest Townshend Arthur Hinebaugh, Arthur Lawton, Wilbur Davis, Jim Lewis, Milton Sincell, and Gilderoy Whorton. Whorton will also demonstrate his ability in connecting hose.

No one should miss this most violent spasm of the age. Everybody should be in Oakland on that evening. Maybe you will see all this and maybe you won't. Even if you do, that will be only a small part of the whoopee time!

MT. LAKE PARK.

Every one who has learned to operate a typewriter will instantly recognize the sentence used for exercise. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country." Just insert the "and women" after the wor "men" and change the last word to "community" and you will then have a sentence which should be near to the heart of every one who really has the interest of Mt. Lake Park at heart.

A carbuncle on the back of the neck is irritating. So is a pessimist. He never accomplishes anything himself for the community in which he lives, neither does he encourage any one else to try for betterments.

Of late there have been rumors afloat concerning a change of policy here at the Park, which, if successful, will mean much to Garrett county. Those in charge are working hard and earnestly to that end. They may not succeed. We have no direct information as to how far the plans have been matured. But this we do know: Nothing will be accomplished through the mutterings of the pessimist or the one who belittles the honest effort of those who are trying to put in force a permanent, workable plan for the development of the Park as a clean, moral and elevating resort.

Whether the support of the community is needed or asked for, let us put ourselves in a helpful mental attitude and expect the best.

So far in October there have been a good many mid-week and week-end visitors at the Park. Beautiful scenery, bracing air, and good food will keep them coming.

Oakland's streets are its best advertisement. Even a T-Model Ford refuses to rattle.

Miss Mollie Hamill, still a patient in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, was reported somewhat improved on last Saturday.

FRIENDSVILLE

A Chevrolet truck, which was transformed into a passenger bus Friday afternoon, carried the soccer and volley ball teams of the high school to Kitzmiller where they divided honors with Kitzmiller High school, winning at volley ball, 11 to 6, and losing at soccer. Due to the wind and rain the trip was very unpleasant, but was kept interesting by songs and yells.

The Friendsville Home Economics department of the high school was awarded first place for its booth in a competitive display at the Fair at Oakland last week. Grantsville won second and Kitzmiller third. More than twenty-five canned foods were in each booth. A home and landscape project, built by the girls of the Friendsville department, was on display and a gardening project was carried out by Cora Detrick.

Friendsville won four out of five prizes in the Certified Seed Potato Club competition at the County Fair. Ernest Hauser won first prize, $10; Wade Umble, second, $7.50; Floyd Umble, fourth, $3.00; and Claude Pike, fifth, $1.50. In competition with members of their own club, judged on a commercial basis, Wade Umble won first, $15; Ernest Hauser, second, Floyd Umbel, third, $12; and Glenn Pike, fourth, $1.

CHART SHOWING CLIMATE OF MARYLAND PUBLISHED

Temperature and Precipitation In State Bring Out a Number of Interesting Points.

That Oakland has the lowest annual average temperature in the State, the lowest temperature on record, the least number of days for growing season, the greatest amount of snowfall in any one month, and that Grantsville has the greatest amount of average snowfall, are shown in a climatic map, showing temperature and precipitation of Maryland and Delaware, as prepared by Roscoe Nunn, meteorologist, U. S. Bureau, and just recently published. The records are taken over a period of from one to 63 years. Records have been taken at Friendsville for 10 years, Grantsville for 35 years, and Oakland for 29 years.

If readers had only these figures to consider their idea of Oakland's climatic conditions would not be very complimentary, old residents say. But the extremes as shown on the chart are only rare occasions in the county, having occurred only once or twice in the century and should not be considered too seriously until intervening weather is considered, it was pointed out.

No better or healthful climate can be found anywhere than in Garrett county, the older residents stated.

Friendsville, Grantsville and Oakland are the only three points in Garrett county where records have been taken, with elevations of 1,501, 2,351, and 2,461, respectively. Under temperature the following is found for the three Garrett county points:

Annual average: Friendsville, 49.5; Grantsville, 47.6; Oakland, 47.3. Average for July: Friendsville, 68.7; Grantsville, 67.9; Oakland, 66.7. Average for January: Friendsville, 29.2; Grantsville 27.0; Oakland, 28.0. Highest on record: Friendsville, 95; Grantsville, 100; Oakland, 101. Lowest of record: Friendsville, minus 17; Grantsville, minus 26; Oakland, minus 40. Length of growing season in days: Friendsville, 133; Grantsville, 133; Oakland, 124.

In the industrial survey, however, the number of growing days over the past sixteen years, showed 196.

While 40 degrees below has been registered in this section, this has occurred once only, and that was many years ago. Monthly readings show that it rarely goes below zero in the winter months. College Park on the chart showed a reading of 26 degrees below zero and Washingtin county, 27 degrees below.

Snowfall Great in Garrett

Under the chart showing the annual average precipitation, in inches, as determined from records of many years at fifty or more stations, Oakland has the greatest snowfall in any one month with 58. The next greatest is at Easton, Talbot county, with 50.3. Then comes Grantsville with 49.

This great amount of snowfall, however, may happen only once in a lifetime, it was pointed out. Talbot county has had as high as 50 inches in one month, and this county is practically at sea level. As a general rule, there are no continuous periods of rain, snow, or other disagreeable weather conditions. Heavy snows are not frequent, old residents say.

The records for three Garrett county points, under precipitation are as follows:

Annual average, including melted snow: Friendsvile, 41.39; Grantsville, 42.77; Oakland, 46.27. Average for wettest month: Friendsville, 5.07; Grantsville, 4.41; Oakland, 4.69. Average for dryest month: Friendsville, 3.05; Grantsville, 2.65; Oakland, 2.68. Annual average snowfall: Friendsville 60.7; Grantsville, 69.4; Oakland, 67.6. Greatest monthly snowfall: Friendsville, 29.5; Grantsville, 49.0; Oakland, 58.0.

In Garrett county, however, there are no frequent sudden drops in temperature. The climate is a dry one, with comparatively little fog. One county on the Eastern Shore, it is shown, has as high as ten inches of rainfall in one month, whereas the average for Oakland is 4.69. This same Eastern Shore county in one month, is one of the driest in the State, while the rainfall in Garrett county is spread out over the twelve month period with practically no drought.

Precipitation of measurable amount occurs on about 126 days in a year, according to the chart. The average duration of rainfall periods is about 10 to 12 hours in winter and 3 to 4 hours in summer. Maryland's position with reference to the usual storm paths is decidedly favorable for a uniform and abundant supply of moisture.

Sunshine and cloudiness alternate frequently. The average number of clear days in a year is 119; partly cloudy, 132; cloudy, 114. Winds come mostly from southwest south and northwest.

SCHOOL BUS TAKES FIRE; BLAZE IS EXTINGUISHED

Four Students Escape Through Front Door of Vehicle

A school transportation bus, owned and operated by Gorman Thayer, of Oakland, became ignited while parked on Liberty street Tuesday afternoon, but the blaze was extinguished before much damage had been done.

Four school children in the bus at the time escaped through the door before they had been injured, although their hair, eyebrows and eyelashes were scorched to some extent. The children were Ronald Wagner, Harrison Wright, Woodrow Warnick and Richard Trinkett, of Deer Park and Swanton.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department was called and the fire was put out by use of the chemical apparatus.

The fire started, it is stated, in the forward part of the bus where the gasoline tank is located and which was being filled at the time. It is thought that some gasoline dropping on the heated motor, caused an explosion and the flames were communicated to the woodwork of the car.

The bus is operated between Swanton and Oakland and carries quite a number of students over the route each day.

Repairs to the damaged vehicle will be made in a few days.

HIGH SCHOOL CARD PARTY IS SUCCESS; OTHER NOTES

Beaten in Soccer

Kitzmiller High school soccer team defeated the local booters at Kitzmiller on Tuesday, 1-0. Kitzmiller's lone score came as a result of a penalty kick. Both sides played well. Kitzmiller having a slight advantage. The Kitzmiller girls won from the Oakland girls in volleyball, 18-11. Last Thursday, October 10, Accident and Oakland soccer teams battled to a tie on the Accident field, both sides scoring two goals, while the volley ball game ended 14-9 in favor of Accident.

Miss Cornelia Fernald, teacher, spent the week-end at Washington, D. C., visiting friends.

Jacqueline Lockyer,
Bernard Gonder, Jr.,
School reporters.

Miss Isabel Hamill will be hostess at the Thursday night bridge club at her home on Oak street this evening.

VO-AG STUDENTS TO TAKE PART IN STATE JUDGING

Garrett County Boys Leave This Morning for Frederick

Pupils representing the vocational agriculture departments of Accident, Friendsville, Grantsville and Oakland High schools left this morning for Frederick where they will participate in the State dairy cattle and corn judging contests for Maryland vo-ag boys. The contest will be held tomorrow morning in connection with the Frederick County Fair.

The Oakland boys, accompanied by their instructor, O. T. Graser, are being taken to Frederick by Dan Spiker. They will be joined by the boys from the Friendsville, Accident and Grantsville school enroute.

While at Frederick they will attend a banquet as representatives of Oakland Chapter, Future Farmers of Maryland.

The Frederick Fair Association will furnish passes to the boys for Friday and will give four silver loving cups and $88.50 in cash prizes. The return trip will be made Saturday morning.

Amiesiting of Streets Is Now Completed.

Amiesiting of the principal streets of Oakland has been completed, according to Mayor Haley, and greatly improves the civic appearance of the town, as may readily be seen upon inspection and comparison with the conditions existing prior to the work just finished.

During the past month and a-half the following streets have been improved by the application of amiesite under the direction of an inspector, the work being done by Brady Brothers, contractors, of Frostburg: Liberty street, between Wilson and Second; Green street, between Second and the alley at Kerins' Garage; Second street between Oak and Pennington; Third street between Oak and Alder; Alder street between Second and Third, and Oak street between Third and Fourth.

The expense of laying the blocks of amiesite will be paid by the state, the municipality paying for the remainder of the work under a special financing plan.

Shoots Big Moose

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Yutzy and daughters Hasalcah and Dolores, of Crellin, have just returned from a two weeks' trip to Elgin, New Brunswick, where Mr. Yutzy went on a number of hunting expeditions. He was successful in bringing down a half moose weighing 1,300 pounds, with 15 points on his antlers.

Although Mr. Yutzy saw 43 moose on his hunting trip, the one he shot was the only one having more than 10 points. According to the law a moose must have that many before it can be shot. The head of the beast has been sent to Denver, Col., for mounting, and the meat stored until December or January when it will be sent here.

SURVEY SHOWS OAKLAND IS SUITED FOR INDUSTRIES

Textile Mills and Industries Requiring Female Labor Are Recommended In Pamphlet Issued

Conditions in Oakland point to its suitability for the successful operation of textile mills and other industries requiring large numbers of female labor, according to the industrial survey of the city recently completed by the Craig P. Gilbert Co., Inc., industrial representatives, and now in the hands of the Town Council of Oakland.

Conditions respecting location, power, transportation and other industrial essentials recommend it for mills producing the following: Cotton yarns, denims and shirtings, ducks and tickings, print cloth, rayon knit goods, hosiery and underwear, shirts and overalls, mattresses, house dresses, silk garments.

The survey, in presenting in concrete form, facts concerning the industrial opportunities offered by Oakland, includes population, transportation facilities, freight and express rates, accessibility, climate, labor, wages, present industries, labor laws, natural resources, electric power, fuel, water supply, taxes, industrial sites and general conditions relative to civic life.

An ample supply of competent native labor at fair wages; an industrially efficient and healthful all-year climate; an unlimited supply of electric power at low rates; transportation facilities unusually favorable; an abundant supply of good industrial water; low taxation; raw materials adapted to widely diversified industry a healthful and pleasant community in which to live; an attitude of friendliness and sincere cooperation.

The report on the survey says in part:

"Producers of coal tar products, artificial gas, coke, etc., will find Oakland a favorable location due to nearness of coal mines.

"Small timber makes possible production of woodenware, novelties, children's furniture and implement handles. There is a valuable deposit of fire clay in the near territory, obtainable under the most favorable conditions.

"Paper manufacturers, including producers of paper bags and envelopes, should investigate territory.

"Coal reserves are being widely developed at present in the Oakland region. Oakland leads as an agricultural producer of staple crops. Dairy farming is excellent and poultry farming is general. Buckwheat is one of the best crops. Vegetables are plentiful. The specialized manufacturer entering Oakland will find ample opportunity for vegetable canning, cheese products, coal by-products and meat packing."

Grantsville To Have Hallowe'en Social.

A Hallowe'en social, for the benefit of the Grantsvillle elementary school, will be held on Friday evening, October 18, in the Grantsville High school building. There will be a street parade at 7:00 o'clock and special prizes will be awarded winners who are costumed.

BEGGARS GO HOME RICH AFTER PLAYING UPON HEART STRINGS AND SYMPATHIES OF WOMEN OF COMMUNITY

Solicitors Gather Booty and Cart it Away in Automobiles—Comparatively Few Are in Need

A woman clad in rags, dirty, usually carrying a child who is still dirtier, knocks at the door of most any house in Oakland.

"Have you any old clothes? I have barely enough to cover my body and those of my children. Or any food? Thank you; this will keep me from starvation until next Tuesday," and with that she walks around the corner, out of sight and deposits the clothes and food in her automobile and drives on to the next victim.

By this method of playing upon the tender hearts of the majority of Oakland people a number of "beggars" and "solicitors" are reaping a harvest, according to the public health nurse.

They don't seem content with reaping just one harvest, she says but continue their "business" with clock-like regularity, and as often as they come to town just as often do they go home with their automobiles heavily laden with clothing, things to eat and whatnot.

A supply of clothing in the office of the public health nurse will take care of any needs of the really distressed of the county, is is said, but these regular "solicitors" won't go there for assistance because they know that the county health nurse has made a study of their family conditions and knows that they do not need help.

There is a city ordinance against begging, and when any town officials hear of these "solicitors" they put a spoke in their car wheel, Mayor L. M. Fraley told the writer.

There are really only a few people who need assistance, yet there are a considerable number who are richer by far than those from whom they beg. The family unable to afford an automobile, gives away clothing and food to the "solicitors" who use it for money to buy gasoline for their car to carry them on to the next "chicken-heart."

It's a great game—a whole lot easier than writing this story about it—and just as profitable.

LADIES ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY IN AUTO WRECK

Machine Driven by Mrs. J. W. Whorton Turns on Side

Mrs. J. W. Whorton, her mother Mrs. John W. Arnold, and her four-year old granddaughter were badly shaken up last Sunday evening about 6 o'clock when the Chevrolet coupe in which they were riding, left the highway at a point between Gortner and Oakland and turned over on its side.

They were lifted from the wreckage by passers-by who brought them to their home in Oakland, where an examination was made to see if they had sustained any serious injuries.

Although no bones were broken the two ladies were considerably shaken. Martha, the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilderoy A. Whorton, was the last one to be taken from the overturned car, and although she lay beneath the two ladies, she was unhurt.

The car was driven to Oakland under its own power and was only slightly damaged.

FOURTH ANNUAL BOWLING LEAGUE TO START SOON

Series of Contests to Get Under Way About November 15

The fourth annual series of contests between teams of the Oakland Bowling league will get under way about the middle of November, according to Joseph Hinebaugh, manager of the Recreation alleys, where the contests are held. The teams are made up from local churches and organizations.

The opening of the season is being delayed about 10 days due to repairs to the interior of the building now being planned, the manager stated.

A meeting of all those interested in the various teams of the league will be held in the near future at which time the rules, regulations, and membership, etc., will be decided upon. This year it is planned to have six teams in the league, two teams playing in one evening, games scheduled for three evenings of each week.

Last year there were eight teams in the league, the merchants winning the first round, and the Presbyterians taking the second round and the series championship. Last year games were scheduled on Monady and Thursday evenings, with two contests slated each evening.

"It is hoped that the plan for this year's matches will meet with better approval than that of last year," Mr. Hinebaugh said.

Joseph M. Gonder Elected Post Commander of Legion

Joseph M. Gonder was elected Post commander of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, at a special meeting held Monday night in the City hall. Harold Dawson was elected vice-post commander.

Other officers elected included Townshend Naylor, adjutant; Alex Hesen, finance officer; Rev. Fr. W. J. McVeigh, chaplain; Milton Sincell, historian; and James Pazzalari, sergeant-at-arms.

Plans for an armistice day celebration will be made at the regular meeting of the legion, which will be held on Monday evening, October 21, according to the new post commander. It is requested that all members be present.

Scouts Spend Saturday Night and Sunday in Camp

Twelve Scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1 and their scoutmaster spent Saturday night and Sunday at the permanent Boy Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake, nine miles north of Oakland, it being the first over-night hike since the camp period closed in August.

The Scouts prepared their own meals, and Carroll Casteel, Tenderfoot, passed his firebuilding test. Those making the trip included William Tillett, Robert Altstetter, Robert Utterback, Donald Stemple, Carroll Casteel, Logan Weber, William Kahl, Kenneth Lawton, Charles Davis, Arthur Lawton, Jr., Waller Hoye, Bernard Gonder, assistant scoutmaster, and the scoutmaster. Joseph Sollars, scribe, spent Sunday in camp.

Plans for participating in the Hallowe'en celebration on October 31 will be made at the meeting to be held tomorrow evening.

PRIZES FOR HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION ANNOUNCED

Cash Awards to be Made—Home of Witches to be Exciting Feature of Merriment

Cash prizes for those participating in the Mummers' parade on Hallowe'en have been announced by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department under whose auspices the mammoth Hallowe'en celebration and parade are being held. Many other prizes, yet to be selected, will be given away that evening, A. G. Gortner, a member of the committee, stated.

Cash prizes will be awarded as follows: $5 for out of town fire company making best appearance; $10 for most elaborate group of adults, $5 for second best; $5 for most comic costumed band, $2.50 for second best; $5 for most comic group of children, $2.50 for second best.

Last year twenty-two prizes were awarded to aduits, children and organizations taking part in the mummers' parade, held under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias lodge. Prizes last year were for the most elaborate costume, most comically dressed woman, comic adult couple, most comically dressed man, most comic float, fattest woman in the parade, most comic clown, most comic attraction, fattest boy, biggest man in parade, and others, and it was thought that the prizes to be selected will be given away to representatives of these individuals or groups, the same as last year.

To Have Home of Witches

The home of the witches will be another feature of the Hallowe'en celebration, according to Mr. Gortner. The witches' home will be in a tent somewhere along second street, he stated, and will be in charge of William A. Browning. "There will be many things of interest to everybody and no one should miss taking a look into this tent," Mr. Browning said.

Parade to Form on Alder

The parade will form at 6 o'clock on Alder street, between Fourth and fifth, as in previous years, and the line of march will include Oak street, Third street, Pennington or Crook street, and Second street. The procession will end in front of the First National Bank building, where the prizes will be awarded.

Oakland streets will be gayly decorated for the occasion by numerous colored lights, corn shocks, etc., and the majority of the merriment following the parade will take place between Liberty and Alder streets on second street.

There will be a masked ball and dance in Fraley's hall during the evening with prizes for the best costumes. A cedar chest and contents will be given away at 10 o'clock. This chest is now on display at the offices of the Monongahela system.

A meeting of the committees was held on Monady evening and plans are progressing in good order, Mr. Gortner concluded.

Knights of Pythias to Hold "Spelling Bee" on Friday

An old-fashioned "spelling bee", with all the old-fashioned characters that go with it, will be the attraction at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias at Castle hall tomorrow evening, according to Paul B. Naylor, chairman of the program committee.

"Captains of each side will be chosen as well as the school master," Mr. Naylor said, "and the side winning will be awarded a suitable prize."

A number of short talks were made at the meeting last week. Mr. Henry Lauer spoke on the progress of the K. of P. lodge from its organization until the present time; W. W. Dawson gave a short talk, and representatives from the Friendsville and Germania lodges made a few remarks. Gilbert's orchestra rendered several selections. Refreshments were served.

Northwestern Turnpike Is Now Open To Traffic.

U. S. Route 50, the Northwestern Turnpike, was opened for traffic last Saturday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock. The last stretch to be completed was at a point a short distance west of Gorman in Garrett county.

The opening of this road affords a continuous highway from Parkersburg, W. Va. to Winchester, Va., a distance of 211 miles. Whether or not there will be a formal opening of the highway will be determined at a meeting of the Northwestern Turnpike, Inc., to be held in Clarksburg, Friday.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

To Ralph Thayer, delivering a load of "Coal to Burn". "Did my father order some coal this morning?"

"This load of coal is for Mr. Zell."

"That's fine, I'm Gladys Zell."

Ralph—"So am I."

Claiming the Earth

A Saratoga paper says that Pittsburgh, Pa., has more people outside than inside its limits. That is nothing. So has Oakland, and if you would listen to the knockers you'd think they all wanted outside.

* * *

Sergeant Gonder Returns

Sergeant Gonder, alias Buster Keaton, alias Officer Crust, otherwise known as the Confederate soldier who never wears a Union suit while on duty, has returned from the Legion convention, and how! Accounts of his trip are free only to members of the local Legion Post and his closest friends. All others must pay cash, and then probably not hear all the details.

His only regret, he said, was that Soldier Halsey wasn't present. The Republican received a card from Louisville, Legion convention town, last week which said, "Am having a h— of a time." This wasn't so bad, but the picture on the other side of the card showed the Y. M. C. A. building.

Social Notes

"Patch-eye" Hinebaugh is slowly convalescing from the trimming the Chicago Cubs took from the Philadelphia Athletics. He appeared to be almost well on Saturday but suffered a terrible relapse Monday afternoon. Col. Bell administered first aid, but he also finally collapsed in the final frame of the ninth inning.

Betty Dawson got a little pale around the gills on Saturday and would have been an ill personage today had not Haas, Bishop, Simmons and Miller knocked a couple of pills for a loop and made the Cubs swallow some of their own medicine.

Now for the Hunt

Now all the members of the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work can turn their untiring energies to hunting. Jim Painter and Harry Mickey have already made themselves scarce. They haven't attended an Amalgamated meeting since Thad Hinebaugh sprung his invention. Jim has a special arrangement on his gun whereby a fish hook and line are shot out of the barrel, which hooks the prey by the left ventricle. "This does not scare the mama and papa and other related animals away and the bag limit can be caught at one sittin'," he says. Harry Mickey uses a similar arrangement and in addition carries an axe to clear a path to the animal in case of heavy underbrush.

* * *

Since most of those who participated in the Corn parade are "still running" around, they have decided to be in the swim along with the rest of them and are threatening to organize a rod and "reel" club. All they need are the rods. They will have plenty of "reels." They can be seen practicing reeling most any hour of the day or night. Garrett county seems to be a manufacturing center for "reels."

* * *

There isn't anything fishy about it. It is real.

Broken Hearted

One of Oakland's elite, eligible, and whatever other kind of bachelors there are, opened up his heart to Scoop and Archibaldson the other day and told us one of his former love affairs. It seems like the fair damsel up and left him flat, and he, in a fit of asthma, wrote the following spasm:

Is she went
Are she gone
Has she left I all alone
Her can never come to we I's can never go to she
It cannot was.

Archibaldson was all for publishing his name, but Scoop valued his safety too well. Anyway use your own judgment. He lives in Oakland.

Hallowe'en Time

Col. Bell got out his trusty camera this week in preparation for taking an exclusive picture of Michael Maroney, official witch doctor for the firemen during the Hallowe'en celebration. Mike has already started brewing his concoction for that evening as it takes about two weeks to make the stuff potent enough to cure corns, fever blisters, stomach disorders, chilblains and dandruff, and he wants to be able to satisfy everybody who comes into his tent under Sincell's awning on that evening.

Mike is also brushing up on the Indian language so he can pronounce the magic words over the steaming cauldron that will bring quick and quack relief to the suffering.

His assistants have been gathering snakes, toads, lizards and other animals as these enrich the medicinal conglomeration.

Getting All Ready

M. J. Burns and a number of men employed by the Southern Pipe Line Company are making rapid progress in clearing one of the pipe lines for natural gas, which will be piped from West Virginia gas fields to Philadelphia, Pa. The line passes a short distance from Grantsville, and the men are making their headquarters at the National Hotel.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. Pete Broadwater, president; Mrs. Mollie Garlitz, secretary; Mrs. G. Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Chauncey, chairman of social committee.

The meetings will be held the second Wednesday of each month.

A Junior 4-H Club was also organized by Miss Gantt.

Grantsville, 6; Kitzmiller, 2

By defeating Kitzmiller in a fast game of soccer played here Friday, Grantsville jumped into the lead in the Garrett County Soccer race. Early in the game Livengood scored a field goal from a free kick by Patton which gave Grantsville the edge which they held throughout the game. The other field goal was also made by Livengood from a pass by Folk. The two extra points were made by penalty kicks by Patton.

Kitzmiller's attack was strong but could do little against the great defensive work of Patton playing at full-back. Folk, Livengood, Blocher, and Rodamer, also played an outstanding game for Grantsville.

In the Volley Ball game Grantsville easily defeated Kitzmiller by the one-sided score of 20 to 9. Swauger, Baker, and Custer played a good game for Grantsville.

Miss Stein Entertained

Miss Delta Gantt entertained at Bridge in honor of Miss Bertha Stein, who has been employed as bookkeeper at J. J. Bender's store and will leave this week for Pittsburgh, Pa. Four tables were in play and the prize was won by Miss Lena Hamburg and guest prize by Miss Stein.

RATIONS FOR THE DAIRY COW WHEN GRASS IS GONE

Supplements For the Feed on Hand

The selection of a good mixture to go with the dry roughage and home-grown grain is a problem the dairyman has to solve at this season of the year. Such a mixture should supply a variety and amount of protein sufficient to meet the deficiencies of the home-grown feeds available and to supply the dairy cow with nutrients sufficient to permit her to produce a satisfactory yield of milk.

When fed in conjunction with such low protein roughage as corn fodder, corn silage, timothy hay, etc., it is necessary to have a mixture carrying from 18 to 20 per cent of protein. With roughage like clover, alfalfa, or soybean hay, 13 to 16 per cent of protein is sufficient. Where a combination of the roughage mentioned above are fed, a mixture with 16 to 18 per cent digestible protein will serve the purpose.

To meet all the requirements, a concentrate mixture must have variety, be sufficiently light and bulky, and supply nutrients at low cost.

While it is common to compare feeds on the basis of their cost per ton, it is even more important to consider their relative cost of nutrients. One feed may cost less per ton than another and yet, from the standpoint of the nutrients contained in it, may be more expensive and less desirable. In order to purchase either seperate ingredients or commercial feeds intelligently, it is necessary to be familiar with the composition of the feed as well as the price per ton. Neither of these items alone gives the dairyman information on which he can purchase feed economically; they must be considered in their relation to each other.

Wheat bran is now quoted at approximately $40 per ton, linseed oilmeal at $66, and cottonseed meal (42 per cent at $52. Considering these prices in relation to the content of digestible protein in each of these feeds, one hundred pounds of digestible protein in wheat bran costs $16, in linseed oilmeal, $11, and in cottonseed meal, $7. Purely and simple as a source of protein, linseed meal, even at $66 per ton, is a cheaper source of protein than wheat bran at $40 per ton.

In purchasing and compounding grain mixtures be sure, first, that such mixtures balance the roughage portion of the ration, and second, that they are economical from the standpoint both of cost per ton and cost of nutrients. Information regarding the composition of feeds may be obtained by writing to the College of Agriculture, University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland.

USEFUL WORK A CHRISTIAN DUTY

LESSON TEXT—Gen. 2:15, Ex. 20:9, John 5:17, John 9:4, Acts 20:33-35, II Thess. 3:10.

GOLDEN TEXT—This we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing Our Work Well.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Doing Our Work Well.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Honest Work Essential to Success.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gambling Spirit Hurtful to Business and Morals.

I. The First Man Set to Work (Gen. 2:15).

Work was God's primal thought for man. Even in the state of innocence man was to have useful employment. With the coming of sin, new burdens were added.

II. The Time to Work (Ex. 20:9).

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." Six out of seven days should be devoted to work. Idleness on any of the six days is as great a sin before God as working on the seventh day. Let it never be forgotten that the fourth commandment is an ordinance of labor as well as rest; in fact, there can be no rest unless there has been work. The idler and the Sabbath breaker are equally guilty before God.

III. The Working of the Father and the Son (John 5:17).

The God of the Bible is a working God. It is true that God, when His creative work was done, rested; that is, desisted from creative work, but there is other work besides that of creation. There is no such thing as inactivity in the divine kingdom. God is in His ceaseless activity everywhere. To be godlike is to be active.

Jesus had healed an impotent man on the Sabbath day. The Jews sought to kill Him for this good deed, and when He linked Himself with God in this, they more earnestly sought to kill him, because He made Himself equal with God. The special points of equality with God were:

1. Giving life to the dead.

2. Judging mankind (John 5:22).

His claim to being the judge of all mankind was His supreme claim to Deity.

IV. Urgency of the Work (John 9:4).

"I must work the works of God while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work."

These words were uttered in connection with the appalling need of the man who was born blind. Delivering lost men and women from their sins is the work of God which must be done. The night is coming when no work can be done. The night therefore for the world is when Jesus is withdrawn from it.

V. Paul an Example of Working (Acts 20:33-35).

Paul did not work to hoard up money, but to support himself while preaching the gospel. A truly great preacher is the one who preaches not only in word but in deed.

VI. The Man Who Will Not Work Should Not Eat (II Thess. 3:10).

Growing out of Paul's teaching concerning the coming of the Lord, a tendency to idleness developed at Thessalonica. They reasoned that if the Lord's coming was so near, work was useless. The true teaching concerning the coming of the Lord is, "Occupy till I come." Earnest attention to present duty is the scriptural attitude toward the second coming of Christ. Those who will not work should not eat. This is the right principle upon which to base all works of charity. It is the efficient cure for pauperism. It exhibits the right economic order and should apply to all classes.

VII. The Object of Work (Eph. 4:28).

This text sets forth the only three ways by which to get money or possessions of any kind.

1. To steal.

Theft was common among the heathen. It is common today, even in civilized countries. Many ways of obtaining money can be designated by theft.

2. To receive as gifts.

3. To work for.

To have possessions which have been stolen is, of course, wrong. To have that which benefactors have given is right, even though it may not bring a blessing. To have that which we have earned is not only honorable, but gives personal satisfaction in that it has come through toil.

Master of the Situation

There is always the unknown quantity, always the equation we cannot solve. It would seem that it is not the will of God that we should in our toil for Him feel ourselves masters of the situation. It must be enough to know that He is Master of it.—P. C. Ainsworth.

God Always Answers

God always answers prayer, but sometimes in His infinite wisdom He says, "No."—Baptist Record.

BLOCKING THE PRESIDENT

Less than a year ago Herbert Hoover was elected President of the United States by the most overwhelming majority ever given a chief executive in a hotly contested election. During the campaign Mr. Hoover openly proclaimed his policies and his program. Along with Mr. Hoover his program was endorsed. It was a national popular referendum of the most impressive sort. In view of the fact that in all congressional elections local personalities and issues are involved, it was the only clear-cut national decision as to what the people wanted in the way of policies and leadership during the next four years.

Curiously enough, while this is essentially a nation where the rule of the majority is supposed to prevail, many American political leaders who loudly profess their fealty to that principle, are boisterously busy in trying to make "hash" of the Hoover program. They pride themselves in any "defeat" they can inflict upon the President; any recommendation they can disregard; any purpose they can obstruct. Usual respect for majority opinion, for popular government, would seem to dictate that the people having decided in favor of certain policies and a chief executive to lead in getting them into execution, Congress should cooperate, and there should be team-work in getting results along the lines suggested by President Hoover in conformity with the platform upon which he was elected.

It is evident, however, that with a faction in the Senate that seems to constitute a majority, the battle-cry is "Anything to thwart Hoover." Anything, in other words, to prevent the realization of the plans to which the people have given endorsement, in which they believe, for the fulfillment of which they hope.

This may be good politics. That is doubtful. There is no reason to believe that the hold of President Hoover on the American majority has been weakened. There is every reason to believe that there is as general faith in and approval of his plans for national betterment as there was a year ago. It may be good politics to fight majority opinion. It may be good politics to hamper and hamstring the Hoover program. But the chances are that faith in Hoover will remain and faith in those who are taking such pains to wreck his administration will weaken. The people having elected Hoover President, having endorsed his principles and program, and having not otherwise nationally expressed their faith and belief in anybody or anything, will probably charge up the present factious opposition to a disposition to obstruct national progress, national well being. It is the most shortsighted and futile politics the factional and partisan enemies of President Hoover are playing. Most of them are defying majorities rolled up in their own states. The hope of the American people for team work in advancing the well being of the nation is fading, but the confidence they are losing is not in the President who is trying to make good, but in those who are so busily engaged in trying to see to it that he shall fail.

CORPORATION FARMING

Some economic authorities have always predicted that eventually farming would come largely into the hands of corporations, who would cultivate great tracts of land, or operate chains of such big farms on a quantity production scale.

They claim that this is the tendency of modern industry, to concentrate in large units. One trouble with modern farming, they say, is that it remains mostly on the basis of the small individual farm, whereas in most of the industries, a great part of the production is done on a very large scale. They claim that by uniting groups of farms under a single head, many excesses could be cut out and the operations simplified and unified and made more scientific, the same as may be done when a group of factories are combined under a single head.

Such plans may work out in time, and one finds corporations in some lines of production carrying on large scale farm work very successfully.

But the small individual farmer has distinct advantages. He does not quit at four or five o'clock because his eight hour day is over. It might be very difficult in certain lines of production to handle the crops in good shape, with gangs of men working labor union hours. The individual farmer's thought is on that farm all the time. Even when his hours of rest come, he is planning and studying as to how he can get the best returns. This close personal attention gets many results which could not be had from hired labor working fixed hours.

Individual farmers can greatly improve their efficiency, by combining with their neighbors, for the joint use of expensive machinery and for marketing their crops.

MT. LAKE PARK.

The Master Painter has again dipped his brush in the rainbow and produced the most gorgeous picture it has been our fortune to behold. The mountains and the glades are a riot of color. The ground is carpeted with the deep rich brown of the changing leaves of the huckleberry and ivey; the slopes of the mountain, as far as the eye can distinguish, are literally covered with the reddish-brown of the oaks, varying shades of yellow and maroon of the maples, with a splash of the deep red of the mountain ash and sumac, here and there, deeply fringed or intermingled with the fresh green of the pine and rhodendrum. It is indeed a picture to inspire the deepest reverence and the involuntary exclamation "Raboni"!—Master. On a drive to Friendsville last Sunday, one of the ladies in a party, after exhausting all the exclamations of wonderment of which she was capable, said, "Well, Heaven may possibly be more beautiful than this, but I will have to be shown."

You will be well repaid for a trip in any direction here on the mountain top.

"Interdenominational Committee for the Development of Mountain Lake Park," sounds rather good, does it not?

Do you remember when chestnuts were brought to the stores here almost by the wagon load? Too bad something could not have been found to check the blight which has almost destroyed that useful and ornamental tree. Kelso's chestnut orchard, at the top of Backbone, is a sorry sight.

And the wild flowers have about all been destroyed by late burning of leaves and weeds. That's not a complaint just a statement of fact.

THE MARYLAND WATER AND SEWAGE ASSOCIATION

Sanitary Engineering Problems Discussed in Book Just Issued

Sanitary engineering problems of interest to health officials and to all concerned with community well-being, are discussed in the report of the proceedings of the third annual meeting of the Maryland Water and Sewerage Association, which has just come off the press and of which copies may be obtained through the secretary, Mr. F. W. Caspari, Division Engineer of the Maryland State Department of Health.

The objects of the Association—the advancement of the knowledge of design, construction, operation and management of water and sewerage systems and of the treatment of industrial wastes—are indicated by the subjects discussed. These include: "Methods and Costs of Water and Sewer Construction in the Washington Suburban Sanitary District," by H. R. Devilbliss, Department Engineer of that District; "Pumping Sewage in the Baltimore County Metropolitan District," by J. F. Diggs, Jr., principal assistant engineer for sewer extensions for that district; "The Design of Salisbury's Water and Sewer Systems," by G. B. Leonard, assistant city engineer of Salisbury; "Well Water Supplies," by W. N. Spring, of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the Maryland State Department of Health; "The Selection of Pumping Equipment for Well Supplies," by E. G. Kastenhuber, Jr., consulting engineer of Easton; "The Control of Filter Washing," by Edward S. Hopkins, principal sanitary chemist of the water department, Baltimore.

The volume also contains a report by Mr. Caspari on the "Typhoid Fever Outbreak at Eastport during the summer of 1928, and the relief measures applied. In connection with the latter, reference is made to the saving of both time and money in the ultimate installation of a protected water supply, effected through the use of an aerial map based upon an aerial survey made under the direction of the Anne Arundel County Sanitary Commission by Major Wm. B. Tipton, of the Chesapeake Aircraft Corporation of Baltimore. The possibilities of such surveys in municipal improvements are shown in a paper under that title by Major Tipton.

Another engineering problem is discussed in a paper on "Tomato Cannery Waste Treatment," by Roland Webster, manager of the Rock Hall Cooperative Cannery. A paper by G. W. Stephens, Jr., chief engineer of the Roland Park Company, Baltimore, on "Landscape Treatment of Surroundings of Water and Sewerage Plants," emphasizes the importance of esthetic consideration as well as of the utilitarian features in the arrangement of water and sewer plants.

Other papers of special interest to technicians include one on "Layne-Atlantic Wells," by H. R. Schwitzer, of Norfolk; and one on "The Kelley Concrete Well," by E. W. Beunison, of Grand Island, Nebraska. The volume is concluded by a "Question Box" on which various practical questions are asked and answered.

SAVED THEIR NEST-EGG

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

RUTH sat with her hands clasped tightly in her lap and listened to Mr. Ellington, her new employer, explain their product. The offices were glaringly new; new rug, new yellow oaken furniture, new typewriter and a lecture room adjoining with several rows of new yellow chairs, facing a brand new blackboard.

"You see," said Mr. Ellington with eloquent gestures of his fat, bejeweled hand, "we have them in nearly all the largest cities in the country; Chicago, New York, Boston, St. Louis, San Francisco—the greatest little money-maker ever invented. People must eat! All right! These machines are filled daily with box lunches, compact and sanitary—sandwich, pickle, fruit, pie or cake, see? And these pasteboard boxes are fitted into slot machines which are refilled by our wagons from the factory several times a day, see? These machines are set up near factories, schools, recreation centers, office buildings and so on. They deposit a quarter and presto! A lunch! Bound to sell! Can't help it! Now our part here in this office is to sell the machines. We are putting on a force of salesmen who will cover the city and sell these slot machines to individuals at $170 each, see? And out of the daily proceeds from the lunches purchased, the owner of that machine gets half. Greatest little money maker in the country—the machine pays for itself in a year at the rate these lunches sell when they get started, and then it is all clean gravy, see?

"Now," he continued, "we will start on folding these circulars and getting them ready. The ads for salesmen are in all the papers today and they will be coming in here by the dozens. Tomorrow we start our lectures and next week there will be several machines in operation. Greatest little money-maker in the world, Miss Harrison."

Ruth sat at the bright yellow desk and started to fold the circulars before her. She didn't like Mr. Ellington; she didn't like the job. She longed for the daily orderly routine she had followed for seven years over in Mr. Aiken's law office; the position she had left just yesterday, so that Don couldn't find her. She would show him! He would be calling up this morning and no one knew where she'd gone.

It had been a bitter quarrel and Don had said—although his eyes had told her otherwise—that he never wanted to see her again until she had taken back what she had said. She had replied she never would, but of course, Don would come back to her. He just couldn't stay away. They loved each other; they had been engaged three years, and were to be married in June! The thousand dollars which they had set as their goal was in the bank—their "nest-egg" with which to furnish their little apartment. Don had worked hard to accumulate that money and they were both very proud of the little bank book Ruth had kept until she gave it back to him—the night they quarreled.

"Finest little money maker in the country—" Mr. Ellington was saying to a shabby, tired looking young man who had come in in response to the ad. "Our salesmen make $35 on every machine they sell and the salesmen in St. Louis average around $400 per week. Just come back tomorrow and attend our lectures. We show you how—Tell you how—"

The Happy Hooligan Lunch company flourished the first few weeks. Their advertising drew salesmen by the dozens, and they sold the machines. Business was good—and then it lagged. Ruth was very unhappy. There had been two letters from Don the first week and one night he had called at the house and urged Mrs. Adams, her landlady, to ask Ruth to the door, but the good woman faithfully followed Ruth's instructions. Then he had written her a note. "You won't give me a chance and I've tried to see you. I'm through. The next move will be yours."

And then the "Happy Hooligan Lunch company" met with serious reverses. The civic organizations investigated and there was considerable publicity. Mr. Ellington and his assistants were worried. The salesmen dropped off one by one; men came into the office and held long conferences. Ruth saw suspicious correspondence handled over her desk, and it was on the day that she thoroughly realized she was in the employ of fake promoters who had gained disrepute in other cities, that one of the few remaining salesmen on the force rushed into the office waving a paper in his hand.

"I got that bird at last, but he was hard nut to crack! But I got him—to the tune of six machines. One thousand and fifty dollars! Told him he would be rich in a year! I am going to meet him at 12 o'clock at the National bank and get—cold cash! Come on, Ellington, sign your John Hancock to a little check for me—I need it!"

Mr. Ellington beamed and rubbed his fat hands together raspingly. "That is fine, O'Connor—fine! That will add a little impetus to our arguments today. Miss Harrison will you prepare this contract ready for our prospect's signature this noon, and I can show it to those three who promised to come in at 11." He turned to leave the office. "And O'Connor, I'll pay you your commission when I see that thousand fifty—cold cash—and his name on the dotted line."

Ruth inserted a contract form in her typewriter and looked down at the paper on her desk. A name jumped out of the scrawl—"Donald Mullen." Don—one thousand and fifty dollars! Their "nest egg." At 12 o'clock that precious savings account would be in the hands of the "Happy Hooligan Lunch company," lost. She saw O'Connor leave the office at 11:45. She could not leave until on the hour. The bank was four blocks away and the usual noonday crowds thronged the streets. It was 12:10 when she sped through the portals of the National bank. At the further end before the tellers' window she saw Don—dear Don—counting a sheaf of bills in his hand. O'Connor stood expectantly near, hand outstretched.

She was just half-way down that long stretch of floor when Don started to hand the money to the salesman.

"Don," she cried, "Don! Oh, don't."

Donald looked up quickly and O'Connor made a move to take the money. Ruth darted between them, breathless. "Don," she whispered, "Don—don't—don't—lose—our — nest-egg. Let me explain."

He took her arm gently. "Why, Ruthie, what is it—"

O'Connor broke in gruffly: "Well, let's settle this business first, Mullen, so I can be on my way. Ten fifty—and here is the contract."

"The business is settled, Mr. O'Connor. Mr. Mullen is—not—going—to—buy—one of—those machines." Ruth spoke clearly, slowly.

"This is infamous, Miss Harrison. I shall report you to Mr. Ellington at once."

"Please do. Also tell him that he can have my half-week's salary. He will need it to get back East on. You can tell him I have resigned to get married—and that that money is going to buy furniture—no sandwiches, pickles and cake machines—and he will understand."

L. B. Wilson Elected Telephone President

Heads Chesapeake and Potomac Companies in Md., Va., W. Va., and D. C.

Lloyd B. Wilson

Lloyd B. Wilson succeeds the late Albert E. Berry as president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company operating in the District of Columbia; the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City operating in the State of Maryland; the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia, and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia. He has also been elected a director of these companies.

Mr. Wilson, who is a native of Nebraska, has had a varied and extensive experience in the telephone industry covering a period of more than thirty years. He entered the employ of the Bell System in 1899 in the capacity of night telephone operator at Plattsmouth, while pursuing his studies in the public schools during the day. Two years later he was working as installer and repairman, and in 1903 was appointed manager at Central City. In 1906 he received the appointment of district manager for the western part of Nebraska.

He became commercial superintendent for the states of Nebraska and South Dakota in 1913. Four years later he was appointed commercial superintendent for the states of Minnesota and North Dakota with headquarters at Minneapolis, and in 1919 was advanced to the postion of general commercial superintendent of the entire Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, embracing the states of Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, and Minnesota.

In this enlarged field he demonstrated unusual executive ability and had an active part in firmly establishing the telephone business in that extensive area. In 1925 he was called to the staff of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, New York City, where he has been engaged in the development of the commercial phases of the telephone industry from a nation-wide viewpoint. Mr. Wilson assumed his new duties at Washington on September 1.

RESULTS OF THE SUMMER ROUND-UP OF DEPARTMENT

Many Children Examined By Specialists of the State

Beginning in the early spring and continuing during the summer, special child health conferences for the examination of children from five to seven who were getting ready for admission to school, were held throughout the counties under the joint auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, the Deputy State Health officers, the State Department of Education and the Parent-Teacher Associations. In announcing the results of these conferences, Dr. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that the names of many children were obtained through the superintendents and teachers of schools and that through the courtesy of the Department of Education, many of the conferences were held in the school buildings.

Special attention was given by the examining physicians to weight, posture, the heart, nose, throat, teeth, vision and hearing, because of their important bearing upon the general health of the children and their freedom or susceptibility to disease. Conditions that needed to be corrected were pointed out and the parents were urged to take their children to the family doctor or dentist for the necessary care. Every county was visited in connection with the conferences and was represented in the total number of children examined.

Of the 3,755 children from five to seven years old, 3,240 white and 515 colored, examined at these conferences, considerably over half, a total of 2,041—1,808 white and 232 colored—needed dental attention. Unfavorable throat conditions were observed in 1,287—white 1,177 and colored, 110—as a result of enlarged or infected tonsils. Adenoids were present in 556—white, 515 and colored, 41—and among them were 262 mouth breathers—262 white and 20 colored.

One-fourth of the total—871, white, 813, and colored, 58, were underweight. Unfavorable conditions of the lungs were present in 97, of whom 88 were white and 9 colored; and of the heart in 99, of whom 90 were white and 9 colored. Bone changes due to rickets were observed in 110, of whom 88 were white, and 22 colored, and faulty posture in 252—236 white and 16 colored. Vision was defective in 56 white and two colored, and hearing in the same number, 50 white and 6 colored. Mental retardation was observed in 15 white and 2 colored. Considerably more than half the children—2,023 white and 193 colored—had not been vaccinated against smallpox, and the parents were notified that in accordance with the Maryland law, the children could not be admitted to school until they were vaccinated.

MARRIAGE LICENSE TOTAL THUS FAR NEAR THOUSAND

991 Permits Have Been Granted By Clerk During Present Year

With the issuance of 26 marriage licenses from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court this week the total for the first nine and one-half months of the year has reached 991. The total for the month of October thus far is 45, and according to E. Z. Tower, Clerk, it is unlikely that October's record will be surpassed. The record for October was made in 1925 when 143 licenses were issued. Last year there were 115. Thirteen of the marriage permits granted during the past week were issued on Saturday. ## BITTINGER.

A quarrel of considerable consequence, in which it is said guns were used took place at the home of John Swauger, near Jennings, on Tuesday evening of last week. The principals in the affray were King George Berkholder, a notorious moon-shiner and bootlegger, and John Swauger, of equal notoriety. The reserve forces were made up of Vincent Fazenbaker and Loman Wilt and Swauger's sons. No one was seriously hurt and when Sheriff Casteel and his deputies arrived on the scene the belligerents had signed a peace pact and everything seemed lovely.

Operation of the coal mines, near Jennings, continues, under the management of Mr. Hock, and there is need of a number of additional miners at that place. The superintendent says that the coal is finding a ready market and they are not able to fill orders as rapidly as they are received. If this industry proves to be a permanent operation it will mean much to this section of the country.

Wesley Thomas, manager of the Truesdale farm, near Deer Park, paid this section his first visit on Monday of last week and expressed himself as mightily pleased with the agricultural possibilities of this neighborhood.

Deputy Sheriff Griffith, constable Thomas Seymour and sheriff Casteel, all of Oakland, made an official visit to the Jennings section early last week.

Ford Production to Reach Two Million Units This Year

"Production of passenger and commercial cars during September, 1929, totalled 161,305 units, a heavy increase over production during the same month the preceding year.

"An increased production schedule has been set for October, calling for an output of 175,000 Model A cars and Model AA trucks. The program for October anticipates a gain of 47,000 units over the production of October, 1928, when 127,225 units were produced.

"Total Ford production for the first nine months of the current year aggregated 1,633,498 units. Advance schedules indicate that production of Model A cars and Model AA trucks for the fall year will exceed 2,000,000 units.

"The program adopted for October means that the Rouge Plant will continue on a full five-day schedule. Employment in the Ford plants remain at a high level, with 108,138 employees working in the three large plants of the Detroit area on October 2."

COUNTY SCHOOL TEACHERS ALL HAVE A-1 STANDING

114 Instructors Have First Grade Certificates; Garrett One of Few Counties to Attain Perfection

That all teachers in the public elementary and high schools have first grade certificates was reported to the State Superintendent of Schools in Baltimore by County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun in his annual report, recently submitted.

This record for 1929-1930 brings to perfection that which Mr. Rathbun has been striving since the year 1922, when there were only 18 first grade certificated teachers employed in the public school system in the county.

The increase in the certificated teachers has been steadily increasing since that time and the record was almost perfect last year with 153 certificated teachers, 4 second grade and 3 third grade. The record made by Garrett county this year brings it on a par with the other two or three counties in the State where every teacher has a first grade certificate, and where the educational system bears the stamp of advancement, according to the State Superintendent of Schools.

Since the State's educational program in 1922 called for competent, well-trained teachers in hearty accord with American ideals in every public school position in Maryland, there has been a steady increase in the number of first grade certificated teachers, with a corresponding decrease in the number of second grade and third grade instructors in Garrett county. Since 1922 the number of second grade teachers has decreased from 25 to none, while the third graders have decreased from 56 to none.

The requirements for an elementary first grade teacher's certificate were given by Mr. Rathbun as four years of high school work with graduation, and two years of normal school work with graduation, or the equivalent.

Due to consolidation of schools, the establishment and maintenance of bus lines to the rural districts, and other causes looking to the increased efficiency of the educational system, there has been a slight decrease in the number of teachers employed in the county this year as compared with last year. This year there are 114 teachers; last year there were 163 and in 1927-28 there were 169. This is not inclusive of high school teachers, which have increased in number due to increased enrollment and the establishment of a new high school at Kempton in 1928. There are approximately 35 high school teachers.

"With the teaching staff of the schools of the county now on a basis of 100 per cent," Mr. Rathbun said, "the high aims of the State educational program will be carried out that of giving every child in the State an equal opportunity to learn."

INSPECTION OF MARKETS TO BE MADE BY FARMERS

Garrett County Group Will Go To New York on Sunday

In order to see just how various classes of farm products, both plant and animal, are received, handled, graded and distributed, a group of Maryland farmers, county agents, and Extension specialists will make a tour of inspection through New York City's market terminals October 27, 28 and 29.

John H. Carter, county agent, Harry Paugh, Oakland; William Miller, Accident; and Perry Umbel, Friendsville, will leave here Sunday morning at 9 o'clock and join the group.

The fruit and vegetable auction, the arrival and handling of milk in cans and in tank cars at the New York Central milk platform, the Dairymen's League, the Merchants' Refrigerator, the United Dressed Beef company and the Pacific Egg producers, are some of the places which will be visited and methods of handling different kinds of farm products will be observed.

This tour, for the purpose of studying methods employed at markets to which farmers are shipping their products, was arranged through the cooperation of the Extension service of the University of Maryland and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company. The farmers and county agents who make the tour are from the counties in Maryland traversed by the B. and O. This is the first tour of this kind to be made.

PITTSBURGHERS PURCHASE KENDALL TIMBER TRACTS

$166,000 Is High Bid Received at Court Sale of Kendall Property on Saturday

The large holdings of the Kendall lumber company, of Pittsburgh, in Preston and Monongalia counties, said to be worth more than a half million dollars and against which there is indebtedness amounting to more than $100,000, were sold at Kingwood, W. Va., on Saturday by Special Commissioner J. V. Gibson for $166,000. Thomas Watson and O. J. Styber of Pittsburgh were the purchasers.

Watson and Styber are money brokers of Pittsburgh and are understood to have connections with the Evans Manor Land Company and S. E. Weiler, both of Pittsburgh. The Evans company and Weiler, together held mortgage bonds amounting to $400,000 to secure loans amounting to $220,000.

The Pittsburghers purchased the entire holdings of the lumber company, excepting a 3-acre tract on Lake Lynn which was purchased by Glenn Hunter, of Morgantown, for $160. Mr. Hunter maintains a camp on the tract.

After court costs, expenses of sale, and taxes which will amount probably to $20,000, Clayton & Brown, of Philadelphia, brokers who held $50,000 first mortgages, secured by Chess and J. M. McGuffey tracts aggrerating 15,200 acres in Monongalia and Preston counties, will be paid in full.

After a vendor's lien of $3,600 on the Cunningham tract of 200 acres in Grant district, Preston county, held by S. E. Ryan, and certain labor liens have been paid, the balance will be applied on the Evans Manor Land Company and S. B. Weiler claims.

The sale was ordered by Judge A. G. Hughes in the Preston county circuit court at a special term on September 19, when the report of Special Commissioner C. P. Wilhelm of Kingwood was received. The case was brought into court by the suit of the Rowlesburg Grocery company vs. The Kendall Lumber company at the March term in 1928, when the plaintiff was given a judgment against a 300 acre tract in Grant district, Preston county.

Included in the sale of the entire holdings of the lumber company were approximately 20,000 acres of timber land in Monongalia and Preston county, and all of the personal property. The personal property includes the mill at Cheat Haven, 200,000 feet of logs piled in the woods, 150,000 feet of lumber, 21 logging and railroad cars, 14 miles of steel rails, a locomotive and various other equipment.

In addition there are dozen of valuable rights of way in both counties for the removal of timber.

Civic Club To Meet

The Oakland Civic club will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. James Treacy, on Tuesday afternoon, October 29, at 3 o'clock. After the business session the time will be devoted to a musical program.

CONTRACT IS GIVEN OUT FOR O. H. S. ADDITION

Work on Structure to Commence Latter Part of This Week—To Cost Approximately $25,000

The contract for erecting the addition to The Oakland High school building was awarded to William E. Priest, Uniontown, Pa., according to the County Board of Education, and work on the structure will commence the latter part of this week. The addition will cost approximately $25,000 it was stated.

The contractor just recently completed the erection of the First M. P. church in Uniontown, at an approximate cost of $100,000, and is highly recommended as a producer of high grade workmanship.

J. W. Whorton, local contractor, will erect the foundation, it was said.

Work on the addition will not interfere with classes in the High school, F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, stated, and recitations will go on as usual.

Will Add Six New Rooms

The addition to the building will be 50 feet wide by 108 feet long, two stories in height, of brick construction, and will contain six standard size class rooms with an extension of the study hall on the second floor. The study hall will be extended three feet more than was originally planned, and when completed will be 37 by 85 feet, with a balcony at one end, and a modern sized stage at the other end. The addition will be attached to the rear of the building, and the 108 feet sides will face east and west. With favorable weather conditions the building will be completed by the first of the year.

The Malfert property, adjoining the school property, was purchased by the County Board of Education at the last meeting, to relieve the congested condition. The price paid was $7,100.

With this additional property, there will be plenty of room for expansion whenever necessary.

SERVICES FOR ARMISTICE DAY PLANNED BY LEGION

Parade at 2 P. M. With Community Program in Maryland Theatre

Plans for a parade and appropriate services for Armistice Day, November 11, were made at the regular meeting of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, at the City Hall, Monday evening.

There will be a parade at 2 o'clock in the afternoon consisting of school children, Oaklend Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, and the members of the Legion, after which there will be a community program in the Maryland theatre. This program will commence at 3 o'clock, Joseph M. Gonder, post commander, stated.

The Legionaires also installed officers for the ensuing year at the meeting on Monday night. The following officers were installed: Joseph M. Gonder, post commander; Harold Dawson, vice commander; Townshend Naylor, adjutant; Alex Hesen, finance officer; Rev. Fr. W. J. McVeigh, chaplain; Milton Sincell, historian; and James Fazzalari, sergeant-at-arms.

The new post commander made an appropriate address and included in his remarks words of appreciation to the retiring officers and the membership for the excellent condition of the post when entrusted to his care. He asked for a continued support of the membership and of the community at large in order that the local post might be of value to the county.

Forestry Specialist To Be In the County Three Days

Mr. F. B. Trenk, forestry specialist, University of Maryland, will be in Garrett county on November 6, 7 and 8, according to John H. Carter, county agent, and will work with those interested in the maple sugar and maple syrup industry. Anyone desiring to make an appointment with Mr. Trenk should notify the county agent as soon as convenient.

Child Badly Scalded.

The five year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niner, Crellin, was badly scalded Monday morning when it fell into a vessel containing boiling water. Dr. McComas rendered medical aid. The burns are serious on one of the child's legs, its arm and back. At the present time she is said to be resting fairly comfortable.

Installment Plan.

Everyhody Be There

Everybody better be right here in Oakland on Hallowe'en if they don't want to miss the parade of the ages, and this time Scoop isn't foolin'. There are 51 prizes offered for variously costumed people and there are going to be so many in the parade that the corn procession will just have to take a back seat from now on.

To begin to name all those who are going to appear would leave no room for anythnig else but they are all racking their brains for ideas and those that have ideas are already practicing for their public debut.

Jim Kerins, in honor of the occasion, is practicing on an old piece he sang long ago, "Roll, Jordan, Roll," and the rest of the firemen are rehearsing some individual demonstrations. These are being kept secret until Hallowe'en, but it is thought that the performance of a few of them will not be a surprise to anyone.

Seems like everything is going to remain quiet along the Castleman River this winter. At least there has been no hint of renewing the moving picture colony around the city of Gruntstown.

The Wrecking Crew.

"Firemen were called and made short work of Gorman Thayer's school bus Tuesday afternoon," the rival across the way stated last week.

"Petting" Larceny.

A young man of Frostburg was found guilty by a jury in the Allegany County Circuit Court on Tuesday of stealing a kiss from a girl in that section. This may set a dangerous precedent. If is does we might just as well start prison walls around every city in the world and every farmhouse in the country.

Beggars Are Coming.

The beggars are coming to town;
They look like they're hroke,
And on the plea that they'll croak
They get extra clothing and food.

While housewives are skimping,
The beggars are primping
And riding around in their cars.
Don't tire of this thought trend,
Because, really, this is the end.

Details as to whether or not this guy was shot, half-shot or just all lickered up with syrup when he wrote the above will be given next week.

Diamond Jubilee.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the invention of the safety razor will be commemorated in Oakland next Saturday, according to a committee on arrangements of which Jackson Kolbfleisch is chairman. The streets of the town will be thrown wide open for a parade and a speech afterwards will be delivered by one of the Smith brothers of cough drop fame. The advantages of the safety devices over the old scratch and scrape method will be demonstrated by a number of prominent men of the community.

Friend Dave "Gillette" Stephens is going to relate his experiences and the exhilaration he felt upon the occasion when he first used his safety, to be followed by other local folks along the same lines of thought.

Chairman of the Committee

Bill Butt wants to be in the parade because he said he uses a safety razor to shave the top of his head, but the committee would not hear of it. The chief of the committee is expected to head the parade with his trusty and familiar wagon. It is so familiar one can tell it is coming three blocks away (if the wind is blowing right).

* * *

Another Jubilee Wanted.

Some members of the corn festival parade thought it would be nice to have a golden jubilee of the discovery of the coil and celebrate the event, but Lizzie Tish said that the celebration for this event was going on at all hours of the day and night anyhow, so why make a special occasion of it?

They also thought it would he nice to invite the heads of the Chicago Snooze gang and the coast guard gum runners who would come here in their private cars and drive over the Garrett county terrain and inspect the best sites for their "quiets." They would conclude their inspection tour in the downtown gambling den district.

Oh, didn't any of the readers of this column know that Oakland had such a place? Well, more details next week—or the week after, or probably later even than that.

Dolls Were Sent to Japan In 1927; School Bags to Mexico in 1928 and Now a Movement Is Being Set on Foot To Send Treasure Chests to the Philippine Children and All May Participate In Bringing Happiness To The Children of the Islands.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Did you dress a doll and send it to Jnpan two years ago when the first friendship gift was sent out by the American children? Did you put on it a pretty American dress in the style of 1927 and then go and see the Japanese dolls sent over by the children of Japan and dressed in Japanese silks, with chests of other clothes, with bed-rolls and mirrors and other Japanese belongings?

If you sent a doll to Japan perhaps you had a letter about it from the happy little Japanese to whom it had finally gone. Maybe you have written back and there are still letters forward and back. You have a friend in Japan and that friend in Japan has a friend here. A bond of friendship has been made.

That is what this new movement of World Fellowship among children hopes for. Its first project was the sending of 13,000 dolls to Japan, where they were received in March, 1927. The Japanese children in return organized a return gift or message through 2,600,000 children of the island empire.

Then the friendship movement turned toward Mexico. The Mexicans are most interested in universal education. Their president has just said that he hopes the war costs of his country will be lessened and that money thereby saved will be devoted to the cause of education. So the most fitting things to send as tokens of friendship to the Mexican children were schoolbags, bags with Mexican flags on one side and the flag of the United States on the other and also bags filled with little gifts. The Committee on World Friendship among children is developing plans for a reciprocal project which will be carried out in 1930.

And now it is time for a third friendship project. This time the gift will be made to the children of the Philippine Islands. Plans for the gifts are now being made; the getting together of the gifts will begin in November. The gifts themselves will be sent across in the spring and early summer.

What is this third gift to be? Dolls have been sent, school bags have been sent. This time it is to be in the form of treasure chests.

Doesn't that sound like something everybody would like to have? A treasure chest coming to one with treasures already in it! For like the school bags the chests will contain gifts. Much like those sent in the bags, the chests may contain—writing pads, pencils, crayons, marbles, tiny dolls, beads, magnets and many other things. A complete list will be sent by the Committee on World Friendship among children, 289 4th avenue, New York, N. Y., if you ask them, and they will also send a list of 400 books from which a book gift may be selected. The Committee also furnishes a general letter of greetings to the boys and girls of the Philippines from the Committe and a printed label to be used in addressing Chests sent by parcel post. The New York committee will send, but local committees are organized in most cities and states and if possible it is best to get in touch with these.

The one sending the Chest must surely include a personal letter and an envelope, self-addressed, for the Thank You letter.

The Treasure Chests themselves are being made by the Tin Decorating company, Baltimore, one of the largest companies in the United States in this line of manufacture, and one which takes a sheet of tin and makes magic with it.

In this case it makes chests which are $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide and $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches deep. The borders will be of gold and look as if rivited together, ten colors will be used in painting the pictures adorning sides and top nnd the pictures themselves will be taken from old maps. The Chests will cost $2.00 and can be ordered from New York or from local committees.

They are veritable trensure chests. They will contain treasures. But the greatest possible treasure of all will be the friendly feeling it calls forth from the sender, the joyous and friendly feeling from the one who receives it—the helping to weave around the world a net of friendship.

VICTIMS OF "COLD" URGED TO KEEP THEIR DISTANCE

Should Keep Germs to Themselves, State Board States

Urging victims of the "common cold" to think of the other fellow as well as of their own discomfort, and as far as possible to keep their germs to themselves, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, said:

"Now that the season of the common cold is here, it would be a good idea for each of us to constitute himself a committee of one on keeping fit.

The best safeguards against any communicable disease are those mentioned in the rhyme which tells you that the six best doctors anywhere are sunshine, water, rest, air, exercise and diet. To that we must add a precaution about dressing according to the weather—and in this climate with its sharp changes that is an important part of our prescription for keeping fit. Then we must add still another bit of advice. It is, to keep a safe distance from people who have colds, especially those who shower everything in sight with their germs when they sneeze or cough.

"That is the preventative side of the story but sometimes we are unfortunate enough to be below par nnd to be caught unawares in a shower of germs sprayed into the air by a careless sneezer or cougher. Soon we begin coughing or sneezing or sniffling ourselves. The best thing to do in case that happens is to go home; go to bed; send for the doctor and to follow his advice. It is safe to predict that he will tell you to stay in bed until the attack is over and you will find that it will save time and strength to obey his orders.

"There are two aspects of the common cold—yours and the other fellow's. The discomforts of a cold are such that they force you to think of youself. But this is a time to think of your neighbor also. Don't be hospitable when you have a cold. Neither visit nor receive visitors. In kindness to others—let me repeat it—keep at a safe distance from them.

"Sneeze or cough into your handkerchief. Use cheese cloth or paper napkins as handkerchiefs and then destroy them promptly as possible. You can get a generous supply of paper napkins as small cost and you can keep the used handkerchiefs from being a source of harm, by dropping them into a small paper hag or old envelope that you can keep in your pocket or beside your bed, until you can destroy the whole thing.

"Have your own glass or drinking cup; your own towel and soap. These precautions you will want to observe whether you are sick or well, but, especially for the sake of the other fellow, be sure that you observe them when you have a cold."

Lesson for October 27

THE CHRISTIAN'S VIEW OF RECREATION

LESSON TEXT—Jer. 31:12, 13, Zech. 8:15, Mark 2:18-28, Mark 6:30-38, John 2:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Right Way to Play.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Right Way to Play.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Play Does for Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Recreation in Community Life.

In the last lesson we saw that work was God's primal law for man. In work there is a certain breaking down of cells which needs constant repair; therefore, in order that work may continue there must be recreation. Recreation means re-creation. Failure to discern this truth has made of recreation dissipation. In this light let us view the salient points in the scripture selected.

I. The Coming Golden Age (Jer. 3:12, 13).

Though Jeremiah was the weeping prophet, and presented dark pictures of Israel's condition, God gave him a view of Israel's golden age. He made known how that through the mighty hand of God the chosen nation should be delivered from bondage and brought into their own land where peace, prosperity and gladness should prevail. The source of all real recreation is right relationship with God. God is the source of all joy. Nothing so powerfully affects the physical organism in its renewal as joy in God. In this coming age the streets of the city will be safe for old people and children (Zech. 8:4, 5).

II. The Christian's Relation to Fasting (Mark 2:18-23).

1. A question asked (v. 18).

The very joyfulness of the disciples of Christ in contrast with the disciples of John and the Pharisees, moved an inquiry as to the reason. The law of Moses only required fasting on the Day of Atonement. John the Baptist was in prison, therefore it is clear as to why his disciples were fasting.

2. Christ's answer (vv. 19, 20).

He declared that the children of the bride chamber could not fast as long as they had the bridegroom with them. The joy of present companionship with Christ prevented their fasting. This shows that Christ is the real source of joy. He recognized that when the bridegroom was absent, there was occasion for fasting. Christ is now away, therefore fasting is permissible. In times of great need the early church fasted. Before sending out the first missionaries they fasted and prayed (Acts 13:1, 2). More fasting and less feasting would be helpful today in the ordination of Christian workers.

III. The Christian's Relation to the Sabbath (Mark 2:21-28).

The disciples were charged with lawlessness because they plucked ears of corn as they walked through the fields on the Sabbath day. In Christ's defense against this charge, He

1. Cites a precedent (v. 26).

It was the case of David, their great king, who in time of need ate the shewbread which was only lawful for the priests. The principle set forth is that the higher law of human need warranted David in doing this which was out of the regular line of duty.

2. Showed the nature of the Sabbath law (v. 27).

The Sabbath was made for man, therefore its right use is determined by what it contributes to man's good. The Sabbath should not be man's cruel master, but his helpful servant.

3. Jesus is Lord of the Sabbath (v. 28).

It was He who instituted it when creation was finished; therefore He had the right to use it as it pleased Him for man's good.

IV. The Need of a Vacation (Mark 6:30-32).

The tragic death of John the Baptist had just occurred, and the disciples had just returned from a strenuous missionary tour. Christ, perceiving their need, invited them to come apart with Him for rest.

V. Jesus Attending a Wedding (John 2:1-11).

This is a striking sidelight on the spirit of Christ. A marriage feast was graced by His presence. In this act He set a mark of honor upon marriage, which is the most joyous of earth's occasions. In this act man's holy Redeemer lifted the holy ordinance of marriage into its dignity and beauty. In the course of the feast, when the wine was exhausted, He wrought His first miracle rather than have its festivities marred.

Glorious

Earth has not a spectacle more glorious or more fair to show than this—love tolerating intolerance; charity covering as with a veil even the sin of the lack of charity.—F. W. Robertson.

Overcoming Obstacles

An easy life is not likely to be a very valuable life to itself or to others. Strength comes by overcoming obstacles, and it is the strong life that can best help those about it.

VANISHING CURRENCY

The public became accustomed to the new, small bills quickly. There is still a little annoyance when a fistful of bills proves to contain both old and new, because the two don't fold together very neatly. That unpleasantness is passing more swiftly than is realized.

It is announced from Washington that the old style currency is being destroyed at the rate or six or seven tons a day. More than 180 tons are stored in the strong boxes of the Treasury Department, while a great macerator and an incinerator, working at top speed, are unable to keep up with the task.

Alas! Before all the old currency is taken out of circulation, the first crop of new bills will be grimy and worn enough to be ready for destruction, too. "Filthy lucre" in these days of grease and dirt has a new significance.

NO LABOR PARTY HERE

President Green of the American Federation of Labor, at Toronto, recently stated once again that the laboring men of the United States have no intention of organizing a labor party. In so speaking there can be little doubt that he expresses the sentiment of practically the entire labor movement in America. It is true that the Labor Party in Great Britain has won great success, but it is equally true that this English Labor Party in recent years has drawn not only from the ranks of the laboring men themselves, but from the Socialists and Liberals, and perhaps, in some instances, from the Conservative Party itself, so that it is becoming less a purely labor party.

But in any event conditions in the United States are somewhat different than in Great Britain. Class lines are not so clearly drawn in America. We do not have the class consciousness here that prevails in Europe. The average working man looks upon himself first not as a laborer but as an American citizen who can easily, if his intelligence, perseverence and integrity warrant it, raise himself to the place where he will be at least part capitalist and part worker. On the other hand, there is not the class consciousness among the business and professional men in America either.

As a result, our two great political parties are made up of men and women in every walk of life. There are ministers, teachers, doctors, lawyers, bankers, business men and laborers in the Republican party, and the same classes are to be found in the Democratic party. The situation is a very satisfactory one because it has enabled the two parties to fight their campaigns on broad issues without the paying of too much attention to internal classifications and divisions of political belief.

We believe in America that the broad party system is much superior to the bloc system in vogue in continental Europe, and the average thinking American hopes that we can keep the two party systems in vogue. Certainly the statement of President Green of the Federation of Labor is timely and to the point. American labor has fared well without an official labor party and there is no reason to think that it will not continue to do so.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

When some political historian starts a few years hence to set down the story of the present era he will doubtless call it the period of the decline and fall of party regularity. Certainly this deterioration of party regularity is the outstanding development of this generation. There are perhaps several causes for it. Most political students attribute its inception to the wave of primary election enthusiasm. With the passing of the political convention, party responsibility began to fade. Candidates went out on the stump to win preliminary support for their cause and primary campaigns often degenerated into mere contests of political personalities, in which at times the real issues and fundamental party principles were obscured. This was true in both the Republican and Democratic political contests.

Perhaps the World War with its loosening of tradition hastened the decay of party responsibility and party regularity. At any rate the condition is here and the length of its duration will depend on future developments. The United States Senate, as it has been constituted for several years past, is a good example of the decline of party responsibility. Supposedly Republican in make-up, the margin between the so-called regular Republicans and regular Democrats has generally been so slight that the balance of power has rested with a group of personally active senators upon whom responsibilities of a party rest very lightly. Usually lining up with their original party in broad national campaigns they have after the excitement of the election has died down, sought to combine themselves with whichever faction in the Senate seemed destined to carry out their political wishes. And the party leaders have done nothing about it; perhaps they could do nothing. The senatorial appointments have been distributed, according to Senate custom, to regulars and irregulars alike, whether these irregulars were Republican or Democratic.

The present incident of the lobby investigation at Washington and the make-up of the subcommittee which is investigating lobbying activities, is a case in point. In the early days, with the Republican party in power staunch Republicans would have had control of this committee. With the Democrats in control in the Senate, regular Democrats would have controlled it. The subcommittee was appointed by Chairman Norris, who himself is one of the most active of the so-celled independent group. Senator Norris chose for the committee as chairman Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, author of the resolution and a staunch Democrat. With Chairman Caraway are Senator Walsh, another regular Democrat; Senator Borah, independent Republican, and Senator Blaine, who can only be classed as a Republican by a wide stretch of the imagination. Senator Blaine, classed as an independent Republican, favored Al Smith in the last campaign and yet certainly is not a Democrat. The only regular Republican on the committee is Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana, one of the youngest solons of the Senate. The citing of the example of this committee is no reflection on the inquisitorial abilities of its membership. The example merely illustrates the decline of political regularity in the United States.

It is not to be asserted that only the so-called independents are finding the ties of party regularity Irksome. Even some of the regulars have been jumping the fence of late. A case in point is the voting of certain otherwise staunch Democratic senators for protective schedules in the tariff bill. The principle of free trade can no longer be used to hold Democratic solons in line.

In conclusion, we may ask whither are we drifting and what will be the result? The tendency in politics now seems to be away from the primary and back to a modified system.

Whether this will have the effect of again strengthening party discipline remains to be seen. Only the future can give us the solution of this problem.

Wall Street to South Ferry

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

CHARLEY FOSDICK was a clerk down in the financial district and his boarding house was well over on the west side in the Twenties.

The firm of Catherwood & Robbins, by which Charley was employed, was run by old man Jameson, a white side-whiskered autocrat. Robbins had died years and years ago; Catherwood had died about two years before Charley came to the firm and the business was continued by his heirs, two sons and a daughter, whom no one seemed to know much about.

Now, every day at a certain hour, punctually to the minute by Trinity church clock, for he was a methodical person, Charley left the office, walked up Wall street, turned down Broadway and proceeded to South Ferry, where he took the Ninth Avenue "L."

And every day as he passed a large office building on Broadway there emerged therefrom a young woman of about his own age, smartly clad and to Charley's eyes exceedingly beautiful.

The fair and efficient unknown was always accompanied by an older woman less plainly dressed. The couple followed the same route as Charley—Broadway, Bowling Green, Whitehall street. He watched and found that they entered the Staten Island ferry house.

They neither bowed nor spoke, of course. But they became quite like old friends after a while. At last the barrier fell; it fell with a little handbag which the young lady carelessly let fall and which Fosdick picked up and restored to her with his best bow and a few well-chosen words, to be rewarded with a bow and a smile. After that the young lady bowed when they met; then it became a "how do you do" and, after a long while, the youth negotiating his approaches slowly but skillfully, he was permitted to join the young lady and her companion in the daily descent to the ferry.

The young lady called herself Miss Susan Knox and introduced her companion as Miss White. She talked freely enough—but when Charley came to think it over, the fact that she was employed in the office of the Smithson estate was about all the information regarding her that he had acquired. Whereas he realized that by skillful questions and leading remarks, she had extracted from him the most minute details of his private affairs as well as all the information could afford with regard to the business of his firm. Regarding the latter she seemed strangely curious—and Charley was as wax in her hands.

They were getting perilously near the "Susan" and "Charley" stage when something happened. "What's been the matter with you all the week", said Miss Knox suddenly one day as they were passing the Standard Oil building. "Things going wrong at the office?"

"The fact is," said Charley, "I think I'll throw up my job." And then he told her that from things which had come under his cognizance in the course of his office duties, he believed that Old Man Jameson had been using the firm's money to speculate with and was about due for a smashup.

"Well, you'd better keep your job a while," said she. "Here we are at the ferry. Good day."

The next day Charles Fosdick had the shock of his life. Miss Knox and Miss White appeared at the office of Catherwood & Robbins and were shown in to Old Man Jameson's private sanctum, and Mr. Catlin, chief of the office staff, a veteran employee whom Jameson had always kept down, was sent for. When the two women finally left the office they were shortly followed by Jameson, who looked neither right nor left as he went out. Then came out of the private office Mr. Catlin, who posted up a notice to the effect that Mr. Jameson having resigned, Mr. Catlin was appointed manager in his place.

Miss Susan "Knox" was Miss Susan Catherwood. Her two brothers, choosing to live most of the time in Europe, had given her power of attorney for the affairs of Catherwood & Robbins.

The Smithson estate consisted of dwelling houses and other buildings, left to Susan by her mother. Susan, being of a business turn, managed this herself, keeping for the purpose a little office in the building from which Charley had seen her emerge. Miss White was her secretary.

Charley went down Broadway the day of Susan's visit to the Catherwood & Robbins office with his head in a whirl. No Miss "Knox" met him; but Miss White did and acidly commanded him to accompany her to Staten Island. There, in a fine old house overlooking the Narrows, Susan explained matters to him.

"As for Jameson," she said, "his judgment of values was sound, but as I didn't propose to have him using the firm's money for speculative purposes I let him go. I propose to keep a closer supervision of the firm's affairs after this, so I shall not be able to handle the Smithson estate. How would you like to take my place?"

No, they were not married at once—It was not until Charley had managed the Smithson estate for a year. And it was two years before the name of the Wall street firm was changed to Catherwood & Fosdick.

The Chemisty of Life As Seen by a Correspondent of The Republican.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Life is self-existent, self, perpetuated. It is creative of all finite forms of life and lives by vitue of ceaseless changes.

Nothing continues for long in the form which it began, for life is a progressive growth, fraught with expansion, diversification, multiplication and improvement.

Life is the source of all intelligence, of all power and energy in its many forms. It is a unity throughout, yet its many manifestations are seemingly paradoxical.

The ether of space is life's habitation, its laboratory, its medium of attraction, repulsion and transmission.

It is nature's storehouse of basic raw material and by life's involution of energy within the ether are suns whirled into spheres of flaming gas, radiating heat and light and farming centers of force through which life creates planets, moons and men. While life is a unity, it is also a trinity and the three factors (life, energy, ether) are inseparable and always act as co-ellicients and coextensive throughout time and space.

When life is not dynamic it is always dormant or static, never extinct. It cannot be excluded from any plane, any place or any thing. Man is an outgrowth of the universe, like a mineral or a metal, a beast, a bird or a tree. He is a finite part of life's infinite whole, the charaster of which he partakes in both soul and substance. For is is a law of life that like begets like and that all finite forms of life are begotten from one antecedent source of life.

Life is governed by laws, the observance of which constitute life's being. The physical universe is ruled by laws. Laws are the outgrowth of life's necessities. Life is imbued with a purpose--a far-off goal or reach; it is possessed with desire, design and a will to achieve its intellectual attainments, its aesthetical and ethical attributes through materializing itself in man (as an epitome of itself in wisdom, love and power) as the highest medium for life's innumerable forms of expression.

As life is helpless to express its values in the midnight darkness and glacial cold of the ether—living as a formless force—necessity compelled it to make light and heat ,to make planets, a mineral kingdom, on which to rest a vegetable kingdom, with which to feed and support an animal kingdom out of which, after thousands of millions of years it could evolve the kingdom of man, life's crowning work of its creative art.

Know this, that life has no worthwhile values to man or his Maker until it can clothe and embody itself in material forms on some planet and endow them with self-motion, self-consciousness and freedom of will.

The law of conservation dominates through all life's changing phenomena, so that not one atom of life's energy or its substance can ever be lost.

Hence man, the mind, is born immortal by virtue of his kinship to his Maker, being a finite but vital part of the infinite whole of life.

If any power could destroy one finite part of life it could annihilate all its parts, the infinite whole, which is inconceivable.

The chemistry of life is marvelous to contemplate. The untutored mind is held spell-bound in awe and reverent fear by its seemingly miraculous transformations, yet no miracle in the sense of being supernatural has ever occurred or can occur.

In man's present state of undevelopment it is impossible for him to know the absolute and the why, because a part can never encompass the whole; but concerning the how of life's ways and workings man has achieved a wondrous understanding wisdom.

Trees, ferns, flowers and fruit, monkeys and men are all chemical products of the universe. They are all parts of its elemental substance and grown out of it—not by the materialists' theory of chance—but by life's desire and design have the atoms and elements been guided, how and when to unite and cooperate for the elevation of life, from the darkest depths of obscurity to the self-illumined pinnacle of perfection where wisdom and worth, love and leisure, joy and justice shall crown its work as the all-creative alchemist.

Among men life is known and described by various names because it presents itself to us under innumerable aspects.

As we behold man dressed as a jockey or a Jesuit, as a prince or a pauper, for the bathing beach or the ballroom, the character of the man within is always one and the same, but made adaptable to circumstances and environment. So we observe life, hence life is called the soul of the universe—its mind.

Mental chemistry is always antecedent to material chemistry, whether in the mind of Deity or in the minds of men.

The greatest faculty the mind possesses is its power to generate thought. A thought is too refined, diaphanous for man to see, weigh or measure, and we can know it only by effects and the results it gives on the plane of visible and material things. As a man thinks, so he acts and he eventually becomes the chemical products of all his past thinking.

Thought is the instrumentality through which life and mind rules the universe, creates the stars, gives worlds their motion and holds them in their courses.

The principle by which thought operates is vibratory. The ether and the atoms of the elements are ever in a state of quiver or vibration. The ether is magnetic, thought is magnetic. The mind mentally pictures the thing it desires to create and this picture becomes to the alchemist what the blue-print is to the architect.

Life functions through mind; mind functions through our cerebral brain in man and brain acts as a transmitter and transformer of the mind's impressions which are converted into thought; and though projected into the ether instantly causes vibrations and attractions of atoms and elements that are in chemical affinity. Atoms unite and condense into elements and they in turn are formed into what we call concrete visible and tangible matter. So mind becomes the master and the moulder of matter and matter is used as a matrix to fill out the interstices and cover the skeleton frame of the thing life has pictured and designed to make.

Chemistry is life's handmaiden and wields a magic wand over all things when and where life wills it.

All life on our planet begins in a single microscopic cell—just a speck of protoplasm—and man is a multiplication and chemical combination of millions of cells—little units of life that possess a mind and a body.

Chemistry holds the secret of life's great mystery. And in the formation of every chemical compound it is observable, yet to man, insoluble.

Water and salt are about the simplest things that exhibit life's wondrous ways. Most people know that two volumes of hydrogen will chemically unite with one volume of oxygen under proper conditions. That both gasses are invisible, tasteless and inodorless and we would naturally expect the formation of a new gas, but we get a liquid wholly unlike its constituents. In this union of gasses a plus element X creeps into the compound, something unseen and unknown to man.

Thus we behold a new product brought out of the invisible into the plane of tangible effects.

The ability to think is what makes man a creator instead of a creature. Thought directly or indirectly is the mind's instrument for changing impulses and ideas into things.

Life is a rigid conformity to immutable laws and man whether he is conscious or unconscious of the law becomes the chemist of his life, its conditions, its success or failure.

In our use of thought chemical action takes place in both mind and body. Like begets like by its affinities, yet by opposite polarity. One law dovetails into some other law of attraction and growth just as we build our language and literature by grouping the letters of the alphabet into words, words into sentences, thence into paragraphs until we create a book having a chain of consecutive ideas from lid to lid.

Hence the thoughts we entertain are vitally important to man's well-being. If we think evil and error, negative thoughts, fear, anger, hate, distress and disaster, with such will our lives be materialized.

To reach wisdom through experience and character through discipline we must think constructively in terms of truth and facts that are verified by nature's laws; renounce our myths and superstitions, our false premises and seek only to be in harmony with life's ultimate purpose.

Life rightly understood is not a question of chance nor of creeds, nor of nationality, wealth, position or of power.

To be conscious of the stability of the laws of life is man's greatest asset and to use them wisely is to know that we have found the truth which will make us free.

Life in man is the life of the All-creative and Omniscient One. In man it is an ever indwelling presence in his sub-conscious mind, his guide and protector.

Man, the mind, is an epitome of his Maker, the interpreter of nature's laws and the only intelligent user of her forces and vast resources.

Undeveloped man is now in the infancy of life's continuous, unfolding advancement from an obscure and low estate to the heights of mind's attainment and the expression of wisdom, love and justice as the things supreme.

Births and deaths oft recurring, are but factors in life's transition changes and its progressive climb.

Man is a planetary being and while earth revolves will ever be his home. Life in man has outworn, outlived many embodiments and will live in many more, for only by ceaseless changes can life persist and move to heights above.

Poultry Certification Grows

Often we see some terms or phrases used which are meaningless to us as far as interpretation of the term or phrase is concerned. However, when we find out the true meaning we become much more interested and the term or phrase will become valuable to us in our vocation.

The poultry industry is growing and poultry certification has become just as important in the poultry business as the registration of purebred animals in livestock.

As in former years the certification of poultry breeding flocks in Maryland is experiencing a healthy growth. Paul A. Raper, certification inspector, is very busily engaged in inspection work in the State. Caroline county alone is expected to have at least fifteen thousand certified birds or more than the total number in the whole State last year. A large percentage of the breeders are also having their flocks tested for Pullorum Disease (bacillary white diarrhea).

Many of the Maryland breeders and hatcherymen will be able to offer an even higher grade of eggs, chicks and stock than ever before and more of it during the coming season.

Some late applications are still coming in, but it will be late in the season before some of these applicants can have the work done for them.

Certification, as the term applies to poultry, means the identification or selection and approval of certain birds or flocks as being superior and especially desirable for breeding. This, in Maryland, involves a rigid examination of each bird for both breed standard and productive qualities, and banding and recording of birds meeting the requirements with Maryland Certified Bands.

This, also involves the inspection of houses, yards and premises, as well as management practices; all of which have a direct bearing on the quality and condition of the flocks. Inspection to enforce regulations may be made at any time.

Qualifications for Certification

1. The members.—All applicants must be members of the Maryland State Poultry Association and be approved by the Directors, as to the poultry experience and ability of the applicant; his character, responsibility and business integrity.

2. General Excellence of Stock in Constitutional Vigor and Both Standard and Production Breeding.—This is interpreted to mean that breeding birds shall evidence a high degree and variety in size, type and color; and in addition, show productive capacity. Particular superiority is left for each breeder to prove for himself, exhibition quality in show room, or egg production in the trap nest or laying contest.

3. Plant Sanitation and Management Conducive to Health and Freedom from Disease. The health of the stock upon inspection is the ultimate basis of judgment as to adequate sanitary practices and effective husbandry. The houses, yards, premises, and equipment, as well as the stock, must meet the inspector's approval.

Cost of Certification

The fees charged must be sufficient to cover costs of the work. The costs are: two cents per bird for each bird handled, and five cents additional for each bird which meets the requirements and is banded and recorded. The cost of eliminating culls may be expensive, but it eliminates the parents of "drone chicks" that must be added to the cost of cheap chicks.

Bonded Hatcheries

1. Bonded Hatcheries, first class, are those hatcheries which incubate on their premises only eggs produced by officially certified birds.

2. Bonded hatcheries, second class, are those hatcheries which incubate and offer for sale eggs and chicks from certified flocks in addition to other grades.

Blood Testing for Bacillary White Diarrhea

Bacillary White Diarrhea causes enormous losses in baby chicks. This disease is transmitted from the infected hen through the egg to the chick and also from chick to chick. There is no known cure for the malady. The only methods available then for preventing the heavy losses from this disease are those of prevention. These methods consist of sanitation, rigid culling and the use of breeding stock free from the infection.

The only reasonable reliable procedure available for determining which birds are healthy and which are infected is the blood test. By the systematic use of this test, together with the prompt disposal of the diseased birds and proper sanitary measures, breeding flocks free from Bacillary White diarrhea may be established. Such flocks are officially designated as Bacillary White diarrhea accredited flocks.

Flocks in order to be eligible for the official blood test for Bacillary White diarrhea must be certified by this association. After proper application has been made for the test, a time will be set when the blood samples will be taken by official inspectors or by persons under their supervision and in a manner prescribed by the Department of Bacteriology of the University of Maryland. Until further notice a charge will be made of eight cents per bird per test.

MT LAKE PARK.

Concerted Efforts to Attract Trade

We have been much interested in the past few months noting the efforts of the cities and towns of the country to attract the tourist trade to certain centers and have been particularly interested in the efforts made for that purpose.

The Chamber of Commerce and allied business clubs of Point Marion, Pennsylvania, are giving a series of dinners to the citizens of nearby communities in an effort to sell to the traveling public the route from Clarksburg and interior points of West Virginia to Pittsburgh leading through their town because of the shorter distance. To further their object certain individuals and corporations have raised $300,000 for the erection of a new bridge at a point where it will facilitate travel. They have learned through industrial engineers that every automobile that stays in a town over night adds to the capital assets of the town an average of $4 per car, which taken in the aggregate means a neat sum of new money each year.

As a means of informing the tourists, the Point Marion citizens are erecting large signs, located from 50 to 200 miles distant from their town, giving information in eye-compelling letters, that the shortest route to a designated point passes through their town. That is good business.

Located as we are on the link connecting the National Highway with the Northwestern Turnpike, which is designated as the shortest route from Cincinnati to the east, Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, her smaller sister, are in a position to attract hundreds of tourists and divert through these points tourists who would otherwise journey over the Old National and on east or west. Judicious advertising will be money well spent and will bring results.

PLANE FALLS IN COUNTY KILLING ARMY AIR PILOT

Machine Plunged Into Woods Near Grantsville—Workmen Pull Body From Flames

Blinded by fog over the mountains east of Grantsville, Lieut. John W. Bowman, 26, United States army flier, was instantly killed Friday, when his plane crashed in the woods three miles east of Grantsville and was destroyed by fire.

Bound from Dayton, Ohio, to Bolling tield, Washington, D. C., the flier was piloting his single-seater Boeing pursuit plane through dense fog and light rain when the ship plunged into the woods about 100 yards from the intersection of the National Highway and the Meyersdale road.

Body Dragged From Flames

Lieut. Bowman's body was found about six feet from the wrecked plane, tangled in the straps of his unopened parachute. Three men who were erecting a roadside sign along the highway heard the crash and explosion which resulted. They ran through the woods and found the shattered plane aflame, with the body of the flier nearby. Braving the danger of further gasoline explosions, the men dragged the aviator's body away from the burning airship.

Milton Miller, who lives near the Stone House farm, on which the plane crashed, telephoned to William Winterberg, Grantsville undertaker, who removed the body to his establishment and then notified the Adjutant-General at Washington.

Thrown Clear Of Machine

Lieut. Bowman was thrown clear of the falling machine and was badly crushed about the head when he struck the ground. His legs and body were also lacerated and bruised. Small trees were broken when the plane dived into the woods and parts of the fliers uniform were found on the high branches of the surrounding foliage.

Accompanied by two Army transport planes, Lieut. Bowman left Wright Field, at Dayton, Ohio, Friday morning, on an authorized flight to Washington. The three planes stopped at Uniontown, Pa., for gasoline, and left the airport there at 11:20 o'clock. The crash victims plane was much faster than the transport planes and he soon became separated from them over the mountains, where the visibility was poor.

The transport planes passed over the scene of the accident about 1:30 o'clock and landed at Bolling Field two hours later, when the pilots were told that Bowman had crashed.

Was Seen Flying Low

Bowman's plane was seen flying low in the vicinity of Grantsville shortly before noon. It is believed that the flier became bewildered in the fog and was seeking a landing place. Unable to see the ground the aviator apparently did not have time to pull the rip cord of his parachute before the ship crashed through the trees.

The War Department was advised and Lieut. James A. Willis, Jr., and staff sergeant Hukill were sent to take charge of the crash victim's body and to investigate the crash. State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger and W. D. Casteel, sheriff, assisted in the investigation. The body was shipped to Washington where a military funeral was held and interment made in Arlington cemetery.

Lieut. Bowman had been stationed at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, since July, 1928, as a member of the Air Corps. He leaves a widow, who resides in Dayton.

Friday's fatal crash was the second to occur in the mountainous section between Frostburg and Grantsville, the first claiming the lives of two Army fliers in June of this year.

The main speaker of the evening will be a professor from West Virginia university at Morgantown, W. Va. Those who have been invited to attend include Mayor L. M. Fraley of Oakland, George D. Hartley, agriculture agent of the Baltimore and Ohio; agriculture teachers of Garrett county high schools and John H. Carter, county agent.

"FIRE-BUG" RESPONSIBLE FOR TWO SLIGHT BLAZES

Clues Point to Incendiary Origin of Two Fires Tuesday Night

Two fires of incendiary origin, one at 6:30 p. m., Tuesday in the barn used by the C. and A. Gas company on Oak street, and one at 9:30 p. m. the same evening in the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Pat. Helbig on Fourth street, south of Oak, street were quickly extinguished before they had gained much headway.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire department responded to both alarms promptly but the assistance of the members was little needed.

"That the fires had been set by some "fire-bug" there can be little doubt," George Kerins, fire chief, stated yesterday morning. A small bottle which had contained coal oil was discovered Wednesday morning near the barn, and half-burned boards at the Helbig residence smelled strongly of kerosene, it was stated. The "fire-bug" was also heard in the rear of the Helbig residence and when the noise was investigated, the unknown person ran towards east Oakland through the alley.

Both buildings that were fired are beside the alley running parallel with Oak street, between Oak street and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. It is highly improbable that sparks from a passing engine would have set the buildings afire, Chief Kerins stated, as the evening was rainy and foggy.

A person was also heard in the garage of B. H. Sincell, on Second street, at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, but whether or not this was the same person who had been in the east end of town was not known. Nothing was missing from the car. Authorities are keeping a sharp lookout for suspicious persons.

To Argue Case in Appelate Court of West Virginia

William R. Offutt, local attorney, will leave Oakland Monday for Charleston, West Va., where on Tuesday he will argue the appeal case of Annie L. McKenzie before the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia.

It will be recalled that Mrs. McKenzie, a former resident of Garrett county, and a daughter of the late James Carey, who lived near Frostburg, was convicted of murder in the first degree in the Circuit Court of Webster County, W. Va., the victim being her husband. Following her conviction, Mrs. McKenzie was sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

Additional Donations Are Received by Band

Two more donations were received during the past week by Mr. R. R. Gilbert, director of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, to go toward the purchase of uniforms for the members.

The Mothers' Circle of Oakland donated $10 and Miss Coral McRobie, $5. With these two donations practically enough money has been promised to purchase 17 uniforms, it was stated. There are more than thirty members in the band.

NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE BODY TO REMAIN ACTIVE

Will Form Interstate Association to Further Improve and Extend United States Route 50

A resolution in favor of an interstate association to work toward the end of further improvements to the Northwestern Turnpike was adopted by the Northwestern Turnpike, Inc., at its annual meeting held in Clarksburg, West Va., last week.

The association also went on record favoring a mammoth meeting to be held in the Potomac Valley, somewhere near Keyser, next September. The resolution provided that a meeting should be held in Cincinnati not later than February 1, 1930, for the purpose of organizing and that all eastern and western states connected by this highway be asked to send delegates to the meeting.

At the proposed meeting in the Potomac Valley next fall it was suggested that a great caravan be organized to traverse Route 50 from its most western point to the scene of the celebration and perhaps east to Washington, D. C.

The association will also attempt to secure the elimination of all dangerous curves along the route and to inaugurate an advertising campaign.

A. A. Pickering, Rowlesburg, was re-elected president; former Governor John J. Cornwell, Romney, and Harry C. Compton, Grafton, vice-presidents; O. C. Wilt, Clarksburg, treasurer, and Charles E. Morgan, Clarksburg, secretary.

Route 50 between Parkersburg and Cincinnati, will be completed in two years, it was learned at the meeting, while all construction is contracted for in the State of Indiana.

Sara Getty Elected Member of National League of Penwomen

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE TO LEAVE HERE IN DECEMBER

Miss Rhesa M. King to Assume Advanced Position in Westmoreland County, Penna.

The resignation of Miss Rhesa M. King, as public health nurse for Garrett county, will be presented to the Board of County Commissioners at its regular meeting on Monday, it has been announced. The resignation is to take effect on December 1.

Miss King will assume her new duties as supervising nurse of Westmoreland county, Pa., the first of December and will be stationed at Greensburg, Pa., where she will have five nurses under her direction. Her new position is a distinct advancement. Prior to her appointment in Garrett county, she was superintendent of nurses at the Memorial hospital in Winston-Salem, N. C.

Has Accomplished Much

During the three years and nine months which Miss King has been in Garrett county, much work has been accomplished, as is shown by her records and reports. She has conducted the following:

Twenty-two tubercular clinics, 142 people examined; five orthopedic clinics, 176 people examined, 51 of them receiving hospital care. Orthopedic work was carried on through the cooperation of the Oakland Civic club and the Oakland Rotary club.

Forty-three pre-school clinics, 402 people examined; 11 mental hygiene clinics, 165 examined; 11 child welfare clinics, 202 examined; 251 schools visited, 9,558 examined; 23 schools visited for the purpose of making talks; 8 toxin-antitoxin clinics; 962 given treatment; 5 classes held in home hygiene and care of the sick, 605 attended classes.

This makes a total of 7,050 people in the county examined, instructed, and visited, and follow-up calls were made in homes of patients in the tubercular, orthopedic, child welfare, mental and pre-school clinics.

Previous to 1926 there were no mid-wives in the county. Since that time classes have been held by the health nurse with the result that at present there are 12 registered midwives. Miss King's work included only that part of the county north of Backbone mountain.

The announcement of the resignation of Miss King comes as a surprise to Garrett county residents and regret is being expressed on all sides. "My work in Garrett county has been very pleasant, and I have received wonderful cooperation from everybody," Miss King stated. "I am sorry to leave.

As yet no one has been named as her successor.

BOARD WHICH WORKMEN UNCOVER WHILE EXCAVATING BRINGS THOUGHTS OF GRAVE OF SMITH, HANGED NEGRO

Instead of Remains of John Smith, Hanged in 1883, it Turns Out To Be Old Well Covering

This is a gruesome tale, dug from the files of The Republican of almost half a century ago, so you who are believers in what Hallowe'en means as handed down through the generations, don't read it.

"Right there is where the negro, John Smith, the only person to be lawfully executed in Garrett county, lies buried," said Oscar Notes, aged court house janitor, to a group of workmen employed by J. W. Whorton, contractor, who are excavating for the foundation to the new addition to the Oakland High School, and to be sure that the workmen did not overlook the spot, he pointed it out clearly with a stick.

So later, when one of the men engaged in the work struck a heavy board with a pick Saturday morning and which gave forth a rather hollow sound, there was only one thought in his mind. He had found the grave of John Smith, the negro who had been convicted of murder in the first degree at the September Term of the Garrett County Court, in 1883, and had been hanged in the jail yard on November 17 following.

The story of the find spread with lightning-like rapidity and on Monday Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathbun was about to advise with the Board of Health as to the disposition of the supposed remains, when one of the workmen a little more curious than the rest, broke through the exposed piece of timber and discovered an iron pipe leading down into an abandoned bored well. The excavating, following this slight delay, was resumed, but some of the men engaged are still expecting to uncover the grave, it is said.

Copied From The Republican Files.

The story concerning the only legal execution in Garrett county was printed in The Republican of November 21, 1883, and is partly reproduced below:

"John Smith, colored, was hanged at Oakland Friday of last week for

TREASURER SELLS DEER PARK HOTEL PROPERTY

Resort Where Grover Cleveland And Bride Spent Honeymoon Brings $8350 at Tax Sale

The Deer Park Hotel and cottages, near the village of Deer Park, six miles east of Oakland, and hostelry where Grover Cleveland and his bride spent their honeymoon, and where other Presidents and members of the first families of Maryland have visited during the last half century, has been sold for taxes due the State of Maryland and Garrett county for the years 1927 and 1928.

The hotel, with approximately 400 rooms, several cottages and 200 acres of land, went in three lots for a total of $8,350. The resort was sold five years ago by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to a hotel syndicate for $100,000, and since that time improvements costing quite a large sum have been added.

Among the prominent persons who visited the resort in years gone by were Presidents William McKinley and Benjamin Harrison, whose constant companion was Baby McKee, Mr. Harrison's grandchild. Here John W. Garrett, then president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, died. Mr. Garrett, for whom Garrett county was named, was instrumental in constructing the hotel early in the seventies, it being built and owned by the railway company until the sale a few years ago.

Original Building Had 200 Rooms

At the time of its construction, the hotel had about 200 rooms. Since then two wings, each of one hundred rooms and connected with the main building by covered and enclosed walks have been built.

On April 9, 1924, the railroad sold the property to Henry S. Duncan, of New York City, for $100,000. Improvements have been added until the present value of the property is far in excess of this amount.

About two years ago Mr. Duncan sold his interests to the Maryland Hotel Company, a corporation formed under the laws of Delaware, by Chicago interests. The sale was for a nominal sum and other considerations, in which was understood to be included the taking over of heavy mortgages on the property.

In the sale last Saturday the entire property was disposed of by Treasurer Albert L. Lee of Garrett county, to satisfy and pay the taxes for the years 1927 and 1928.

One hundred acres of the land, on which the famous Boiling Springs are located and from which the hotel and all the dining cars of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad secure water for table consumption, went to the railway company for $3,200.

William Frazee, of Oakland, representing Frazee & Black, lumbermen of Friendsville, secured seventy-five acres, adjacent to Block Run, through which pass the pipe lines from the springs, for $330.

The twenty-five acres upon which stands the large hotel and twelve cottages, was purchased by Ernest R. Jones, Oakland attorney, for $5,000.

Under the terms of sale the right of redemption extends to the former owners for the term of six months, with interest at the rate of 20 per cent, and until the expiration of that time title cannot be secured by the purchasers.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION TO GET STARTED AT 6:30

Everything Is In Readiness For Second Annual Event and Massive Mummers' Parade

Everything is in readiness for the second annual Hallowe'en celebration which will get under way this evening at 6:30 o'clock with a mammoth mummers' parade, after which there will be amusements of all kinds, awarding of prizes, concessions, dancing, and merrymaking.

The celebration is being held under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and committees have been busy completing arrangements for the past several weeks, according to A. G. Gortner, a member of the committee.

There will be three or more bands in the parade, the Terra Alta and Grantsville Fire departments, the Salisbury Drum and Bugle Corps, and a number of attractions and costumed people, all of which are expected to form the longest procession ever on the streets of Oakland, according to present reports.

Fifty-one prizes will be awarded for variously costumed people immediately after the parade. All those entering the procession are requested to be at Fourth and Alder streets promptly. The parade will form on Alder street facing west and traverse Alder, Fifth, Oak, Third, Pennington or Crook, and Second streets into the heart of the festivities between Liberty and Alder streets, which will be roped off for the occasion.

Mayor L. M. Fraley has asked that all people who can leave their automobiles at home on that evening, so that the streets will take care of those attending from out of town.

To Award Cedar Chest

The cedar chest and contents will be awarded at 10:30 o'clock. The committee wishes to assure everyone that every article now on display with the cedar chest in the office of the Monongahela System will be given away to the winner of the chest.

Masked Dance

There will be a masked dance in Fraley's hall beginning at 9 o'clock. The Harmony Boys will furnish the music and admission will be $1 per couple. Prizes will be awarded.

A square dance will be held in the Empire theatre on Alder street, and not out in the open as originally planned. Both halls have been decorated for the occasion. Bingo games will be in progress in the vacant store room next to the Gonder's confectionery store, and there will be amusements and concessions of all kinds on the streets, it was stated.

The area marked off for the celebration will be gaily lighted with large white bulbs in the center of the street. The tent of the witches will be one of the feature attractions, inside of which may be seen many interesting things, it is promised.

The proceeds realized from the night's entertainment will go toward the lessening the indebtedness on the $12,500 American LaFrance truck, purchased recently by the fire company.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

Gil is Too Busy

Gil Whorton wishes Scoop to announce to the people that he expects to be so busy on Hallowe'en that he will not have time to put on that hose demonstration that was promised. "Some other time," says Gil, "maybe."

* * *

"The Flying Corpse"

Scoop has been trying to figure all week how to explain satisfactorily about the "aviation corpse" which appeared in a local in last week's issue, but since he can't think up any excuse, it will just have to be what it is, an amusing blunder. That isn't all of it. The two boys mentioned in the local didn't come home after all. They were just expected home, but like a lot of other "expected" things, they never happen. Eddie is really in the Army Air service and "Root" is still in Washington.

* * *

Survival of The Fittest

That is the only real blunder Scoop saw in The Republican last week. But he also saw one in the newspaper across the way which read something like this in a death notice: "He is survived by several sons and daughters, most of whom are living." And the Cumberland Evening Times copied it.

* * *

Charles "Rodie" of near Dodge school house, Sand Flat, Hooppole Ridge, and points south and north, is all excited this week because he says Scoop, in having walls placed around every farm house and every city and town, in order to lock up all those who steal kisses, overlooked too much territory. He wants abandoned school houses included.

* * *

Barper Hartlet and Flommie Tannigan went into the blacksmith shop the other day to get their white mules, which they had left to be shod. A lot of people take their unruly horses there it seems, and get a kick out of them.

* * *

There is a local man so wet in his sympathies that he threw his radio out of the window when he learned that it contained dry cells.

* * *

Picture Received

Scoop received a drawing from Deer Park this week with the request that it be published but he is very sorry that he is unable to reproduce the picture on a cut. So we'll all just have to imagine how surprised Lester was when people surprised him on his birthday Saturday night.

* * *

Social Notes

Brigadier General S. J. Flynn (Jigadier Brindle for short), of Bloomington, was in Oakland Monday when he called at Bittner and Stahl's barber shop and was worked on for a short time. As he was looking for all the news of the county in readable form, while it was still news, Scoop sold him The Republican, Garrett county's leading and newsiest and best newspaper.

* * *

When the Oakland gossipers run out of anything to stick their noses into, they can still use their handkerchiefs for that purpose.

* * *

Essay on Corns

Corns are of two kinds, vegetable and animal. Vegetable corn grows in rows and animal corn grows on toes. There are several kinds of corn: unicorn, capricorn, pop corn, field corn, the corn you feel most when it rains, and just "corn."

Corns have kernels and some colonels have corns (col. Bell for instance). Vegetable corn grows on ears, but animal corn grows on feet at the other end of the body.

Folks having corns sometimes send for a doctor and if the doctor himself is corned he probably won't do so well as if he isn't.

The doctor says corns are produced by tight boots and shoes which is probably why when a man is tight they say he is corned.

On the farm it's so much corn per acre, but one corn on a man's foot may make him the biggest "acher" in town.

Then there are corn festivals, corn parades and still more corn.

* * *

It's a safe bet that there won't be many kids hanging around the high school building on Hallowe'en. There will be too much to imagine about the body of that negro who was hanged and buried in that vicinity, and who was almost unearthed last Saturday.

* * *

Keep your eyes open for the firebug.

* * *

Scoop is busy with preparations for the Hallowe'en parade and big celebration. So is Col. Bell. That's why he couldn't take any pictures this week.

According to records kept by the police, more than 12,000 drunks have been arrested in the National Capitol during the year 1929.

New Circular For Home-Makers

Out of the kitchen can come a cheery disposition, or frayed nerves, asserts Miss Mnrgaret McPheeters, nutrition specialist of the University of Maryland Extension Service, in a circular published under the title "The Spirit of the New Kitchen."

There is no room in the house more nttractive to the home lover than a conveniently arranged, well-equipped, and well-kept kitchen, according to Miss McPheeters, and no other room is so necessary to the health and well-being of the family.

Water systems for the kitchen, the heighth of work tables, the arrangement of doors and windows, the size of the room, and the grouping of equipment for efficienct use, are some of the points emphasized as being important in planning a kitchen that save time and energy. Fatigue experienced in doing house work, it is stated, depends more upon the way in which the work is done than the amount of work. Our daily surroundings are a real influence in our lives, and the wise home-maker will see to it that her kitchen is as attractive as the rest of the house, since she spends much of her time and does her hardest work there.

This timely circular may be obtained free of charge from the Home Demonstration Agent's office or the University of Maryland Extension Service at College Park, Md.

Old Sol's Days Are Shorter

Old Sol has shortened his working hours so imperceptibly, so constantly that the change hasn't been noticed from day to day. And should your electric bill seem higher it's nobody's fault but Sol's, for he's not staying on the job as long as he did during the summer months.

With dusk falling earlier and living rooms becoming more appealing—as an escape from autumn's tangy air—your use of electric lights will increase gradually until the third week in December.

Negligible, however, will be the increase in your electric bill compared with the comfort and cheer which glowing mellow lights bring to the longer fall and winter evenings at home.

The monthly variation in the need for electric lights is established as follows:

|---|---|---|---|
| January | 6.53 hours | July | 2.60 hours |

RESPECT FOR RIGHTFUL AUTHORITY

(World's Temperance Sunday)
LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17; Rom. 13:1-14; I Peter 2:13-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Effective the Will of the Community.

Though our citizenship is in heaven, we have obligation to the government under which we live.

I. Obligation to Pay Tribute (Mark 12:13-17).

This teaching concerning the tribute money came in answer to the question put to Jesus by representatives of the Pharisees and Herod. They would gladly have killed him, but they feared the people. Their only hope was to discredit him among the people.

1. Their question (v. 14).

Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not? The Pharisees contended that since God was the real king of Israel, it was not obligatory—yea, even sinful—to pay taxes to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod. With flattery on their lips, they put this subtle question. For Christ to have answered "yes" would have discredited Him with the people, and to have said "no" would have made Him liable to arrest as an enemy of the government.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17).

He requested a coin to be brought and inquired as to whose image and superscription it bore, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. Thus the Lord escapes their trap and inculcates a principle which applies to all time and conditions as to the Christian's responsibility to civil government.

II. The Christian's Obligation to the State (Rom. 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian.

1. Obedience to rulers (vv. 1-4).

This obligation is upon all Christians. Civil government is ordained of God, and rulers are His representatives. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is inherently wrong. The same is true of the child in its responsibility to its parents. While obedience to parents is the will of God for children, this does not imply that the child is under obligation to do that which is morally wrong, at the command of the parents. Submission to authority is the law of the believer's life.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5).

He should regard it as his obligation because it is morally right.

3. Methods of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

(1) In the payment of personal and property taxes. The citizen who enjoys the benefits of government is morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations, expense is incurred, for which benefit the citizen should pay.

(3) Veneration for magistrates—"Fear to whom fear."

Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers, God's representatives.

(4) "Honor to whom honor." Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

III. The Spirit of Loyalty to Authority (1 Pet. 2:13-17).

The loyalty of the Christian to right authority should be glad and free. The Christian recognizes the necessity of social order, and will graciously submit to the authority of rulers and faithfully perform his obligation as a citizen, not through cringing fear, but as the Lord's free man, for the Lord's sake. By means of this free submission as God's servant, he puts to silence the ignorance of foolish men (vv. 15, 16).

1. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. A Christian will attend to the proprieties of life among all classes and in all relations.

(2) Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household.

(3) Fear God (v. 17). This is filial, reverential fear.

(4) Honor the king (v. 17). This had a peculiar significance, for in all probability the wicked Nero was then the reigning monarch.

Fertilizers Pay Up Permanent Pastures

Millions of dollars of additional feed can be obtained from the permanent pastures of Maryland by giving them better care, according to F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in Agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service. It is his observation that from 25 to 50 per cent of the space in many pastures is occupied by course growth that has no feed value.

A job that can be done now and right on through the winter months, says Mr. Oldenburg, is to clear the pasture lands of all shrubs, bushes and weeds. He also states that the fall of the year seems to be the best time to apply lime, potash, and superphosphate. These require several months to get in their good work and applications now will benefit spring growth. Nitrogen, however, should not be put on until the early spring. All the fertilizers could be applied in early spring, if it is not possible to put them on in the fall, but since the spring of the year is always a busy time the pastures are more likely to receive fertilizer if the work is done when there is less rush.

Of course, the quantity of lime needed will vary with the acidity of the soil but as a general rule, from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre should help on nearly all well-drained pastures. Four or five hundred pounds of superphosphate and 150 pounds of muriate of potash per acre is about correct for most well-drained soils.

The nitrogen should be applied in the early spring, about a month before "turning out time." With the plentiful amount of moisture which is in the soil at that time, on pasture with a good stand of grass, the cattle will find a supply of very good feed ten to twenty days earlier in the spring. The carrying capacity will be increased and in most cases from two to three times as many cows can be fed on each acre.

Several seasons will be required to bring weedy and poor pastures with a thin stand up to the standard desired, by the use of fertilizer alone, cautions Mr. Oldenburg. He advises shortening the process by harrowing sufficiently to remove dead grass and expose fresh soil, and then applying a few pounds of seed. The mixture he recommends for strong clay or loam soils is Kentucky blue grass, alsike and white clovers, and timothy. In his opinion, the best mixture for light loam or sandy soils is orchard grass with a little red top and alsike clover.

If you are not in a position to fertilize a whole pasture, it is suggested that an acre be staked off in the pasture and treated in the manner described. In that way the effect can be seen right on your own farm.

RESPECT FOR RIGHTFUL AUTHORITY

(World's Temperance Sunday)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17; Rom. 13:1-14, I Peter 2:13-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Effective the Will of the Community.

Though our citizenship is in heaven, we have obligation to the government under which we live.

I. Obligation to Pay Tribute (Mark 12:13-17).

This teaching concerning the tribute money came in answer to the question put to Jesus by representatives of the Pharisees and Herod. They would gladly have killed him, but they feared the people. Their only hope was to discredit him among the people.

1. Their question (v. 14).

Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not? The Pharisees contended that since God was the real king of Israel, it was not obligatory—yea, even sinful—to pay taxes to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod. With flattery on their lips, they put this subtle question. For Christ to have answered "yes" would have discredited Him with the people, and to have said "no" would have made Him liable to arrest as an enemy of the government.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17).

He requested a coin to be brought and inquired as to whose image and superscription it bore, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. Thus the Lord escapes their trap and inculcates a principle which applies to all time and conditions as to the Christian's responsibility to civil government.

II. The Christian's Obligation to the State (Rom. 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian.

1. Obedience to rulers (vv. 1-4).

This obligation is upon all Christians. Civil government is ordained of God, and rulers are His representatives. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is inherently wrong. The same is true of the child in its responsibility to its parents. While obedience to parents is the will of God for children, this does not imply that the child is under obligation to do that which is morally wrong, at the command of the parents. Submission to authority is the law of the believer's life.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5).

He should regard it as his obligation because it is morally right.

3. Methods of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

(1) In the payment of personal and property taxes. The citizen who enjoys the benefits of government is morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations, expense is incurred, for which benefit the citizen should pay.

(3) Veneration for magistrates—"Fear to whom fear."

Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers, God's representatives.

(4) "Honor to whom honor." Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

III. The Spirit of Loyalty to Authority (I Pet. 2:13-17).

The loyalty of the Christian to right authority should be glad and free. The Christian recognizes the necessity of social order, and will graciously submit to the authority of rulers and faithfully perform his obligation as a citizen, not through cringing fear, but as the Lord's free man, for the Lord's sake. By means of this free submission as God's servant, he puts to silence the ignorance of foolish men (vv. 15, 16).

1. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. A Christian will attend to the proprieties of life among all classes and in all relations.

(2) Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household.

(3) Fear God (v. 17). This is filial, reverential fear.

(4) Honor the king (v. 17). This had a peculiar significance, for in all probability the wicked Nero was then the reigning monarch.

to maintain the outstanding quality and dependability of The Chevrolet Six

In spite of the fact that a million Chevrolet Sixes have already been placed in the hands of owners, and have proved their performance and stamina by billions of miles of service over every type of highway the nation affords—

—the Chevrolet Motor Company continues to take new Chevrolet Sixes from the assembly line at the factory and subject them to pitiless testing on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground!

RESPECT FOR RIGHTFUL AUTHORITY

(World's Temperance Sunday)
LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17; Rom. 13:1-14; I Peter 2:13-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Effective the Will of the Community.

Though our citizenship is in heaven, we have obligation to the government under which we live.

I. Obligation to Pay Tribute (Mark 12:13-17).

This teaching concerning the tribute money came in answer to the question put to Jesus by representatives of the Pharisees and Herod. They would gladly have killed him, but they feared the people. Their only hope was to discredit him among the people.

1. Their question (v. 14).

Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not? The Pharisees contended that since God was the real king of Israel, it was not obligatory—yea, even sinful—to pay taxes to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod. With flattery on their lips, they put this subtle question. For Christ to have answered "yes" would have discredited Him with the people, and to have said "no" would have made Him liable to arrest as an enemy of the government.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17).

He requested a coin to be brought and inquired as to whose image and superscription it bore, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. Thus the Lord escapes their trap and inculcates a principle which applies to all time and conditions as to the Christian's responsibility to civil government.

II. The Christian's Obligation to the State (Rom. 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian.

1. Obedience to rulers (vv. 1-4).

This obligation is upon all Christians. Civil government is ordained of God, and rulers are His representatives. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is inherently wrong. The same is true of the child in its responsibility to its parents. While obedience to parents is the will of God for children, this does not imply that the child is under obligation to do that which is morally wrong, at the command of the parents. Submission to authority is the law of the believer's life.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5).

He should regard it as his obligation because it is morally right.

3. Methods of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

(1) In the payment of personal and property taxes. The citizen who enjoys the benefits of government is morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations, expense is incurred, for which benefit the citizen should pay.

(3) Veneration for magistrates—"Fear to whom fear."

Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers, God's representatives.

(1) "Honor to whom honor." Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

III. The Spirit of Loyalty to Authority (I Pet. 2:13-17).

The loyalty of the Christian to right authority should be glad and free. The Christian recognizes the necessity of social order, and will graciously submit to the authority of rulers and faithfully perform his obligation as a citizen, not through cringing fear, but as the Lord's free man, for the Lord's sake. By means of this free submission as God's servant, he puts to silence the ignorance of foolish men (vv. 15, 16).

1. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. A Christian will attend to the proprieties of life among all classes and in all relations.

(2) Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household.

(3) Fear God (v. 17). This is filial, reverential fear.

(1) Honor the king (v. 17). This had a peculiar significance, for in all probability the wicked Nero was then the reigning monarch.

"DON'T PUBLISH" FIXED TO ONE-THIRD LICENSES

Eleven of Thirty Couples This Week Want Marriage Kept Secret

"Don't Publish" marriage licenses seemed to be the order of the week at the offices of the Clerk of the Circuit court, since more than one-third of the permits granted during the past week ending Monday at noon were thus marked. In all 30 couples were granted and 11 of these were given to couples who wished it to be kept secret for a while at least. Only three were of local interest.

The total for the month of October thus far now stands at 95, which is 20 less than the record for the same month last year. Ten of the licenses issued were granted on Saturday, while two applicants were refused permits on account of the age of the contracting parties.

Fertilizers Pep Up Permanent Pastures

Millions of dollars of additional feed can be obtained from the permanent pastures of Maryland by giving them better care, according to F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in Agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service. It is his observation that from 25 to 50 per cent of the space in many pastures is occupied by course growth that has no feed value.

A job that can be done now and right on through the winter months, says Mr. Oldenburg, is to clear the pasture lands of all shrubs, bushes and weeds. He also states that the fall of the year seems to be the best time to apply lime, potash, and superphosphate. These require several months to get in their good work and applications now will benefit spring growth. Nitrogen, however, should not be put on until the early spring. All the fertilizers could be applied in early spring, if it is not possible to put them on in the fall, but since the spring of the year is always a busy time the pastures are more likely to receive fertilizer if the work is done when there is less rush.

Of course, the quantity of lime needed will vary with the acidity of the soil but as a general rule, from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre should help on nearly all well-drained pastures. Four or five hundred pounds of superphosphate and 150 pounds of muriate of potash per acre is about correct for most well-drained soils.

The nitrogen should be applied in the early spring, about a month before "turning out time." With the plentiful amount of moisture which is in the soil at that time, on pasture with a good stand of grass, the cattle will find a supply of very good feed ten to twenty days earlier in the spring. The carrying capacity will be increased and in most cases from two to three times as many cows can be fed on each acre.

Several seasons will be required to bring weedy and poor pastures with a thin stand up to the standard desired, by the use of fertilizer alone, cautions Mr. Oldenburg. He advises shortening the process by harrowing sufficiently to remove dead grass and expose fresh soil, and then applying a few pounds of seed. The mixture he recommends for strong clay or loam soils is Kentucky blue grass, alsike and white clovers, and timothy. In his opinion, the best mixture for light loam or sandy soils is orchard grass with a little red top and alsike clover.

If you are not in a position to fertilize a whole pasture, it is suggested that an acre be staked off in the pasture and treated in the manner described. In that way the effect can be seen right on your own farm.

EFFECT OF MACDONALD'S VISIT

Ramsay MacDonald, departing from the United States, left a very favorable impression behind him. The American people liked his direct statement in his speech to Congress to the effect that Great Britain was ready and willing to grant full and complete parity to the United States in the matter of naval defense. The American people are in favor of the limitation of naval armament but they want it to be with the understanding that Uncle Sam will have a navy equally to and as good as the best.

But in speaking of the favorable impression Mr. MacDonald made here it might also be called to mind that the British premier has helped himself in Great Britain by his trip to America, and the success of his trip here, even the sentimental part of it, will go a long way toward bolstering Mr. MacDonald and the Labor Party at home. After the failure of the Geneva conference there was a growing suspicion and distrust between the United States and Great Britain. Mr. MacDonald's visit has gone some distance toward dispelling this, temporarily at least, and the effect may well become permanent if the principle of parity is carried out in the next naval conference and it ends in success.

In addition, if Great Britain's naval expenses are reduced this will mean a reduction in the budget and a reduction in taxation and this will not be unpopular in England which of late years has been a country of high taxes. It is true of course that Great Britain has its big navy party which is very powerful, but the prospect of lower taxes is bound to have a popular appeal in England just as it always does in America.

The British Labor Party has its work cut out for it. In the campaign it made the promise of many domestic reforms and among other things it promised to solve the unemployment problem. This will be a big task and it might well develop that the party's domestic policies would at times be full of dynamite. With this situation in mind, the success which Mr. MacDonald won for himself in the United States may stand him in good stead when a political crisis comes. Mr. MacDonald is not without his political acumen as his visit to Uncle Sam's country shows.

ADVERTISING

Greatly increased sales of automobiles, cigarettes and household articles reveal the power of well-planned advertising as an indispensable adjunct of commercial progress.

There is an urgent need for wise and vigorous direction of advertising, and the question now confronting the world is whether advertising will take full advantage of the tremendous industrial and financial currents tending to strengthen its position, states Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, who elaborates as follows:

The multiplicity of new devices appearing on the market require merchants to apply advertising to international trade, as markets cannot be created unless products are clearly described.

Consequently the most powerful forces in the modern economic world are working, steadily and rapidly, to promote the expansion of advertising. New and exigent demands are, therefore, being made upon the advertising profession upon its skill, its resourcefulness, its ethical integrity, its understanding of contemporary life and thought.

The conviction was expressed at Berlin that the advertising profession will respond to new demands with vigor and penetration, and so contribute greatly to the furtherance of material well-being and the raising of the standards of comfort, convenience and human happiness thruout the world.

"Advertising is the key to world prosperity." Under this slogan there has just been held in Berlin, Germany, a mammoth advertising exposition incident to the convention of the International Advertising Association.

These two great events have served to focus the attention of the commercial and industrial world upon the present functions of international advertising and its truly amazing progress during recent times.

One of the speakers at Berlin suggested that the earliest man to make use of advertising may have been "a cave dweller who allowed to be visible, from the entrance of his abode, more stone axes than a family of the prehistoric age customarily employed in the pursuit of food"—whether for belligerent or commercial purposes probably would not be clear until the aforesaid headman of the establishment were consulted.

From such simple beginnings as these down to the enormous displays in our newspapers and magazines today, and the infinitely complex and dazzling gyrations of our great electric signs, advertising has made giant strides. It is a truism to say that business today would be paralyzed without it.

WORLD-WIDE AFFAIRS

Written for The Republican by Frank P. Litschert

Despite the progress which has been made toward the limitation of naval armament, and despite the signatures to the Kellogg peace pact, it is not to be forgotten that there are still danger spots in Europe. These dangers, however, are for the most part continental and need not concern the United States so long as we continue our present policy of avoiding all foreign entanglements and commitments.

Sometime ago it was announced in cable dispatches from Prague that a secret treaty binding Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, had been revealed and that it had been perfected at the last conference of the nations of the so-called Little Entente which was held at Belgrade early in the year. The treaty, it was declared, is military and binding, and unites into a formidable military combination the three Middle European nations mentioned above with a strength of around 400,000 men.

Only the other day it was announced in Paris that about $100,000,000 would be spent in the next five years on "defensive fortifications" on the French frontiers, with especial attention to the northern and eastern boundaries and the Alps. Evidently France is not wholly convinced that the pact of Locarno and the Kellogg treaty will eliminate war on the continent. And perhaps the most significant feature of the defense plan is that for the first time in modern history France will devote nearly as much money toward strengthening her Alpine defenses against possible Italian attack as her Rhine defenses which are calculated to hold back another attempt at a German invasion. Evidently the government of Mussolini is still causing grave misgivings in France despite the peace treaties. Although great secrecy is being maintained as to the extent of the French defensive works it was announced in the French parliament in response to a question that "when our plans are completely finished the Alps will be safe."

Of course it may be argued that the military pact of the three nations mentioned above is not offensive but defensive and designed to protect the nations against possible invasion by Germany or Italy. And it may also be maintained that the French fortifications are purely defensive and not designed for offensive warfare. All of which may, of course, be true, but the fact remains that the preparations mentioned will be regarded in the United States as a not altogether encouraging feature in the world peace program.

These are matters over which the United States has no control and desires no control. We are interested in peace and in the past ten years have inaugurated nearly all of the movements which have looked toward permanent peace. The Kellogg pact and the conferences between Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover are the most recent examples. Of course if naval limitations can be effected a big step toward insuring peace will have been taken. But so far as the plots and counterplots looking toward diplomatic or military victories on the continent are concerned, these are things which will have to take care of themselves so far as Uncle Sam is concerned. From the foundation of the republic we have consistently taken a stand against foreign alliances and foreign entanglements of every kind. This is still the foreign policy of the United States government and there is little prospect that it will be changed in the near future. And the average American who reads of secret treaties and military alliances among the European nations, will feel that he has real cause to be thankful that Uncle Sam has avoided membership in the League of Nations and in purely European diplomatic problems.

Maybe the durability of the old Roman roads could be attributed to the fact that they weren't eternally dug up for sewer, gas, water, light, power, and other lines.

FIRST BIN INSPECTION OF POTATOES IS MADE

4-H Club Growers Make Good Showing According to Specialist

The first bin inspection of potatoes for certification in the State has just been completed in Garrett and Allegany counties, it is announced by Dr. R. A. Jehle, specialist in plant pathology for the University of Maryland Extension Service. Only two individuals with a total of eight and a half acres had their potatoes inspected in Allegany county, but eight men and twenty-three 4-H club boys offered seed for certification in Garrett county.

Of the eight men who had their seed inspected in Garrett county, only two were able to muster, these two individuals having produced 2,455 bushels of potatoes on 11¾ acres of land. The boys fared much better, however, and of the 24 who offered seed, 20 were accepted. They had six acres between them and produced 1,402 bushels. In other words, while seventeen acres of potatoes were lost through the disqualification of the six men growers only ½ acre of potatoes was lost through the inability of two club members to secure certification. The twenty-third club member had certification discontinued. These results would certainly seem to be an endorsement of the methods employed by the 4-H club members, it is declared.

All of the 4-H club members used the Russet Rural variety of potato, while the men used this variety and White Rurals.

The name and address of any of the certified seed may be obtained from the county agents of the two counties.

ELECTRICALLY OPERATED SIGNALS BEING ERECTED

Baltimore and Ohio Installing New System Between Cumberland, Md., and Grafton, W. Va.

New automatic block signals are being installed on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad between Grafton, W. Va., and Cumberland, a distance of 101 miles. The same system is being constructed from Patterson Creek, W. Va., to McKenzie, Md., 6.3 miles, locally known as the Pinto cut-off. The total mileage where this installation is taking place, 69.3 miles is double-track; 33 miles triple-track, and five miles quadruple-track.

"Color Position Light"

Technically known as the "color position light" type, these signals are like the ones installed on other sections of the Baltimore and Ohio during the past six years and either by color or position, their messages can be read by the trainmen. Vertical green indicates a clear signal or that all is well Diagonal yellow, in the upper quadrant, shows that the block is clear at the next signal. Diagonal lunar white, in the lower quadrant, flashes the word "permissive" and for all movements through short turnouts. Horizontal red says, "Stop."

These new signals are replacing the former semaphore signals throughout the territory mentioned.

Between Big Curve and Bond, Terra Alta and M. & K. Junction and between Blaser and Hardman, the middle track will be operated by signal indication in botn directions. Between Strecker and Altamont, however, the middle track will be operated for eastbound movements only. From the west end of Keyser Yard to Piedmont, the four-track line affords opportunity for double movement in both directions—two tracks for eastward and two tracks for westward movements.

New Interlocking Systems

In connection with these improvements, two new interlockings are to be installed. One will replace the old interlocking, destroyed by fire at Mt. Lake Park two years ago; the other will be at Terra Alta and will be used to protect the junction of the two and three track lines as well as the new helper facilities soon to be installed there.

Included also in this betterment program will be the enlargement of the interlocking plants at McKenzie, Z Tower, Piedmont, Bond, Altamont, Rodemer, M. & K. Junction, Blaser, West End, Hardman and G. N. Tower.

In addition, electrically controlled outlets to passing sidings, operated by motor from the respective interlocking plants, will be established at Rawlings, Piedmont, Big Curve, Altamont, Deer Park, and Rinard. At Newburg station, the main cross-overs will be further protected, being electrically controlled by the interlocking plant at Hardman. Practically all interlockings will be improved with No. 16 instead of No. 10 crossovers.

Speeds Up Train Movement

When the new system of signals is completely installed in this territory, Cumberland to Grafton, there will be 85 block stations in each direction, providing 65 more block stations than are being used under the present manual block system. Some of the advantages of this will be that trains can be moved on closer time intervals, with increased instead of diminished safety, and since the new signals will be controlled by track circuit, there will be considerable saving of time for all trains over this mountainous division.

The estimated cost of the new signal installation, including track changes, will be approximately $1,600,000.

INTERESTING PROGRAM IS GIVEN BY CIVIC MEMBERS

Regular Meeting of Organization Held Tuesday Afternoon

A well attended meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. James P. Treacy, Second street.

Among other features of the meeting was the singing, directed by Miss Viola Broadwater, O. H. S. faculty, of a new song of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The business meeting concerned Civic Club topics and was of interest to all the members.

When it was announced that Miss Rhesa M. King, Public Health Nurse, who has so faithfully and diligently served the pepole of the county during the past three or four years, will leave the community within the next month, a rising vote of thanks in appreciation of her unselfish work here was given Miss King.

The following program was rendered: Mrs. Treacy played "Song Without Words," "A Spring Morning" and "Rrondo," three lyrics composed by Miss Bess Hinebaugh, formerly of Oakland, who is now a prominent soloist and flutist of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Frederick A. Thayer sang "My Love of Londonderry," followed by a clever encore. Mrs. Thayer was accompanied n the piano by Miss Lottie Loar, president of the club.

Miss Broadwater gave an interesting talk on "The Value of Music to the Community."

Refreshments in keeping with the Hallowe'en season were served by the hostess.

The November meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Pollock and will be in charge of Mrs. George D. Sprague.

ABOUT COAL

You want a Coal:—

LOW IN ASH—because the percentage of ash is the percentage of your coal from which you receive no benefit.

LOW IN SULPHUR and HIGH IN FUSING POINT—because your coal will clinker if it does not meet these two requirements.

A HIGH LOW-VOLATILE COAL—because it possesses the quick firing, free-burning qualities of high-volatile coal without the attendant smoke and soot nuisance.

HIGH IN HEAT UNITS—because heat is what you are really buying and what you expect to receive.

You have a right to know the analysis of the coal for which you pay your money: Below is the United States Government analysis of LAUREL VALLEY COAL from a sample composed of a part of each mine carload passing over the tipple, June 10, 1929, collected by two Government Inspectors. This analysis classifies LAUREL VALLEY COAL as NAVY STANDARD:

| | |
|---|---|
| Volatile matter | 24.1% |
| Fixed carbon | 68.9% |
| Ash | 7.0% |
| | 100.0% |
| Sulphur | 1.1% |
| B. T. U's. (heat units) | 14310 |
| Fusing point | 2740 deg. F. |

We are sole agents for this coal. It is not sold to dealers for resale except in the Eastern markets, in carload lots. We deliver by truck to your cellar at $3.60 per ton in Oakland.

Emma's Great Triumph

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright)

EMMA BROWN'S classmates were all agreed that she had drawn the plum from a pedagogical pie when, the September she graduated from college, she received an appointment to teach in the high school at Montrose Highlands. Not only would her work be under the most delightful conditions of splendid equipment and inspiring surroundings, and draw, even at the start, a very fair salary, but she would in time be eligible for Curtis Hunt's Sabbatical Year.

Curtis Hunt was the comparatively new superintendent of schools of Montrose Highlands. He had instituted many reforms, none of them, however, more popular than his Sabbatical year. "High school teachers, as well as college professors," he stoutly maintained, "should be allowed a year off every seventh year, for recuperation and study. In time we hope to grant this year's vacation with full pay; at present, all we can do is to allow a small bonus and hold the position open."

Emma, strange to say, was not vitally interested in this feature of her job. Seven years! Why, by that time she hoped to be married and have three children at least.

Yet one year passed, then several. And still Emma reported faithfully at a quarter of nine in Room 206 on the third floor. Six years added a gray hair or two, a droop to her shoulders, a wrinkle in her forehead. And she woke suddenly to a real and vital interest in the fact that the next year was to be hers—a whole, free year, in which to devote herself—to what? Why to whoever would make her services valuable for another six years to the high school and Curtis Hunt and the town of Montrose Highlands.

And so her Sabbatical Year came to Emma. And at its close, back to school, she appeared at the first teachers' meeting of the season, where she knew from experience she would be called upon for a report of what she had done during her absence. And as she sat there and viewed the groups of fellow teachers, a daring impulse to speak the truth arose within her.

When her opportunity came Emma arose and, grasping the choir back in front of her, swept her audience with a grave glance. "Some of my Sabbatical Year," she told them, "was spent at the university; some of it was spent taking a course in Phoenician archeology, the rest of it I put in making myself ready for—for marriage—studying how to be a companion, a thrifty helpmate and a home maker." She sat down amid a silence that was audible.

Then smoothly, tactfully, under John Wentworth's hand, the meeting flowed on in the usual channels.

Emma had unconsciously accomplished a strange thing. She had focused upon herself the attention of every fellow teacher, man and woman. And that attention, once captured, remained riveted. For it was impossible not to observe that Emma wore different clothes, and wore them in a new way, and that her personal appearance had grown youthful, yes, more feminine. The women would have understood had they known that a course in dressmaking and weekly visits to a reliable beauty specialist had been a part of Emma's past year. The men accepted the change at face value, but none the less interesting.

John Wentworth, walking home with Emma, discovered that she was wonderfully attractive. He began to regret his many years of bachelorhood, and to wonder how soon he could bring them to an end. Here was a woman, drawing a good salary, who had come out bravely and declared she wished to marry. What a treasure and a marvel such a woman was, these modern days!

If Emma cared for Wentworth she gave no outward sign of it that winter, but pursuing her pedagogical way serenely, accepting equally the attentions of the principal, the head of the science department, the history teacher and the young instructor in English. A trifle bitterly the other women teachers compared notes and babbled little bets among themselves as to the final outcome.

Then came the spring vacation, from which Emma returned with a radiantly happy look in her eyes and a ring that sparkled triumphantly on its appropriate finger.

Was it John Wentworth or the history man, or—?

But after school in the teachers' restroom Emma satisfied their curiosity. "It's Curtis Hunt, girls. I'm sure you're not surprised."

But as a matter of fact they were, and crowded about her.

"Come, Emma, loosen up!" begged Mabel Sorhwick. "My year off is due. Tell us what you did that got all the men interested."

"Well," said Emma, twisting her ring with a mysterious glance, "I studied up clothes and I studied up the gentle art of conversation. I made the most of my looks and I took a correspondence course in household economics, interior decorating and cookery. But, well, to be frank about it, I'll have to confess that Phoenician archeology did as much for me as anything."

"Phoenician archeology!" The two words were uttered in chorus.

"Exactly," said Emma. "You see, I knew Curtis Hunt was going to take that course, too."

RECORDS OF SICKNESS AND DEATHS IN MARYLAND

Show Increase From Influenza, Pneumonia and Heart Disease

Records of sickness and deaths thruout Maryland for the first nine months of the current year in comparison with those of the corresponding period of 1928, show a decrease in deaths from typhoid fever, measles and diphtheria, and an increase in the deaths from influenza, pneumonia, whooping cough, scarlet fever and heart disease. There were 29 deaths from typhoid fever in comparison with 43 in 1928; 19 from measles in comparison with 83; 51 from diphtheria in comparison with 71; 2412 from influenza and pneumonia in comparison with 1820 in 1928; 21 from scarlet fever in comparison with 9 in 1929; 2860 from heart disease in comparison with 2768 in 1928.

There were 53,602 cases of notifiable disease reported in the State during the first nine months of the current year in comparison with 41,679 during the same period of 1928; with a total of 16,614 deaths from all causes during the first nine months of 1929, and 16,505 to the end of September, 1928. Analyzing the increase, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that much of it could be traced to the influenza epidemic of last winter. In this connection, he said that the counties were especially hard hit by the epidemic and that of the total of 23,811 cases of influenza reported in the State during the current year, 17,231, or 72 per cent, occurred in the counties, and 6,607, or 28 per cent, in Baltimore City.

The influence of the influenza outbreak was particularly noticed, Dr. Riley said, in the increase in deaths from the respiratory diseases in the counties among children under a year old. There were 236 infant deaths from these causes reported during the first nine months of the current year in comparison with 175 during the same months of 1928. An increase in the deaths from digestive diseases among young children during the winter months could also be attributed, he said, to the effect of the influenza epidemic.

The least favorable month during the current year, so far as sickness and deaths were concerned, was January, during which 24,115 cases of notifiable disease were reported, 16,767 in the counties, and 8,348 in Baltimore City; with 2,921 deaths, 1,429 in the counties and 1,495 in Baltimore City. The most favorable was September, with 1,627 cases of illness from notifiable diseases, 751 in the counties and 876 in Baltimore City, and with 1,161 deaths, 718 in the counties and 716 in Baltimore City.

NORTHWESTERN PIKE AND BATTLEFIELDS OF VIRGINIA

(By C. H. Shaffer, Washington, D. C.)

The completion of Highway 50, of which the Northwestern Turnpike forms a large part, will afford easy access to the historical battlefields of Virginia. At Fairfax this road intersects the famous Lee Highway. Turning south on the latter one soon passes through Centerville, where the preliminary skirmishes of the Battle of Bull Run were fought. Soon after comes the old stone bridge over Bull Run. The Lee Highway passes over a new concrete bridge a few rods below the old bridge. A few miles further on one reaches the Stone House, used as a field hospital in both battles, and now used as a private battlefield museum.

The Henry farm, on which the first battle of Bull Run was fought and on which the second terminated, is in sight of the highway. Up to a few years ago this place was still used as a farm when it was bought by a Southern organization which is planning to make it into a battlefield park. Large sums of money have been set aside by interested parties to build monuments, markers, etc. At present the farm looks much the same as it did when the armies first met there in 1861, except that the old house was completely destroyed in the more sanguinary second battle. On the old foundations has been erected a crude modern frame building occupied by the present caretaker.

Mrs. Henry, the 86-year old window of a surgeon of the Navy, was killed in the house in the first battle and was buried in the yard near the house, and her two children, who deid many years later, lie by her side. Theirs are the only graves marked. Numerous depressions in the yard show that many soldiers killed there were buried where they fell.

Near the house is a red sandstone monument erected in 1865 by a Northern organization and in the brush near the highway is another monument to mark where a New York regiment stood fast until almost "wiped out" in the second battle. Both monuments are in a sad state of disrepair.

If one has the time he should take in the battlefields in and around Fredericksburg, about 54 miles south of Washington. In these great battles it is estimated that over 500,000 men were engaged and that over 100,000 casualties resulted.

Both the North and the South have spent money lavishly for monuments and the like at Gettysburg and Antietam, but the nation seemed to have forgotten the deeds of valor of her sons on the plains at Fredericksburg, the woods of Chancellorsville and the "Bloody Angle" at Spottsylvania. Here in field and wood drenched with the best blood of America, countless thousands lie buried where they fell, in shallow, unmarked graves. However, Congress recently has appropriated a large sum of money to establish battlefield park on these fields, but as yet the work has not progressed beyond the surveying and map-making stage. This work has not been easy, for there are but few survivors among those who faught there, and the records are meagre and often inaccurate. However, the engineers state that many of the trenches, earthworks, etc., made during the fighting, although often overgrown with trees and brush, are in excellent state of preservation.

A week, especially in the fall, could be spent most profitably in that region.

Mr. Kelso Remembers When Chestnuts, Selling at $1.00 Per Bushel, Were Brought to Local Merchants by the Wagon Load.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I note in The Republican of October 17th, your Mountain Lake Park correspondent asks the question does anyone remember when chestnuts were brought to the local stores almost by the wagon load.

Yes, I remember two wagon loads in one day and the season I allude to the nuts sold for $5.00 per bushel early in the fall but the price dropped to $1.00 per bushel later. I made it a rule not to sell for less than $2.00 per bushel.

The chestnuts were picked during spare time and were then spread on the barn floor and stirred occasionally to keep them from moulding.

In November, when the glut on the market was over, P. T. Garthright sent his team with his wagon to my place. We shoveled chestnuts into bags and with my team and wagon two wagon loads, consisting of eighty bushels of the nuts, were delivered at his store, for which I received $2.00 per bushel.

What is the Value of a Used Car if No One is Using It?

Economically, a Used Car not in use is of no value. The same conclusion must be drawn for any other items of merchandisable products.

Whether it be a used car, a horse, a pony, farm, house, town lot, piece of furniture, radio, piano, or whatever it might be you have that is not in use, it is costing you money to carry it, and worst of all it is doing nobody any good.

Turn your used cars, etc., into money by using "The Paid Local" column in The Republican, and follow the column for your wants. You will be the winner.

WORKMEN UNCOVER BOARD IN EXCAVATING AT SCHOOL

the murder of Josiah Harden near Elkins (now Gorman), May 15, last. The day was about as cold and bleak as could be imagined. Snow to the depth of nearly an inch fell during the night. A cutting wind prevailed.

"John Smith, aged 40, was a colored boss on the West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway. Harden, the murdered man, was a white shoemaker. Smith had been drinking and making threats and after visiting at the house where Harden stayed in the afternoon he left and did not return until late in the evening, when the shooting occurred.

He was captured at Winchester, Va., on May 19. The trial of Smith was heard at the September Term and the prisoner was defended by Messrs. Thomas J. Peddicord and H. Wheeler Combs. State's Attorney Veitch conducted the prosecution. He was found guilty and was sentenced to death on September 21 by Judge Alvey. He remarked: 'You may hang my body, but you can't hang my soul.' Of Colonel Veitch, he said: 'The devil will get that State's Attorney, sure and certain.'

Escaped from Jail

"Smith escaped from jail in October after a fight with Jailer J. Cropp, who wounded him in the abdomen with a knife. After spending the night in Harne's barn, located near the cemetery, Smith returned to the jail and surrendered as the wound inflicted by the jailer had made him weak from the loss of blood.

"He confessed to Rev. Benj. Ison, Methodist Episcopal pastor, the morning of the execution that he had fired the shots which killed Harden.

Company B, Second Battalion, Garrett Guards, composed of 42 men under Capt. Wardwell and Lients. Mason, Chisholm and Jamison, went on guard duty around the court house and jail (at present the Maffett property and the High school building) about nine o'clock that morning and remained there until after the execution. A crowd estimated at three hundred and fifty, gathered, but all they got was a sight of Smith as he was taken from the jail to the entrance leading into the yard. The fence about the jail yard was sixteen feet high. The scaffold was erected by P. A. Chisholm who had never seen a similar structure.

"As Smith walked to his execution he smoked a cigar and ascended the scaffold without a tremor. Beside Sheriff Edmund Jamison, the condemned man and Rev. Ison there were upon the scaffold four deputies, J. Cropp, William Browning, Charles Jamison and Lt. Chisholm of Company B, and a military guard consisting of Lt. D. M. Mason and Privates Wolf, West, Browning and Combs, all of Company B, and Mr. H. Wheeler Combs, one of Smith's counsel. Dr. I. Lee McComas, the jail surgeon, and Dr. E. H. Bartlett were in attendance. The trap was sprung at 1 14 p. m. and the remains were lowered at 1.15. The body was buried in the county ground near the jail.'

It is told by an Oakland resident, who was attending grammar school at the time, that there was no need on that day for the teacher to do any correcting or spanking. A dropped pin could have been heard when it struck the floor boards. When recess was announced every child remained inside the building.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mt. Lake Park to Elkins.

A trip to Elkins last Monday by way of Thomas returning by way of Philippi and Grafton, well repaid the drive of one hundred and sixty-odd miles.

Killing frosts seemed not to have limned the beauty of the foliage. At some points on the lowlands flowers, here and there, were in bloom. The pines and rhodedendrons still retained the bright green of late summer. But while all this, together with the wonderful scenic beauty of the trip appealed to our finer senses and renewed our belief in a God eternal, there was yet another incident of the trip which made a lasting impression. It was a small thing, yet big in its conception and object. Simply boxes of what had been blooming flowers on the tops of the walls of the concrete bridges leading to Elkins.

Some may depreciate this effort to beautify the roadside as having no practical value. Some may say that it was simply the work of a woman's club or organization. We rather surmise that this is true. Perhaps the Daughters of the American Revolution or Daughters of the Confederacy fostered the idea. But whoever or whatever it was, did more than simply appeal to the artistic side of the traveler. They or it advertised the fact that there was a group of Elkins people who had enough civic pride to want to make a pleasing impression on the touist approaching or leaving the town and say "howdedoo" and "goodby" in a pleasing manner.

A cheerful welcome, whether from an individual or from a civic organization, goes a long ways in making a good impression on the stranger. For a community to be known as a friendly town, giving full value for each dollar spent, with super-service thrown in for good measure, is the best kind of an advertisement and insures a return of the visitors.

The summer visitor should be made to feel that he is welcome and that he will be courteously and fairly treated; that he will get full value for the dollar spent and that simply because he is among us for a few weeks or a few months will not be taken as an excuse to "raise the ante" or "jack the price to the limit."

We believe that our merchants and others having service to sell are on the "up and up." But we should advertise the fact as well as our other advantages.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION ATTRACTS GREAT CROWDS

Estimated That More Than 500 Persons Took Part in Mammoth Mummers' Parade

A crowd estimated at more than three thousand witnessed the mummers' parade and Hallowe'en celebration in Oakland last Thursday evening, held under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

A parade of more than 500 persons, said to have been the most colorful and elaborately dressed group of persons ever on the streets of Oakland, including fire departments with their equipments from Grantsville, Terra Alta and Oakland; bands of Oakland and Crellin and a fife and drum corps from Salisbury, Pa., got under way at 7:30 o'clock and marched almost the entire lengths of Third and Second streets, before finally disbanding in the heart of town where the fun really begun and where the prizes offered by residents and business men of town were awarded.

The presence at the celebration of the Terra Alta, Grantsville and Salisbury organizations was highly appreciated by not only the local fire company but by the citizens of Oakland as a whole and shows the friendly spirit existing between the communities participating.

The costumes worn by the paraders ran from the grotesque and ridiculous to the elaborate and extremely handsome.

Those receiving prizes included the following: Frazee and Trickett children, for being the most comic group; children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hinebaugh, second. T. O. ## RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TO START MONDAY

Three Reasons For Increasing Membership, Chairman Says

"There are three reasons why Red Cross membership should be increased in your community," Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman, said in regard to the annual Red Cross Roll Call which starts in all sections of the country on Monday, November 11. "Two of these are local and one is national.

"The first reason why Red Cross membership should be increased is that general Red Cross membership not only indicative of a general humanitarian interest, but actually stimulates greater interest in the practical social problems of your community.

"It produces compound interest in community pride and in practical application of that community pride to meet community needs. This is a psychological reason based on the proved fact that the more people give of themselves and their possessions, the more they are inclined to give in money and personal service."

The Roll Call will continue until Thanksgiving Day and Garrett's quota is 500. Last year 210 answered the call. The chairmen for the Roll Call committees have been named and a house to house canvass is planned by Oakland women. The funds raised from the membership drive are used wherever needed in the county. One-half of the amount is turned in to headquarters at Washington and the other half is retained by the local chapter.

The first voluntary membership subscription for this year has been received from Mr. George Wagner, of Grantsville. He was also the first one to enroll last year.

The Civic Club of Kitzmiller, Mrs. Grant Pew, president, will have charge of the Roll Call in that community. Mrs. George Warnick will serve as chairman for Bloomington.

Anyone desiring to join the Red Cross and not being in touch with a local worker may do so by sending $1 to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman, at Oakland. The Red Cross membership button with the window card and receipt will be promptly mailed.

5181 PUPILS ENROLLED LAST YEAR IN GARRETT

Annual Report of Board of Education Published Today

That there were 5181 pupils enrolled in Garrett county schools with the cost per pupil set at $65.99, on a general average, is shown in the annual report of the Board of Education, this county, for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1929. The cost per pupil varied in the one-teacher, two-teacher, high schools, etc., from $15.65 in the two-teacher schools to $116.92 for the high schools.

The schools were open 189 days last year as compared with 176 days during 1922-23. In 1922-23 there were only 18 first grade certificated teachers, as compared with 141 for 1929-30, with no second grade and no third grade teachers.

Eight schools were closed during the year by consolidation, one old school reopened, so that at present there are in the county 116 one-teacher; 11 two-teacher; 7 elementary; 6 high schools.

The cost of teachers for 1928-29 was $236,209.16, which is $87,715.71 more than in 1922 and more than $20,000 more than last year. The equalization fund, received from the State, however, has also increased, the report shows. From $35,195.00 received in 1922-23, this amount has been increased to $112,266.00, which is an increase of $77,071 since 1922, and $15,933 more than last year.

GARRETT COUNTY POTATO CLUB BOYS WIN AWARDS

Take Nine Out Of Ten Places In First Year Class In Show At Oakland Last Saturday

Nine out of ten places awarded to members of first-year potato clubs at the Tri-State Potato Show in Oakland last Friday and Saturday, were won by Garrett county boys, according to L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, under whose auspices the clubs were formed and encouraged. There were twenty-five exhibits in this class from Preston county, West Va., and Garrett county, Maryland.

In the second year class of 12 exhibits the high honors went to Preston county, West Va., with first, third and fifth premiums. Somerset county, Pa., took second, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth, and Garrett county secured the fourth and sixth awards. The champion peck of the show was exhibited by Merle Garletts, Selbysport, a member of one of the Friendsville clubs.

Sponsored by The B. & O. R. R.

The potato club show was sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in cooperation with the agricultural extension service of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Ten boys constitute a club, and the railway company gives each boy five bushels of the best certified seed available for a period of two years. Garrett county has two first year clubs and one second year club.

Each boy receiving the seed plants his potatoes on a measured one-fourth acre of ground and keeps accurate accounts as to cost of production, yield, etc., the purpose of the work being to demonstrate the value of using good seed in the commercial production of potatoes.

Judges for the Tri-State show were S. B. Shaw, University of Maryland; Dee Crane, University of West Virginia, and J. F. Keim, Pennsylvania State College. They stated that exhibits were as good as they had ever judged and that competition was extremely close.

The winners received awards ranging from $10 down to $1, the $10 going to the winner of the first place and the $1 to tenth place.

Merle Garletts, Selbysport, 1; Earl Harvey, Oakland, 2; Scott Wiles, Terra Alta, 3; Ernest Hauser, Hoyes, 4, Merle Wilburn, Accident, 5; Everett Glotfelty, Mellerry, 6; Carl Everly, Accident, 7; Floyd Unnel, Friendsville, 8; Glen Fike, Selbysport, 9; John Spiker, Accident, 10.

In the second year class, Robert Kelley, Terra Alta, won first; William Friend, Oakland, fourth, and William Spiker, Oakland, sixth. All ribbons and premiums were offered by the railway company.

The ten best rocks from the first year Garrett county club will be sent to Chicago to be exhibited at the National Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club Congress to be held November 29 to December 6 and there they will be placed with exhibits of potatoes from all sections of the United States.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET HELD ON MONDAY EVENING

Third Annual Affair Is Largest Ever—West Virginia Agriculturalist Makes Address

The third annual Father and Son banquet, sponsored by the agriculture boys of Oakland High school, was held in the high school auditorium November 4, at 7:30 p. m., with the largest attendance of any of the three years, O. T. Graser, agriculture instructor, announced. Forty-five of the 47 boys taking agriculture in the local high school were present and [illegible] of the 42 fathers were there. The total number present was 111.

A three course dinner, cooked by Mr. William Turney, was served by boys, and it was strictly a stag affair. Prior to the repast Rev. C. A. Shilke asked the blessing and Harland Ridder, president of the Future Farmers of Maryland, Oakland chapter, welcomed the guests.

S. A. Hartley, assistant commissioner of agriculture of West Virginia and assistant director of the extension service of the University of West Virginia, was the principal speaker and he emphasized the importance of boys having opportunities to learn at home as well as at school. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, spoke of the opportunity in school work; Delbert Davis, Rotary club president, spoke on Father and Son relationships; George D. Browning, president of the Board of County Commissioners, talked briefly on the new science of agriculture. L. S. Hartley, agriculture agent for the B. and O., confined his remarks to B. and O. activities in the county, especially with potato and calf clubs.

John H. Carter, county agent, presented a cup from the Grange Milling and Supply to Cletis Beckman for proficiency in pork production. Others introduced who spoke a few words were H. A. Loraditch, president of the Board of Education, Daniel Orendorf and Harvey Gortner, county commissioners, Emerson Bishoff, John Leatherman, and Harry Beggs, agriculture instructors in the high schools. O. T. Graser presided as toastmaster.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Oakland male quartet composed of Wade H. Hinebaugh, Reeves Blandford, Jesse Ashby, and Cecil Smith, with William Gibson at the piano. The Browning Brothers, Thomas and Abel, accompanied by Mr. Shanks. Mr. Blandford also sang a solo.

The program came to an end after a picture of the banquet scene had been taken by James Bell, of Bells' studio.

Jackson's Black Diamond orchestra, Frostburg, will play for the dance to be given in McCullough's hall, Friendsville, on Saturday night, November 9. There will be both square and round dancing. Dances have been held in McCullough's hall throughout the past month or more with large crowds attending, and Saturday night's attraction is expected to be the biggest of them all.

GRAVE OF HANGED NEGRO, BURIED FORTY-SIX YEARS AGO, IS UNCOVERED BY WORKMEN; BONES RE-INTERRED

Remains of Only Legally Executed Man in Garrett County Removed to Potter's Field

While many older residents of Oakland were speculating as to what had happened to the body of John Smith, the negro who had been convicted of murder in the first degree in September, 1883, in the Circuit court here; whether or not it had been buried in the yard of the old jail, and if it had, whether or not it had been removed and sold to some medical school, or still remained there unmolested; it remained for Alex. C. Mason to point out the exact spot where workmen finally uncovered the bones of the condemned man.

That a grave had been uncovered early Friday morning in the northeast corner of the excavation for the new addition to the High school building, was announced by J. W. Whorton, contractor, and that the bones in the grave were those of a human being was confirmed by Emroy Bolden, undertaker. The marks of the grave were well defined in the earth, and bits of the rough box were found along with the bones, black with age, which had been there for 16 years.

Undertaker Bolden removed the remains Tuesday afternoon and buried them in their last resting place in the Oakland cemetery, and the tale about John Smith should be ended unless 50 years from now somebody wants to do some more excavating.

What was at first thought to be the coffin of the negro was uncovered by workmen on Saturday, October 26, but a close investigation showed that the exposed piece of timber was nothing more or less than a covering over an iron pipe leading down into an abandoned bored well. After this discovery work was resumed and it was not until last Friday that they uncovered the real grave, which was about 20 or 30 feet north of the spot originally pointed out as "The Spot."

And so, for awhile at least, the whereabouts of the bones should cause no controversy among neither young nor old; and fifty years from now when workmen begin some more excavating, a glance at the files of The Republican, issue of November 7, 1929, Volume 53, No. 38, should tell where they went.

MISS RUTH MARTIN NAMED TO SUCCEED MISS KING

Will take Charge of Public County Health Nursing in January

Miss Ruth Martin, R. N., who has been doing health work in the Kitzmiller health center for the past several months, has accepted the position of County Health nurse for the Oakland field and will assume her new duties on January 1, it has been announced.

The position in this part of the county was made vacant by the resignation of Miss Rhesa M. King, who will go to Greensburg, Pa., on December 1st to become supervising nurse for that city and county.

Miss Martin, prior to her work in the Kitzmiller section, spent one and one-half years in Mineral county, W. Va., in rural health work, and prior to that one year in Cincinnati where she was engaged in public health work.

Miss King's resignation was presented to the Board of County Commissioners and accepted by that body at the meeting of the board on Monday and the position thus made vacant was immediately offered to Miss Martin.

MAPLE SUGAR INDUSTRY MAY BE STANDARDIZED

Result of Recent Meetings May Bring County-wide Organization

With the idea of standardizing the maple sugar and maple syrup products of Garrett county, and advertising Garrett county through these products, Mr. F. B. Trenk, forestry specialist, University of Maryland, is in the county this week where he is visiting certain sections and talking over the proposition with owners of the sugar groves.

At a meeting held last night in the Ryan's Glade section, the method of standardization was explained and similar meetings are scheduled to be held tonight at Bittinger and tomorrow night at Grantsville, the centers of maple sugar and maple syrup production in the northern section of the county.

The Ryan's Glade section is the sugar and syrup center of the southern section of the county where the producers suggested that a county-wide meeting be held in January for the purpose of forming the organization to be known as the Garrett County Maple Sugar Producers' Association, the meeting to be held at some centrally located spot.

This organization would be recognized by the State department, Mr. Trenk said, and free tests, for the purpose of grading the syrup, would be made by the department for two years. After that time the actual cost of the test making would be charged. Syrup would be graded into fancy, No. 1 and No. 2, with different labels for the different grades.

The fact that Garrett county maple sugar and maple syrup is being purchased by Vermont producers, and after grading, sold for Vermont syrup, was brought out at the meeting. The producers' organization would advertise and dispose of the syrup under its proper title.

A committee was appointed to interest the people in the project and arrange for the meeting in January. The committee thus named is composed of Boyd Steyer, John Steyer, E. S. Steyer, Scott Harvey, Russell Harvey and James Lish.

PRECAUTION IS NEEDED IN PREPARING RABBITS

There Is Possibilities of Infection With Tularemia Germs

Warning hunters and food handlers of the danger of contracting tularemia, or to give it its more common name "rabbit fever," from handling infected game, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, said:

"Because of the possibilities of infection with the germs of tularemia from sick or diseased rabbits, the opening of the rabbit season brings to hunters, market men and other food handlers, the need for special precautions in shooting, skinning and in preparing rabbits for the table or for other use. A disease corresponding to what we now call "tularemia" or " rabbit fever," has been known to hunters and to market men throughout the country for many, years, but it was not until 1910 that its cause and the method of transmission from rabbit to rabbit and from rabbits to human beings were studied by Dr. G. W. McCoy and definitely established, in 1919, by Dr. Edward Francis, both of the U. S. Public Health Service.

"The disease affects wild rabbits and other animals, but particularly the wild rabbits, hares, squirrels, rats, field mice, the chipmunk, opossum, woodchuck, and others of the smaller animals. The infection spreads from animal to animal through the bite of the rabbit tick, the wood tick, and certain species of fly. The insects continue to be carriers of the infection over a long period and have been found to be a constant source of danger. The disease has been found so far in the wild rabbits, only. It has not been observed in domestic rabbits raised in rabbitries.

"Tularemia is transmitted to human beings in two ways—through handling the infected animal and by the bite of the infected insect. The infection is usually picked up by the hunter or food handler during the hunting season in skinning the animal, in preparing it for market or for cooking. In the cases studied by Dr. Francis a considerable proportion were due to the bite of infected insects. Two of the cases reported from the counties of Maryland, recently, occurred in boys who had caught and skinned a rabbit and had cut it up for bait. The presence of the disease in animals that are being skinned or exposed for sale can be detected by a characteristic speckled appearance of the liver and spleen which are dotted with white or yellowish spots, ranging in size from a pin point to one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter.

"Here is what the U. S. Public Health Service says about the danger from the wild rabbits and the ways by which it may be avoided: 'Keep your bare hands out of a wild rabbit—one per cent of them are infected with tularemia. Rabbit meat thoroughly cooked is harmless for food, because a temperature of 133 degrees Fahrenheit kills the infecting organism.* * * Rubber gloves must be worn by those who must dress wild rabbits.

"'Beware of the wild rabbit which the dog or cat has caught, or which a boy has killed with a club—it is probably a sick rabbit. The hunter should not shoot his rabbits at the point of his gun. Let him be a sportsman and shoot on the run, at 75 yards, say, and the chances will be lessened that the rabbits he bags will be sick with tularemia.'

"For the last two years, tularemia has been included among the diseases that are reported in Maryland. There were eleven cases reported in the State in 1928, 6 in the counties and 5 in Baltimore City, with one death in Baltimore City. There were probably other cases that were not recognized as tularemia."

SEASON FOR SMALL GAME OPENS MONDAY IN STATE

Limitations In Garrett County On Turkey, Partridge, Etc.

Hunting season on rabbits, partridge (quail), wild turkey, ruffed grouse, English ring-necked pheasants, woodcock, squirrel and dove will open Monday, E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, announced.

The law provides an open season for these species of game from November 10 to December 31, Mr. LeCompte explained, but the opening date has been changed this year since it falls on Sunday. The Maryland law prohibits the hunting of any species of game on the Sabbath.

Season Varies

There are, however, other provisions regarding the hunting of doves, he said. Federal relations provide that the season for doves should close after December 15, and they supersede the State law. The same applies to woodcock, which cannot be hunted after December 10. In Allegany and Garrett counties it will be unlawful to hunt squirrel or dove until October 1, 1930.

Partridge Get Respite

In Garrett county wild turkey and partridge cannot be hunted until 1931, and for ruffed grouse the present season in the county closes December 1.

With three exceptions there is a closed season on deer throughout the States, according to Mr. LeCompte. One male deer with six-inch antlers may be killed during the season in Allegany county. A similar exception is made on the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club in Washington county between December 2 and 15. In Garrett county a like bill may be made between December 2 and 3, inclusive.

Successful detection of lung trouble in infants before birth has been accomplished for the first time, according to the Child Research Council of Denver.

PRESIDENT CALLS UPON NATION TO GIVE THANKS

Calls Attention to Benefits Derived By People Through Providential Overruling

Thanksgiving will be observed Thursday, November 28, in conformity with the traditional proclamation, issued by President Hoover Tuesday, for the American people to gather in their places of worship on that day and render thanks for the blessings bestowed upon them during the past year.

The proclamation was the first of its kind issued by Mr. Hoover. The plans of the President himself for Thanksgiving Day are quite simple. He will worship in one of the Quaker meeting houses and then have a quiet family dinner at the White House.

The proclamation follows:

By the President of the United States of America.

A proclamation.

At this season of the year, when the harvest has been gathered in, the thoughts of our forefathers turned toward God with thanksgiving for the blessings of plenty and provisions against the needs of winter. They came by custom to look to the chief magistrate to set apart a day of prayer and praise, whereon their thanks as a united people might be given with one voice in unison. God has greatly blessed us as a nation in the year now drawing to a close. The earth has yielded an abundant harvest in most parts of our country. The fruits of industry have been of unexampled quantity and value. Both capital and labor have enjoyed an exceptional prosperity.

Assurance of peace, at home and abroad, have been strengthened and enlarged. Progress has been made in provision against preventable disasters from flood and pestilence. Enlightenment has grown apace in new revelations of scientific truth and in diffusion of knowledge. Educational opportunities have steadily enlarged. Endurance advances have been gained in the protection of the public health. Childhood is measurably more secure. New experiences and new knowledge in many fields have been recorded from which a deeper wisdom may grow. We should accept these blessings with resolutions to devote them to service to Almighty God.

Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, president of the United States of America, do appoint and set aside Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November, as a day of national thanksgiving, and do recommend that all our people on that day rest from their daily work, that they should extend to others less fortunately placed, a share in their abundance, and that they gather at their accustomed places of worship, there to render up thanks to Almighty God for his many blessings upon them for his forbearance and goodness.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the United States.

Done at the city of Washington this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty nine, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and fifty-fourth.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Henry L. Stimson,
Secretary of State.

Invited to Football Game

The Oakland High School Association football team has received an invitation from West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va., to attend the football game on Saturday to be played at Morgantown by the West Virginia "Mountaineers" and Detroit University. This is the third year that an invitation has been extended to the local football squad.

The trip will be made by bus and will include eighteen players, Student Manager Stemple and Coach Foster O. Speicher. The party will leave Oakland about eight o'clock Saturday morning.

The game at Morgantown will be known as the West Virginia Day game and high school football teams from all over West Virginia will be guests of the athletic department of the University that day.

Church Attendance Increases

The churches of Oakland report an increase in attendance as a result of the canvass for church attendance made by the women of the various denominations recently. Three churches report an increase last Sunday over the previous Sabbath, which was considered encouraging when it is remembered that the day was dark and extremely gloomy. Two churches had 171 at the evening services which was an increase of 51.

Next Sunday will be World Peace Day and appropriate services commemorating the day will be held in all of the churches.

DAVID A. ROBB GROOMS SELF FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Cumberlander Says Only Desire Is For Law Enforcement and Clean Administration in State

Although he is not ready to make any announcement, former State Senator David A. Robb, militant dry, of Allegany county, is preparing to seek the Republican Gubernatorial nomination, it was learned on good authority Friday, is the news broadcasted from Baltimore following a visit made to that city by Mr. Robb last week.

"My only desire," Mr. Robb is quoted as saying, "is that the Republican party shall take a definite stand for law enforcement and honest administration of State affairs and that whoever the Republican party may nominate for Governor will administer the State's affairs in the interest of the citizens instead of allowing political expediency to control, as has been the case during this administration."

Denies Writing Leaders

Mr. Robb denied that he had written to Senator Goldsborough, titular head of the Republicans in the State, or to Galen L. Tait, Collector of Internal Revenue, and chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, to obtain backing before his candidacy was formally announced.

Senator Goldsborough and Mr. Tait declined to comment on the report that Mr. Robb had planned to run, and they refused to state what position they would take toward his candidacy.

Mr. Robb's assertion that he believed the Republicans should nominate a candidate who would take a definite stand for "law enforcement" was regarded as a bid for attention to his record in the Senate in 1922 and 1924, when he fought unsuccessfully for a State enforcement act.

Might Get Church Backing

It is believed that the Allegany countian would make a strong showing in the counties because of his dry position, thus securing the indorsement of the church group and others who have argued for a State prohibition measure during the Ritchie administration.

In contrast to Mr. Robb is Mayor Broening, who generally has been regarded as a wet, but who, according to his friends, may run for Governor as a Constitutionalist, that is, as being in favor of enforcement of the Constitution, including the Eighteenth Amendment.

Many Republicans in the State hold that Mayor Broening would be unable to deliver the county vote as would a county man. That is one of the strongest claims Mr. Robb's supporters have put forth in explaining his ability as a potential vote-getter.

Ritchie Strong There

It is pointed out that Mr. Robb would have the advantage of coming from a section of the State where Governor Ritchie is concedly strong. If the normal Democratic majority in Baltimore city is to be offset by the county vote, it is necessary to produce a Republican candidate who will be able to make inroads upon Governor Ritchie's popularity in Western Maryland (assuming that the Governor intends to seek a fourth term), which is normally Republican, advocates of a county candidate say.

The attitude of the State leaders toward the Broening or any other candidacy for Republican nominations has not been revealed. It is said that Mr. Tait and Senator Goldsborough believe it is too early for them to commit themselves to any aspirant and that the party should spend several months in bringing about harmony and building up the organization.

Broening Visits Counties

That Mayor Broening is eager to make his home in the Executive Mansion at Annapolis after January 1, 1931, is unmistakable. For several months he has been making pilgrimages into the counties and addressing meetings wherever possible. It is said Mayor Broening has made alignments with a number of county leaders in an effort to spread the Broening-for-Governor boom outside of the city.

The majority of the county Republican leaders are said to be maintaining a neutral stand, waiting for word from headquarters before openly pledging their support.

County Commissioners and Attornys Go To Baltimore To Argue Tax Matter.

The Commissioners were accompanied to Baltimore by Attorneys E. R. Jones, representing the Tax Commission, and Fred. A. Thayer, counsel for the electric company.

OAKLAND 47 YEARS AGO AS SEEN BY A CITY WRITER

Relates the Killing of Rattlesnakes in Oakland Barroom

"The trip up here may well be called a variegated two hundred miles. * A lot of building and improving has also been done in Oakland since last season, and a 'company' is building a string of cottages of unique and 'gingerbread' design amid the scrub oaks on the undulations between the Park and Oakland. Saturday it was 86 and sticky in Oakland. Owing to the backwardness of the season they have not killed the usual number of rattlesnakes in the barroom of the Oakland Hotel, but the season is not without its sensations. An Irish earl, who keeps a livery stable opposite the postoffice, almost lost the heir of his estate this morning. The sprig of shamrock nobility drove a spirited (?) horse into the stream that cleaves the mountain borough and as neither horse or boy could swim, the whole rig had to be fished out and hung up to dry."

The suggestion that rattlesnakes were once killed in what was once a well known but now defunct institution of Oakland should not be taken too seriously. What the writer evidently wished to convey was the fact that many sportsmen who came to the mountains to fish and hunt would usually gather in the barroom of the hotel upon their return from the woods and streams and there recount their day's experiences, among which would probably be contacts with rattlesnakes and other "varmints" met up with.

The story above is an antique, for it appeared in the National Republican of July 1, 1882, more than forty-seven years ago.

To the present generation that is a long time. Less than a year prior, President William McKinley, our third martyred president, had been ruthlessly slain by Guiteau, the anarchist. The issue of the paper from which the above was taken, carried the autobiography of the assassin, which is a queer mixture of egotism and, at times, almost incoherent ravings against those then in authority and in politics.

In the light of later day medical progress, Guiteau would undoubtedly have been pronounced insane.

At this time the Oakland postoffice was located in a building, long since torn down, on the Thayer property, corner of Third and Oak streets. The late Ralph Thayer, father of Attorney Fred. A. Thayer, of Oakland, was the postmaster.

Recalling the stirring days immediately preceding the Civil War it is interesting to learn that just prior to the great conflict, a bedroom over the postoffice was occupied by Jefferson Davis, who was later to become President of the Southern Confederacy.

Thomas Martin was the "Irish earl" who kept the livery stable opposite the old postoffice, and it was his son "Tommy" who found that the water was wet in the stream when he rode the horse into it that memorable day.

Mr. Martin, together with many other citizens prominent in Oakland in their day, have answered the call of the great unknown and have passed to their reward.

Oakland High School News

Friday last the pupils of O. H. S. went in a group to the Maryland Theatre to see Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time." The matinee gave a fine opportunity to the pupils going home on busses to see a splendid picture. A good time was had by all.

Monday, Nov. 4, the last soccer and volleyball games of the season were played at the fair grounds and on the playgrounds here, respectively. The opponent of the local school was the Grantsville High. The results of the games were, in soccer, 7-2 in favor of Grantsville. Volleyball was won by Oakland 11-8. The Grantsville team is the undisputed champions of the county as a result of the year's play.

Monday night, November 4, there was a father and son banquet held at the high school by the Agriculture Class. More than a hundred were in attendance.

GARRETT COUNTY YOUTHS GIVEN VERDICT FOR $225

Suit Brought Against Game Wardens for False Arrest

A verdict of $225 for the plaintiff was returned Friday in the Cumberland Circuit court in the suit of Glenn Sharpless, of Swanton, this county, against Patrick O'Brien and James Willis, deputy game wardens, and Constable David Clark, which was taken up last Thursday morning.

Sharpless sought $10,000 damages alleging that he and Lester Sweitzer, another youth, were arrested without cause by the officers, on a charge of hunting out of season, and that they were forcibly taken to the Westernport jail. Lester Sweitzer, another youth, has also entered suit against the defendants.

From the plaintiff's testimony it appeared that Sharpless and Sweitzer were returning down the road at Swanton, November 3, 1928, and were seized by the arm, taken into custody by the defendants, two being game wardens and the other a constable. They were driven to Westernport and placed in jail that night, charged with hunting out of season.

The youths contended they were not hunting but the two shots fired or the detonations was made by torpedoes exploded by a passing B. and O. local train. This testimony was corroborated by an older brother of Sharpless riding on the locomotive, he said, at the time.

Ernest R. Jones, Oakland, G. W. Legge, Jr., and Albert A. Doub, represented the plaintiff, while Edward J. Ryan was attorney for the defendants. Nearly all the witnesses summoned were from Garrett county.

Mrs. N. I. Broadwater Injured in Auto Crash

Mrs. N. I. Broadwater, wife of Dr. Broadwater, Oakland, sustained painful cuts about the head and face Saturady night when the taxicab in which she was riding in Cumberland, was struck by another machine. Mrs. Broadwater was cut by flying glass when the windows of the taxicab were shattered.

She was taken to the Memorial hospital where she was put under the care of Dr. W. A. Gracie. Mrs. Broadwater was on her way to the Queen City station, intending to board a train and return to her home in Oakland when the mishap occurred.

The taxicab driver reported that the operator of the other machine left the scene without offering aid or giving his name.

Meat

Do you know that about one-third of the money spent on food in the United States is spent for meat? This seems a high percentage but it is probably due to the fact that so many of us demand the expensive roasts, steaks and chops. Fortunately there is just as much nourishment in the cheaper cuts of meat as in the expensive cuts, and if they are properly cooked they will be deliciously tender and palatable.

Braised Beef

Two and one-half pounds lower part of rump, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups boiling water, 3 tablespoons fat, ½ cup carrots, cut in slices; ½ cup onions, cut in slices; ½ cup celery, cut in pieces.

Wipe meat with clean damp cloth and cut in 3 inch cubes. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and flour. Put fat in frying pan and when hot add the meat and brown slightly. Put meat in a baking dish, add carrots, onions, celery, and water. Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven 3 hours or until meat is tender. Thicken the stock with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with water.

Swiss Steak

Two pounds beef, round; ¼ cup flour, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup boiling water, 1 small onion, chopped; 2 tablespoons fat, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, 1 cup stewed or canned tomatoes.

Wipe meat with a clean damp cloth. Cut in 2 inch square pieces. Mix flour into the meat with a wooden potato masher. Brown onion and meat in the fat. Add green pepper, tomatoes and water. Cover and cook slowly 2 hours or until meat is tender. The stock may be thickened more with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with cold water.

Beginning Sunday, the 10th inst., busses over the Northwestern Turnpike from Grafton to Winchester, Va., will be operated by the Meyer Transit Company.

Lesson for November 10

WORLD PEACE THROUGH MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 2:2-4; 11:6-10; 19:23-25; Acts 17:22-28; John 4:20, 21.

GOLDEN TEXT—They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends the World Around.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Friends the World Around.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working for World Peace.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Share in Promoting International Understanding.

The lesson title is somewhat misleading. It is not world peace through mutual understanding, but through the actual coming of Jesus Christ, the Messiah, and the establishment of His kingdom on the earth.

I. Messiah's Kingdom Established (Isa. 2:2-4).

By "mountain" in the Scriptures is meant a kingdom (Dan. 2:35, Rev. 13:1, 17:9-11).

1. Its position (v. 2).

It shall be in a place of supremacy. The kingdoms of the world shall then become the kingdom of Christ (Rev. 11:15).

2. The restored kingdom the teacher of the gentiles (v. 3).

God called Israel and made her the priestly nation in order that she might make known His name among other nations. Now, after many centuries of apostasy and rebellion, the chosen nation comes into its own. God's favor will be so outstanding as to gain the attention of the whole world.

3. The Divine Judge (v. 4).

The problems of the world which are so beyond man's capacity to solve will be adjudicated by the One who is all wise, and He shall then rebuke many people. Because of this rebuke, they shall convert their implements of war into implements of husbandry, and shall learn war no more.

II. Description of His Reign (Isa. 11:6-10).

Universal peace between men and animals will prevail. In this picture each animal is coupled with that one upon which it naturally preys.

1. The wolf shall dwell with the lamb.

2. The leopard shall lie down with the kid.

3. The calf, the young lion and the fatling shall lie down together.

4. A little child shall lead them.

5. The cow and bear shall feed together.

6. The lion shall eat straw like the ox.

7. The sucking child shall play upon the hole of the asp.

8. The weaned child shall put his hand upon the den of the cockatrice.

The coming of Christ will have a regenerating effect upon the whole creation. The only peace for the earth will be when Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, shall reign.

III. Peace Among the Nations by Means of the Knowledge of God (Acts 17:22-28).

The way to bring peace among the nations is to make God known. Paul began his discourse on Mars' hill by referring to one of their inscriptions, "To the unknown God," and declared that it was his purpose to make known this God unto them. By using this as his point of contact he made declarations about God and man which if recognized will tend to the unity of the nations.

1. Declaration concerning God (vv. 24, 25).

(1) The Creator of the universe. (2) Lord of heaven and earth. Being essentially spirit, He demands heart worship, and being Creator He cannot be confined to an earthly temple. (3) His active providence. He declared that in Him we live and move and have our being.

2. Declaration concerning man (vv. 26-31).

(1) We are the offspring of God (v. 28). (2) Nations have their place by God's purpose. (3) Men should seek God. The truth thus declared concerning God and man, if received, will remove national and racial barriers.

IV. The Basis of National Union (John 4:20, 21).

The coming union of nations will not be in forms or symbols, but in spirit. The union of the race must be around Jesus Christ. Being united to Him as head, men are brought into fellowship with God. The Christian church is the supreme uniter of nations (Eph. 4:3-6). If we would hasten world peace, let us with diligence and enthusiasm endeavor to induce men to give allegiance to Jesus Christ.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Claud A. Martin vs. Alberta A. Martin.

No. 2933 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That on the 5th day of June, 1912, he was married by the Rev. Frank Roberts in Mineral County, West Virginia, to Alberta A. Martin, the defendant, with whom he resided, for the most part in said Mineral County, West Virginia, until the 13th day of September, 1926; that ever since their said marriage your orator has behaved himself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate husband toward the said Alberta A. Martin; that there were no children born of said marriage; that for a long time prior to said 13th day of September, 1926, said defendant treated your orator in a cruel and harsh manner, was threatening and abusive in her conduct towards your orator and at times threatened to take his life so that he was in constant fear of bodily harm and injury from said defendant; that for the space of about one year before said date your orator and the said defendant, because of her said conduct, occupied separate rooms and did not live together as man and wife; that although your orator endeavored to continue living with said defendant her conduct finally became and was so intolerable and your orator's fear for his own safety so great that he was compelled on the 13th day of September, 1926, to leave the house which your orator and said defendant occupied as a residence in Keyser, West Virginia, and to take up his residence elsewhere; that your orator has made every possible and proper effort to continue living with said defendant but found it impossible to continue said relationship; that the conduct on the part of the said defendant amounted to abandonment and to an entire deprival of your orator of his marital rights; that said abandonment and separation has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that your orator has been a resident of Garrett County, Maryland, continuously for more than two years, but the said defendant resides in Keyser, Mineral County, West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon this 6th day of November, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of November, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of December, 1929, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

During the World War it was the big drive. At the present time in Oakland, it is "The Big Push." Since the exercise of last Friday evening, Scoop is thinking of holding a "pushing contest" among Oakland's celebrities, just to see who is really "The Big Push."

Somebody, it must have been Chief Kerins, let the historical bars down at the dance on last Thursday and let Eve and Salome into the hall. Eve spent her time in one corner of the Garden while Salome was all over the place.

Cupid's Arrows

Feeling that something extraordinary is needed in Garrett county to awaken all men to the fact that there are many nice home-loving women around here who desire to correspond with a view to matrimony, Scoop is going to start a column for the lovelorn and conduct a marriage bureau. Material will be treated very confidential, and any woman who desires to find her soul-mate will be guaranteed results of some kind or other. This thought is the result of a letter received during the past week from a comely maid which Scoop will number A. It reads:

Dear Scoop:

"I am a fairly good looking miss who has seen 25 summers (winters not mentioned nor how long the lady has been unable to see),am neat in appearance except when I get up, am of athletic type and enjoy games such as leap frog, tag, red rover, and what not.

"Am considerably well formed but have wen on left knee and mole on back, just a little knock-kneed, have wart on end of nose, otherwise perfect. Have happy disposition and although I chew with my mouth open, I make harmony with the various foods, especially soup. Wish to make acquaintance with man, can be crazy over most anybody. Please write. Look below for photo, taken by Col. Bell.

Please Don't Rush

Here's Another One

Dear Scoop:

"I was introduced to a handsome man three weeks ago who asked to meet me. We spent a wonderful evening, I thought, and he promised to telephone, but he didn't and I haven't seen him since. I believe I love him. Am I going to lose him? What can I do?"—Snappy Sal.

Dear Snappy:

Be patient. Maybe he didn't like your gold teeth. Perhaps you had better install a telephone. Have you ever tried gargling?

The Big Parade

Scoop would like to publish pictures of all those who won prizes in the mummers' parade last Thursday but this is impossible so he is going to pick out just one of the couples and show them in marching regalia. This picture was taken by Col. Bell and is being published free by Scoop which ought to be quite an honor in itself. Here are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Naylor in person. Those who missed the parade really missed a treat.

Economically, a Used Car not in use is of no value. The same conclusion must be drawn for any other items of merchandisable products.

Whether it be a used car, a horse, a pony, farm, house, town lot, piece of furniture, radio, piano, or whatever it might be you have that is not in use, it is costing you money to carry it, and worst of all it is doing nobody any good.

MT LAKE PARK.

Mountain Lake Park Citizens Should Lend Aid to The Red Cross.

The annual Red Cross membership campaign is here and it is the duty of Mountain Lake Park to contribute its quota.

The American Red Cross is a permanent organization, chartered by the Congress of the United States. The President of the United States is its president. Its governing board is composed of government officials and distinguished citizens of the country. It operates in the name of all the people. Its assistance to other nations is cementing a world-wide friendship and understanding. It is carrying out the idea of the Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. When disaster strikes, it provides emergency relief, whether the community is overwhelmed by flood, tornado, fire, pestilence or other catastrophe.

Its charter obligates it to perform certain duties in the way of furnishing volunteer relief to the sick and the wounded of armies in time of war, and it must continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace.

There is no assured immunity from disaster for any community whether that community be large or small, located on the mountain top or in the valley. Since 1881 it has expended in relief more than eighty millions of dollars. In the past two years it has provided relief in 28 disasters in 108 counties in 24 States of the Union.

If these services are to continue, the membership must be maintained, and its membership must be representative of all the people, irrespective of race, creed or political affiliation. When you join, you help directly to maintain continuously the practical humanitarian services of your Red Cross.

As Herbert Hoover said: "It is our privilege and duty to share in its great work."

Hallowe'en Plans Miscarry.

Those who lay their plans for Hallowe'en devilment should hold their confabs in a secret place and talk in whispers. Because this plan was not followed some of the citizens of the Park were enabled to overhear the plots of a bunch of boys and nip their plans in the bud. As a result no damage was done to property here. Only in one instance that we have heard about was anything attempted, and then it was "love's labor lost," for just as the boys had labored long and diligently in carrying a pile of lumber to a point where it would cause inconvenience, the authorities stepped from their hiding place and compelled the boys to labor just as long and just as diligently in carrying it back. "The best laid plans of mice and men," etc.

John W. Bowman, Civil war veteran, who saw much active service and who received a severe wound during one of the engagements, although 84 years and 3 months of age, still is very active in the town of Accident where he has spent most of his life. He carries himself straight and has a brisker walk than many younger men about him.

Mr. Bowman was born in Somerfield, Pa., on July 17, 1842, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bowman. At the age of two the boy came to Maryland and has spent the balance of his life in this state. At the age of 21 he enlisted and served one and one-half years until the close of the Civil War.

While guarding a six-mile wagon train of supplies at Berryville, Va., on August 14, 1864, he received a severe wound, the ball passing through his right lung and lodging in the front of his shirt. Owing to the loss of blood Mr. Bowman lay from 10 a. m. until 1 p. m. and then revived enough to enter a citizen's home where he was kindly treated for several days. Upon entering a hospital and finding that the wound had healed he was allowed to return to his comrades in Co. I, 3rd Maryland regiment.

During the past summer his garden at Accident looked as well if not better than many others, and nearly every day he is seen in his shop doing some kind of work. He is expecting to live a great many more years.

PLEA FOR WORLD PEACE MADE IN ARMISTICE TALK

Hon. William C. Walsh, Cumberland, Makes Principal Address Monday at Maryland Theatre

A plea for world peace concluded the address of Hon. William C. Walsh, Cumberland attorney and World War veteran, in the Armistice Day celebration, held Monday afternoon under the auspices of Proctor Kildow Post of the American Legion.

Mr. Walsh, in his address related the events that happened to the average American citizen in changing from a civilian to a soldier, and his trials and tribulations before and after he got to the fighting lines.

Eleven years after the signing of the Armistice which brought to an end the largest war in the history of the world, he said practically everybody was interested in world peace.

Delbert Davis, chairman of the program committee, in a few remarks preceding the address of Judge Walsh, pointed out that only by the younger generation could world peace eventually be carried to a successful conclusion.

Preceded By Parade.

The program of the afternoon, rendered in the Maryland Theatre, was preceded at two o'clock by a parade of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, members of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, the local troop of Boy Scouts and students of the High School. Following the parade the theatre was filled to capacity to hear the program which had been planned by Joseph M. Gonder, post commander of the local Legion Post.

Rev. B. T. Trevey, pastor of St. Paul's church, opened the program with an invocation and Rev. W. B. Brock, pastor of the Presbyterian church, pronounced the benediction.

The Gilbert Brown Boys' Band rendered two selections and the Harmony Boys, local orchestra, also gave two selections. Many of the old time songs, so popular during the war, were revived and sung by all those present.

Three addreses were made in the schools at one o'clock and prior to the parade, which explained to the pupils the meaning of Armistice Day. Rev C. A. Shilke spoke at Crellin school; Mr. E. R. Jones addressed the Oakland Grammar school, and Mr. Delbert Davis addressed the High School students in Oakland.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE TO OPEN THANKSGIVING DAY

Mrs. C. Milton Sincell in Charge of Annual Campaign

The twenty-second annual Christmas seal sale of the Maryland Tuberculosis association will open on Thanksgiving Day, November 28, Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, county chairman, announced.

Seals will be distribnted this year to the schools and business houses, and a number of letters will be mailed out to these places in the near future. The seals are said to be very beautiful this year with "Merry Christmas" and a "Happy New Year" written upon them. "The Bell Ringers" is the title of the seal.

In order not to conflict with the American Red Cross roll call, and the sale of other seals, it was stated that no Maryland Tuberculosis seal would be sold in the county until Thanksgiving Day. The seal sale will close the latter part of December.

"Seventy nercent of the funds realized from this campaign remain within Garrett county," the chairman said. "The state receives 25 percent and national headquarters 5 percent. The money that remains within the county is used in preventorium work, educational work, and caring for the health of those in danger of or suffering with tuberculosis.

Boys' Band Clears $40 On Benefit Card Party

Approximately $40 will be cleared by the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band as a result of the benefit card party held last night at the Knights of Pythias hall under the auspices of the band auxiliary, R. R. Gilbert, director, announced this morning. Twenty-one prizes were awarded and Miss Cara Frantz was declared winner of the $2.50 gold coin prize.

A dinner, for the band's benefit, will be given by Mrs. Nettie Eichelberger at her home on Oak street sometime during December, it has been announced.

ALCOHOLISM IS CAUSE OF MAN'S DEATH WEDNESDAY

Body of James Powers, Miner, Is Found Near Bloomington

Garrett county authorities investigating the death of James Powers, 65 years old, of Phoenix, Allegany county, whose body was found shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning on the bank of the Little Savage river, above Blomington, this county, reported that death was caused by acute alcoholism.

W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, W. D. Casteel, sheriff, and deputies Seymour and West were investigators. Justice Gonder decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Powers, who was unmarried, was found about a mile from Bloomington. His head was lacerated and bruises were found on his arms and back but investigators denied that he had met with foul play, as was first reported. Dr. J. G. Abbott, Piedmont, W. Va., who examined the body, said that Powers died from acute alcoholism. He had been dead for several hours when the body was found. Powers was a former resident of Barton and is survived by two sisters and one brother.

BOWLING LEAGUE TO GET UNDER WAY NOVEMBER 18

Preliminary Matters Arranged at Meeting Held Last Thursday

Adaption of rules, naming of team captains and nights of play for the fourth annual bowlinge lague of Oakland and vicinity were the outstanding things accomplished at a meeting of those interested in bowling held last Thursday evening at the Manhattan Hotel at the invitation of the management of the Recreation. The first game of the season will be played on Monday, November 18.

The following six captains were selected: Alva Gortner, Fred. Peddicord, Carroll Elliott, Wade Mason, Robert Ford and Bernard Gonder. The captains will make up the teams from the list of eligible players and will choose the name by which they wish to be known.

There will be three games each week during the season, on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, beginning at 7:15 o'clock. A divided season will be observed this year, the same as last.

Rules governing the play were presented and adopted. The refreshments served at the Manhattan with the compliments of the Recreation, were enjoyed, as were also brief addresses.

Sugar Producers to Organize at Meeting in December

That the date of the county-wide meeting of the prodacers of maple sugar and syrup would be held about the middle of December, was decided after the two meetings held last Thursday and Friday at Bittinger and Grantsville.

A number of interested producers were present at the three meetings held in the county last week in the interest of standardizing the maple sugar industry, and at the first meeting held at Ryan's Glade a committee was appointed to plan for a county-wide meeting.

The place of the meeting has not been decided, according to John H. Carter, county agent, but it will be in some centrally located community. If the plans are not clear to anybody interested, the county agent will explain them to anyone who calls at his office, or they can also be explained by F. L. Trenk, forestry specialist, University of Maryland.

Serenading Nets Firefighters Good-Sized Donations

Serenading by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department threatens to become a permanent fixture on their program, and why not, say the members, when such success is met on the first two attempts?

A few week ago at the suggestion of one of the members the firetruck and fire laddies took a short trip to Mt. Lake and a stop performing in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reinhardt, recently married, they received a handsome donation.

On Wednesday, November 6, they stood in front of the residence of Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Selby, also recently married, and were the recipients of another handsome donation. Now both parties are sure to have ample protection from fire.

RAID FRIDAY AFTERNOON UNCOVERS A GIANT STILL

Is Largest Moonshine Plant Ever Found In Garrett County—Had 200-Gallon Capacity

What is said by the local authorities to be the largest still ever found in Garrett county was captured on Friday by Sheriff William Casteel and deputies Joy Griffith and Richard West, about one mile east of Edgewood, a small station on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad between Oakland and Hutton. The still with a capacity of 200 gallons, was in operation and its output was considered about 60 gallons each day.

The owners of the still could not be located. A 75-gallon still was also captured at the same place. The "brewery," according to authorities, was situated around a sawdust pile, and had numerous places in the sawdust to bury the barrels of moonshine. Near the sawdust pile was a tent in which the owners stayed, and beside this was the lean-to, containing the stills.

The following things were discovered and taken into custody or destroyed: 700 gallons of mash, 16 barrels, 150-gallon still, 1 tent, one pressure tank for a gasoline burner, and 8 gallons of whiskey and 15 gallons of gasoline.

Henry A. Sisler and D. L. Casteel, both of West Virginia, were arrested last Thursday near Herrington, charged with manufacture and possession of liquor. A 20-gallon still and 150 gallons of mash were discovered and confiscated by local authorities.

Sisler and Casteel were brought to Oakland and given a hearing before a justice of the peace and both were held on $600 bond for their appearance at the December term of court. The bond was furnished in each case.

Another small still, of 15 or 20 gallon capacity, was destroyed by officials near the old river road about two miles from Oakland.

Eight barrels of mash were discovered at Dry Run Monday by county officers in a building which had evidently been used for a smoke house. No one was near the premises at the time and indications pointed to the removal of a still shortly before the officers arrived upon the scene.

SCHOOL FOR LEADERSHIP TRAINING WILL BE HELD

First Session to Convene Sunday Evening in St. Paul's Church

A leadership training school will be opened for the people of Oakland and the surrounding communities on Sunday evening, November 17, at 7:30, in St. Paul's M. E. church, with a public union service to be addressed by Dr. Robert Davids, of Baltimore.

During the school three courses will be offered: 1. Primary Methods, to be taught by Miss Lillian McCormick, of Baltimore, an outstanding primary leader; 2. Teaching Religion, taught by Dr. Robert Davids, Baltimore, an authority on religious education; 3. The Rise of Ancient Israel, an Old Testament treatise taught by Delbert Davis, of Oakland. These courses are so arranged as to include all grades of scholars.

An enrollment of sixty or more is hoped for. A fee of $1 will be charged and each pupil is also required to purchase a text book.

The Oakland Community Council, under whose auspices this school is being conducted, appeals to the teachers in Sunday schools and to all prospective teachers and adults to attend.

Church Attendance Continues to Increase in Oakland.

Armistice Sunday showed a marked increase over the previous Sunday in church attendance in the various churches of town. The morning services were well attended, while the evening services showed a normal number of worshippers present. An effort for better church attendance is being conducted for a period of twelve weeks, and progress has been noted during the past three weeks.

Next Sunday will be Sunday School Sunday. Miss Lillian McCormick will speak in the Lutheran church; Dr. Davids in the Presbyterian church in the morning and in the evening he will address a union meeting, to which all are invited in the Methodist church. Miss McCormick and Dr. Davids represent the Maryland Sunday School Union.

YOUTH IS KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Guy Martin, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Martin, Hit When He Attempted To Cross Road

Guy Martin, aged 8 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen U. Martin, who live about three miles south of Oakland, was killed instantly Saturday when struck by an automobile driven by A. L. Fike, of Eglon, W. Va.

The boy, it was said, was crossing the road and due to the noise made by the tractor his father was driving in a field nearby did not hear the approach of the car.

Mr. Fike was given a preliminary hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, and was charged with reckless driving. Due to the absence from town of J. C. Renninger, State's attorney, he was held under $500 bond for his appearance before the justice at some future date on the charge of manslaughter, and $100 for his appearance on the charge of reckless driving. The date of his hearing has not yet been decided.

Funeral services for the deceased boy were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. E. Waybright officiating, assisted by Rev. C. A. Shilke. Interment was made in the Red House cemetery. The funeral was said to have been the largest ever held in that section.

The boy is survived by his father and mother, five brothers and one sister.

DEER PARK YOUTHS ARE ARRESTED BY OFFICERS

Tried and Fined By Judge West on Assault and Battery Charge

Ralph Welch and Courtney Tasker, both young men of Deer Park, were arrested Monday, the former on charges of assault and battery and being drunk and disorderly, and the latter on a charge of assault and battery. The assault with which they were charged was made on Andrew Day.

On the charge of assault and battery, the offenders were fined $5 and costs each by Judge West when they were tried yesterday morning.

On the charge of being drunk and disorderly, Welch was fined $20 and costs, his total fines and costs amounting to $58.

The Day family had Courtney Tasker placed under a peace bond of $200 and both offenders are now in the County Jail until the bond is furnished and the fines paid.

Yesterday was the second or third time that the two had been before the justice. The next time they are taken into custody the State's Attorney warned them, would probably mean a term of service in the Maryland House of Correction.

CONFERENCE ON SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK TO BE HELD

Four District Meetings Are on The Schedule for Next Week.

HUGH ECHARD LOSES ARM IN DUCK GUNNING MISHAP

Firearm Accidentally Explodes, Victim Receiving Full Charge in His Left Arm near Shoulder

Hugh Echard, aged 20 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Echard, Mountain Lake Park, had his left arm amputated three inches below his shoulder as a result of the first reported gunning accident of the season last Friday morning, when his gun was accidentally discharged, the full charge striking him in the arm.

The operation was performed at the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, a few hours after the accident, the patient being rushed to that city as soon as possible following the accident. His condition this morning is reported as being favorable.

Young Echard, in company with Mr. L. M. Fraley, had been gunning for ducks on the lake at the Park early Friday morning and had been successful in shooting several of the fowls. They were far out in the water, however, and as Mr. Fraley had a business engagement he was driven back to Oakland by the young man. Returning to the lake he was joined by Sam Woods, also of the Park. Together they went out in a boat and gathered the ducks and then rowed ashore. As Woods stepped from the boat young Echard engaged himself in gathering the ducks from the bottom of the craft and was tossing them on shore the gun, which was setting at an angle against one of the seats and pointing directly at Echard, exploded, with the result as above indicated.

The victim of the accident, according to those who have visited him, seems to be in good spirits and is recovering as rapidly as can be expected.

One of Two Men, Sitting on Whiskey Kegs, Arrested

Investigating the cause of two men sitting along the highway near Bloomington, on what appeared to be kegs covered with burlap, Sheriff W. D. Casteel and his deputies arrested Marshall Crowe, Lonaconing, on the charge of possession of liquor for the purpose of sale, as they were returning home from the investigation into the cause of the death of James Powers. The other man escaped.

At the approach of the automobile the two men fled down the Western Maryland railroad tracks, nearby, and it was only after a half-mile chase that Richard West, deputy, overtook one of the men. Beneath the burlay two 10-gallon kegs of whiskey were found.

Crowe was brought to Oakland where he was committed to jail until he is given a hearing.

People Responding to Red Cross Roll Call

A favorable response has been made thus far to the Annual Red Cross Roll Call according to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman, and that the goal of $500 for this county would be raised in a short time was her expressed desire.

Community chairmen have been busy since the beginning of the roll call on Armistice Day but to date only partial reports have come into the office of the county chairman. The names of all contributors will be published in The Republican at the close of the drive.

Mrs. Julia Yocum, Vindex, has been added to the names of community chairmen. She will have charge of the section around Vindex.

Ernest Hauser Wins Trip To Chicago

Ernest Hauser, Friendsville High school youth, has been chosen as one of the six Maryland Farm Boy champions, and wins a trip to the National Boys' and Girls' club congress at Chicago, Ill., November 29 to December 6. The trip is being given by the Baltiomre and Ohio railroad, and all expenses of the trip are paid by them.

John H. Carter, county agent, was chosen to represent the Maryland Extension service and to accompany the boys. L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent for the B. and O., will also attend the congress.

The trip was won for efficiency in 4-H club work. A story of the winner's project, which in this case happened to be potatoes, was sent in to the State Boys' club leader, who named the six Maryland boys.

Lesson for November 17

LIVING WITH PEOPLE OF OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:9-15, 30-35; Gal. 3:28, 29; Ruth 1:1-18; John 4:5-10; Rom. 1:14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends of Many Races

JUNIOR TOPIC—Friends of Many Races

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Treating Those of Other Races as We Should Like to Be Treated.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Contribution of Various Racial Groups to a Common National Life.

I. God Is No Respecter of Persons (Acts 10:34).

The approach to the heart of this lesson is through the Golden Text. Paul declared on Mars' hill, "God hath made of one blood all the nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26).

II. Examples of Racial Harmony.

1. Ruth, the Moabitess (Ruth 1:1-18).

In the days of the Judges, because of famine in Judah, Elimelech and his family went to Moab to find subsistence. While there his two sons married Moabitish women. Not long after this, the father and the sons died, leaving three desolate widows. Learning that the famine was over, Naomi decided to return. Ruth insisted upon going with her and her determination was expressed in such wonderful words that they have become classic (Ruth 1:16, 17). She renounced her country and people in order to be identified with the people of the living God. In this we have an example of two very dissimilar people united as one.

2. The woman of Samaria (John 4:5-10).

This woman was not only of a despised people, but of a disreputable character. But when the light of God entered her soul she became a witness to her people of Christ, and the leader of a movement which prepared the way for the revival at the hands of Philip a few years later. That which removed the barrier from between the Jews and Samaritans was the personal knowledge of Jesus Christ.

3. Cornelius, the Roman soldier (Acts 10:9-15, 30-35).

The Jews hated the Romans because they were under bondage to them. Peter, the head of the apostolic group, was a Jew of strong prejudice. The time had now come for the removal of the wall of partition between the Jews and the Gentiles. To do this God chose a high-grade and influential Gentile to make the transition. Cornelius was a devout man, though not saved.

In removing this wall, two visions were given:

(1) To Cornelius (Acts 10:3, 8). While engaged in prayer, an angel from God announced to him that his prayers and alms had come before God as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter, who would tell him what to do.

(2) To Peter (Acts 10:9-16). In his vision Peter saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals, let down from heaven and heard the command, "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." Against Peter's protest God said, "What God hath cleansed, call thou not common." This vessel let down from heaven and taken back again indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high. The spirit of God bade Peter go with the messengers of Cornelius. Upon arrival, Peter explained to Cornelius how God had removed his Jewish prejudice and then, being assured that they were ready to hear the message from God, he preached Jesus Christ to them. In his sermon to Cornelius, he set forth:

a. The basis of salvation—the death of Christ.

b. The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth on Him.

c. The method of appropriation of this salvation—faith in Christ.

In endorsement of this message by Peter, the Holy Spirit was poured out and as the gospel now was reaching beyond the Jews, there was a new Pentecost.

III. All One in Christ Jesus (Gal. 3:28, 29).

In Christ all class and racial distinctions are lost. Let those who would hasten the period of racial good will bestir themselves to the task of preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ—the only means of uniting the various branches of the race.

Not a Highbrow Preacher

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

MOLLY AYRES stood before her bureau contemplating herself in a mirror that sent back an image somewhat distorted. But Molly was not shocked at what she saw. She had grown used to the imperfections of the mirror. She judiciously dabbed a very little powder on her nose.

The door opened and before she had time to leave her bureau or hide the powder Sally Hayden, her uncere-monious neighbor, flopped in upon her.

"Where you going, girlie?" she asked.

"I'm not going anywhere," said Molly, covering the powder box and putting it in the top drawer.

"Well, you're a queer kid," yawned Sally. "Drinking when you're going to stay home. Come on in my room. I'm going to do my nails—bring your things and we can do ours together."

"I'm sorry," faltered Molly. "But I'm going to chapel. It's Wednesday night, you know—"

"Lordy," was the word that escaped Sally's lips. "Excuse me, but that's not in my line."

"Well, as long as we live in a co-operative boarding house, we ought to go, it seems," faltered Molly. "It's only once a week—"

The rapid-fire clang of a gong on the first floor sounded the call for the chapel service and interrupted Sally. Molly hurried off without apologies.

Sally found one of the other boarders to join her in her manicuring session.

"It's funny about Molly," she said. "I knew she was an awful good kid and likes to go to chapel, but the funny thing is that she was drinking for it. Maybe she's vamping the parson—"

"That's just what she is doing," replied her companion, "only a country girl like Molly doesn't know how to vamp. Haven't you heard? It's a scream."

Sally said she hadn't heard and her companion continued.

"Well, there's a young fellow from the theological seminary—Jim Granger's his name—that has been preachin' here Wednesday nights. Of course Molly went. The girls say he is real swell looking, but, gosh, what's the use of making eyes at him!

"Well, anyway, Molly went and sat right up front and this fellow, he looked at her all the time and couldn't keep his eyes off her. Of course Molly goes every Wednesday, but now she sits in the back. That's just the sort of thing that a girl like Molly would do. But the fellow seems to keep his eye on her just the same."

"Pooh," scoffed the other. "Of course a highbrow like that wouldn't want to marry a poor homeless kid like Molly. But those students are human same's any other fellows. He might want to have a good time with her. Molly's kind o' pretty—"

As the weeks passed, Molly's eyes became brighter and the smile on her face was more and more well established. Then Sally dropped the bomb that changed all this.

"Say, le'me tell you, Molly, before it's too late," she said. "You're awful interested in this young preacher. I know that a highbrow fellow like that, good looking and all, isn't going to marry a little girl like you, even if she is sweet and good and pretty. I'm telling you now so's maybe you won't break your heart over him later on."

These words of wisdom apparently had their effect on Molly. At any rate, when some of the girls planned to go to a certain well-known and historic eating place, famous for its fish dinners, Molly was persuaded to joint the party.

"It's funny Molly would go chapel night," said one of the group.

Another laughed. "Not so funny. That Jim Granger isn't going to preach. Another student's been appointed."

Molly was in something of a daze as she entered the historic old restaurant with the group of six of her companions, and walked as one in a dream as they seated themselves at a table by a window.

The ringleader beamed, laughed and then passed a few words with the waiter. "Did you lamp our friend?" she asked when the waiter, beaming also, had hurried kitchenward. "He's the swell guy that preached at prayer meeting. He's working his way, he says, and that's how he happens to be here. I guess we'll get extra big portions." Then she looked quickly over at Molly. "Say, he's the one that took such a shine to you, isn't he?"

But Molly merely blushed happily and let her eyes drop by way of answer. For it had already crossed her mind that the gulf that Sally had pictured between them might not be so impossible of crossing after all.

The next evening and the next and the next Jim Granger called at the boarding house after his work as waiter was over. A week later Sally dropped in for a visit. Molly met her in the hall, tried to say something and ended by putting her arms around the other girl's neck and shedding two or three happy tears.

"Jim and I are engaged," she said. "Jim Granger—my divinity student. He isn't a highbrow and he isn't stuck up or anything. He's just every-day Jim and earns money as a waiter. So of course he couldn't hate me very much just because I am only a soda fountain girl."

FIFTY-FOUR LICENSES ARE ISSUED IN 2 WEEKS

Unusual Mid-Week Rush Brings Total For Month To 110

An unusual mid-week rush for marriage licenses brought the total number issued for the month of October to within five of the total number issued for the same month last year, which was 115, according to the records in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland.

The total for the first ten months of 1929 is 1056, which is 35 more than for the same period of last year, and 37 less than for the period from January 1, 1927 to November 1 of the same year, which was the largest year for marriages in Oakland and the county on record.

Fifty-four licenses were issued during the past 2 weeks ending Monday at noon, with Wednesday having the largest percentage for any one day. Saturday, usually the busiest day at the clerks office, had only six. Seven licenses granted were marked "don't publish," while five applicants were refused the coveted papers.

WORLD'S LARGEST TIRE TO BE DISPLAYED HERE

Goodyear Tire, 12 Feet in Diameter, Can Be Seen Tomorrow

If someone were to say that the world will have use for a standard pneumatic tire towering 12 feet and measuring four feet in width you would be apt to think that someone's imagination had gone astray.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has just built such a tire, and it can be seen at Kerins Brothers garage, Oakland, tomorrow.

And the someone we have reference to is none other than a prominent airplane manufacturer. Nothing funny about it, he assured Goodyear officials, the day should come when larger airplanes will need a tire of this size.

So Goodyear is pioneering again. The largest tire in the world has just come out of the factory after being in the process of construction for three months. It is a standard tire in every way with the exception of size, an All-Weather tread balloon.

The tread and wheel weigh 600 pounds each and the inner tube tips the scales at a neat 125 pounds.

The tire built under the combined supervision of the Chemical, Tire Design and Research Divisions of Goodyear's Development Department, is mounted on a rim four feet in diameter, 30 inches wide.

It might be said that Sousa's band and all of the other wind instrument blowers in the country would be needed to "blow up" this tire in the length of an ordinary concert.

Seriously, 45 minutes are required to inflate the tire to a pressure of only three pounds.

The fabric weighs a mere 150 pounds. For comparison it might be well to mention than an ordinary Ford tire weighs 15 pounds with tread about seven and one-half pounds. Thus, the figures show that this giant of the future has about 80 Ford tires in its carcass.

Milady could be proud to own a diamond ring with a jewel the size of one of the non-skid diamonds which outline the huge tire. Lengthwise, from tip to tip is 16 inches and the width is 10 inches. Quite a few "carats" there!

It boasts of a load-carrying capacity of between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds.

Goodyear will display this giant of pneumatics throughout the country.

It has been mounted as a trailor behind a bus of special design. The bus is built on a two-ton chassis with three rows of seats in line with the great wheel. The top of the tire reaches twice as high as the bus, and is connected to the vehicle by two shafts. The bus and tire together have a "wing spread" of 30 feet.

Goodyear engineers were restricted in their plans for making the world's largest tire by the fact that some bridges thru which the tire will pass on its national tour have a clearance of but 12 feet, six inches.

Success Secrets

1. When meat comes from the market remove it from the paper and place it in the ice box on a china or enamel plate.

2. Do not put meat into water to wash it. Wipe with a clean, damp cloth before cooking.

3. Do not pierce the meat with a fork while it is cooking; this lets out the juices.

4. To draw out the flavor of meats, as for broths, start the cooking in cold water, bringing slowly to the boiling point.

5. To keep flavor and juice in meat expose it to extreme heat first, then reduce the temperature and cook more slowly.

6. Cook the tough and cheaper cuts of meat very slowly and for a long time.

7. Baste meat and poultry often while roasting.

8. Learn to make appetizing, nourishing dishes of the cheaper cuts of meat.

9. Use the internal organs of beef and lamb—liver, kidneys, heart and sweetbreads—to increase the vitamins in your diet.

10. Serve Yorkshire pudding with roast beef, dumplings with stew and fried apples with pork to give your meat course "the perfect touch."

Rolled Flank Steak

Select a flank steak weighing about 1½ pounds. Wipe meat with a clean damp cloth. Sprinkle with salt. Spread poultry stuffing on meat. Roll like a jelly roll and fasten ends together with skewers. Put in a baking dish and add 1 cup boiling water. Brown in a very hot oven 15 minutes. Cover and cook slowly in a moderate oven 1 hour or until meat is tender. Remove to a hot platter. Thicken the stock with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with cold water. Slice meat and serve with the gravy.

THE LEGION'S PROGRAM

The American Legion is winning the support of many good citizens who believed that its stand for adjusted compensation was the primary objective of the veterans' organization. Relief of disabled soldiers, Americanism, community betterment and other altruistic Legion enterprises were overlooked by thousands whose opposition to the compensation measure was so great as to forget the other items on the Legion program held of equal importance by the Legionaires themselves.

With compensation out of the way, the veterans' organization has concentrated its activities on world peace measures, community betterment enterprises, Americanism and naturalization projects, in addition to its determined stand for the relief of disabled fighters and the raising of a national endowment fund to care for the orphans of those who fell in the world conflict.

The American Legion is demonstrating that it proposed to live up to the preamble of its constitution, which sates, "For God and country, we associate ourselves together."

To this end the Legion asks Congress to enact a universal service act, drafting the nation's resources of labor, capital and industry, as well as fighting men, in the next war. It is supporting the program for an adequate national defense. Through these measures the Legion believes the possibilities of bloody war will be lessened for the future. In addition, American veterans are working toward world peace through an international organization, composed of service men of associated powers.

Better and more efficient service on the part of the United States Veterans' Bureau is sought by the Legion, which stated in one of its conventions that it would be satisfied with nothing less than "super-service" for the disabled. The Legion obtained the passage of the Reed-Johnson bill which carried benefits for 100,000 veterans and their dependents and codified and liberalized the laws affecting the disabled, a measure called the greatest piece of constructive legislation since the creation of the Veterans' Bureau.

Legion members apparently are vigorous young men looking for work. The nation has many large tasks for them. Let them carry on in the same spirit of the Argonne and the patriotic citizens of the United States will back them to the limit.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ARMISTICE DAY SPEECH

The address of President Hoover Monday night upon the occasion of the eleventh anniversary of the ending of the World War was a statesmanlike blending of the idealistic with the practical. Careful reading of the address will convince any American that the President who has "confident hope" for the outcome of the London conference of naval arm limitation has taken full measure of the obstacles to be shoved from the path of peace.

The president once more reiterates that the policy of his administration so far as it relates to world peace, will be to cultivate the friendship and good will of all nations through personal, political and business contacts and relationships.

He indicates that more direct diplomacy, such as his trip to South America and the visit of Ramsay MacDonald to these shores, may be expected during his tenure of office. He speaks of a far-flung organization of the State Department, amounting to a world-wide front line American agency for peace. It is a program in which every American who desires to see peace made lasting may join.

A simple formula of this country's attitude toward reduction of arms is voiced by the President:

Proper defense requires military strength relative to that of other nations. We will reduce our navy strength in proportion to any other. Having said that it only remains for the others to say how low they will go. It cannot be too low for us.

It is a courageous utterance for a president to make. But this eleventh anniversary of the ending of the World War finds public opinion marshaled behind him in that declaration more solidly than it has been at any time since the ending of hostilities. Americans have had enough of cynicism. They are now turning, naturally, once more toward the idealism of Woodrow Wilson. Perhaps President Herbert Hoover will be more successful in leading this great wave of idealistic sentiment.

DIED

HARVEY BOWSER.

Harvey Bowser departed this life October 19, his body being found in his miner's shanty at Table Rock at five o'clock that afternoon. He was aged 63 years, 2 months and 8 days. He was the father of fourteen children, eight sons and six daughters. Two sons died in infancy, and one daughter, Iva, died at the age of 16. His wife preceded him to the grave more than a year ago.

Funeral services were conducted in the Sand Flat tabernacle, Rev. J. C. Skipper officiating. Interment was made in Flatwoods cemetery. The pallbearers were his six sons: H. A. Bowser, Mellenry; W. G., Belpre, O.; Emerson, Utica, N. Y.; John, Hunter and Eugene, Crellin.

The family wishes to express their sincere thanks to those who assisted following his death and to those who donated the use of their cars at the funeral.

WILLIAM CANTY

William Canty, 84 years old, a former resident of Oakland, died Saturday night at Allegany Hospital, in Cumberland, after an illness of a few days. Following the death of his wife in Oakland three or four years ago, Mr. Canty, with his daughter, Miss Mary Canty, removed to Cumberland, where he resided until his recent death. He was for many years a trusted employe of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company and was retired on account of age. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Sluss and Miss Mary Canty, of Cumberland, and by two sons, Messrs. M. P. Canty and M. J. Canty, Second street, Oakland, and by a large circle of friends here as well as in other communities. Funeral services were conducted at a high requiem mass in St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. Wm. J. McVeigh, being the priest in charge. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

SAMUEL BAKER.

Samuel Baker, son of Solomon and Elizabeth (Custer) Baker, was born about four miles south of Grantsville, Md., May 6, 1853, and passed from earthly scenes near Uniontown, Pa., November 7, 1929, at the age of 76 years, 6 months and one day. He was united in marriage July 4, 1875, with Mary Miller, a daughter of the late Henry and Lydia (Eolk) Miller. To this union were born ten children—five sons and five daughters. His wife died April 17, 1920. Three daughters preceded their parents in early childhood, and one son, Mahlon, who was married to Fannie Brenneman, of near Bittinger, Md., died at his home near Bridgeville, Del., some years ago. There are surviving four sons and two daughters: Alvin O. Baker, Solomon H. Baker and H. G. Baker, of near Bridgeville, Del., and Christian H. Baker, Uniontown, Pa.; Mrs. H. E. Wagner, Masontown, Pa., and Mrs. J P. Miller, of Ohio. Sixteen grandchildren also survive. Of his parental family, two brothers survive: Daniel Baker and John Baker, both of Grantsville, and one sister, Mrs. Daniel W. Maust, formerly of Springs, Pa., at present of Masontown, Pa. One sister and one brother preceded him in death: Mrs. Louis Durst, of Jennings, and Simon Baker, of near Mountain Lake Park.

The deceased united with the Church of the Brethren on October 5, 1878, in which communion he remained in membership until the time of his departure.

The deceased was born on the Baker Homestead, later occupied and yet owned by John Baker, and was a farmer with large and varied interests during the greater part of his lifetime, and was also interested in coal lands and coal operations near Boynton and afterwards at Masontown, Pa., later in life.

The writer recalls him first as a farmer on the farm now owned by Russell Hollada, south of Grantsville; later, after the death of his father-in-law, the late Henry Miller, he bought and occupied part of that farm located about three miles west of Grantsville, which, some time in the nineties he sold to the late Mr. Shaw, former manager of the well-known Stone House farm, and from that time his activities were transferred to Pennsylvania.

Mr. Baker was a man of considerable ability of achievement in his chosen vocations, a man of results rather than of words; of an unassuming nature, who, when his own business activities were under discussion usually spoke of them in a uniquely disparaging and discounting manner.

The funeral was held at the Church of the Brethren, Salisbury, Penna., Sunday, November 10, at 3 o'clock, the pastor of the congregation, George Detwiler, officiating. Interment took place in the cemetery at Salisbury. The neighborly interest of the many acquaintances was attested by the large attendance at the funeral, the commodious church auditorium having been filled beyond its seating capacity.

MARY ELIZA WHITE SIMS

Mary Eliza White Sims was born July 28, 1880, and died November 7, 1929, at her home near Mt. Lake Park. She was aged 49 years, 3 months and 9 days. On June 4, 1905, she married W. E. Sims, and to this union two sons were born, one of whom preceded her to the grave.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Gilbert Randall Sims, her father John Murray White, four brothers, B. F. and W. J. White, Gormania, W. Va.; C. S. White, Mountain Lake Park; John W. White, Hutton; three sisters, Hester A. Paugh and Stella J. Lower, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. E. E. Walters, Deer Park; one half-sister, Huldah E. White, near Mt. Lake. She was a members of the M. E. Church.

Funeral services were conducted in the U. B. Church, Pleasant Valley, Rev. S. A. Jessee, Loch Lynn, officiating. Interment was made in the cemetery nearby.

Engineers Continue Activity In Canaan Valley Region.

Recent activity in the Canaan Valley, near Davis, Tucker county, West Va., of engineers and other agents of the West Penn Power Corporation indicate that reported plans for the construction of a great hydro-electric plant in the valley are nearing completion.

Official reports of power company officials have never been made public in this locality but it has been common knowledge for some months that surveys for the project were under way, and recently it is reported, agents for the company have been engaged in the purchase of land in the territory which would be effected by the construction of the proposed plant.

It is said that plans for the project call for a great lake several miles in circumference, and generating equipment capable of generating a great daily output of current served by the West Penn and subsidiary corporations. The Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company, which now serves the local territory, is said to be a subsidiary of the West Penn which in turn is a branch of the American Water Works and Electric Company.

State road engineers also have been working in the valley for some time, it is said, making a survey for a state highway from Davis to Harbin. It is reported that this survey is being made at the present time because of the plans of the power corporation which might effect the construction of a state road through the valley.

HUNTERS' REQUESTS FOR LICENSES EXCEED RECORD

Abundance of Game is Given as Reason for Large Demand

The State Game Department this year is experiencing the greatest demand for hunting licenses in its history, Harold S. Kolmer, secretary of the department, said yesterday. The season for rabbits and other small game opened Monday.

Abundance of game is credited for the unprecedented demand for the three types of licenses issued—non-resident, State-wide and county resident.

Merely Supplies Blanks

The licenses are not issued by the department, Mr. Kolmer explained, but by the clerks of the county courts, who issue only the county resident licenses, and the Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in the city, who issues the Statewide and non-resident licenses. To these the department supplies the applicant blanks and number tags. Garrett county applicants have numbered far more than 500 according to E. Z. Tower, clerk.

Last year, Mr. Kolmer said, 56,254 county resident, 10,512 State-wide, and 1,800 non-resident licenses were sold. The prices, respectively, are $1.25, $5.25, and $15.50.

This year 62,150 county resident, 12,250 State-wide and 3,200 non-resident license blanks so far have been distributed by the department.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

Scoop Begs Off This Week.

Journalism conferences, trips to Pittsburgh at early hours and returning at earlier hours, Armistice Day and what not, seemed to have had their effect on Scoop this week, for here it is Thursday morning and he hasn't written a thing. It's almost press time, too.

Well, anyway, the bad light this week has caused all the pictures taken by Colonel Bell to be no good whatever, and even if Scoop would write anything, there would be no photographs to accompany it.

A district get-together meeting was held at Friendsville last Friday evening at which there were many members of the Oakland and Friendsville lodges present. Several highly interesting addresses were made and delicious refreshments were served by the Friendsville organization.

Oakland High School News

Armistice Day was celebrated by Oakland High School in a fitting manner. Mr. Delbert Davis gave to the students an interesting talk, which was followed by patriotic songs. Following the program the pupils of the school joined in the parade and took part in the exercises at the Maryland Theatre.

Among those who witnessed the game between the University of West Virginia and Detroit and that famous star in action, Lloyd Brazil, at Morgantown Saturday, were Mr. Foster Speicher, Mr. Walter Smith, Mr. Arthur Humbertson and the members of the O. H. S. soccer squad.

State Supervisor Klingaman visited the school on Tuesday. He directed a conference of the English teachers of the county that day. On Wednesday the history teachers attended a similar conference held at Accident.

Teachers who were away over the week-end were Miss Kochenderfer, at Elkins; Miss Broadwater, at Cumberland.

"God Moves In a Mysterious Way His Wonders to Perform."

To the Editor of The Republican.

Notwithstanding the efforts of the so-called atheists to induce President Hoover to refrain from issuing the usual time-honored Thanksgiving Proclamation; notwithstanding devastating floods, earthquakes and multitudinous catastrophies, thinking men must today ask themselves the question, "What or Who is directing the wondrous strides of the age?"

As an example:

A few years ago John Hays Hammond aroused the world's wonder by putting a yacth through some simple maneuvers without visible human contact and by making a mechanical dog, with selenium eyes follow a lighted lantern.

The other day, in Chicago, a radio wizard operated automobiles and street cars and controlled the machinery in a bakery in all the processes of making bread by radio control. He guided a miniature ship, operated its searchlight, fired its toy cannon, blew its foghorn and turned various lights on and off at will. He took a standard railroad train, started it from a standing position, guided and stopped it, all by radio impulses.

We shall see far greater wonders than these. The age-old query of scientists of why the same sunshine, air, dew and soil will produce flowers of the rarest beauty and perfume and at the same time instill into the deadly nightshade and other varieties of flowers death-dealing poisons, can only be answered by the assumption that God creates and God controls. We may differ as to our conception, but sane men must agree that--

"There is a far-off Divine event
To which all creation moves."

GARRETT COUNTY CHAMPS DEFEATED BY FROSTBURG

Grantsville Soccerites Lose to Beall High, 13 to 2

A barrage of field goals in the final period after having been held to a single field goal in the first 50 minutes of play, enabled Beall High school, Frostburg, Allegany county soccer champions, to swamp Grantsville High school, champions for Garrett, in the initial game of the Maryland State championship tournament played yesterday afternoon. The score was 13 to 2.

The game marked the ninth time in as many years than an Allegany county representative had turned back the Garrett countians. From the showing made by Grantsville in the first period it appeared as though Beall was going to have its hands full but the local champions cracked wide open in the final stanza.

Billy Bevans, Grantsville goalie, gave a neat exhibition of stopping the enemy by tossing out four successive shots, two of which he handled while on his knees. The only time during the final half that Grantsville showed much punch was when Paul Livengood headed his team's lone goal through the posts. A 40-yard free kick, centered by J. Blocher, set the stage for the Garrett county tally.

CALLS ON RED CROSS INCREASE; RESPONSE TO ROLL CALL URGED

Society's Activities Reach Millions Each Year—Chairman Payne Asks Generous Support in Membership.

Disaster relief work, service to disabled veterans and their families, public health work and its many other activities caused expenditures of $11,064,000 by the American Red Cross for the year ended June 30, 1929, according to the annual report of the organization.

This work by the Red Cross is supported by the annual Roll Call for members, which is held from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 28.

Directing attention to the heavy expenditures by the Red Cross during the past year, and to the fact that the organization was called upon for assistance in 120 disasters in the United States and its insular possessions, Judge John Bartoa Payne, the chairman, said:

"The Red Cross is a volunteer society, supported by its membership, and belongs to all of the citizens. While it is a semi-governmental agency in that the President of the United States is its president, and one third of its governing board are representatives of Government departments, yet it receives no financial support from the Government.

"Funds for our work for war veterans and their families, for carrying on disaster relief, for our varied health activities, the life saving and first aid work and our many other activities, all are derived from the membership fee. The public is asked only once each year—at the Annual Roll Call—to join in this support of the Red Cross."

The Red Cross expended an average of $936,000 per year in the past seven years, in disaster relief work, from its own treasury, statements show. The work for world war veterans also has caused heavy expenditures.

HEALTH PRESERVATION IS AIM OF RED CROSS

Society Employs Rural Public Health Nurses—Teaches First Aid and Life Saving.

A comprehensive, nation-wide program to prevent illness, and to save lives through proper nursing care and advanced methods of life saving and first aid is fostered by the American Red Cross.

The organization is the largest employer of rural public health nurses in the United States, through its Chapters. The policy of the Red Cross is to encourage its Chapters to extend the public health nursing service, where leadership in this field is not taken by some other agency in the community.

The Red Cross health and life saving campaign embraces the following preservation of health through skilled nursing care; prevention of loss of life in accidents; prevention of illness through cleanliness in the home and knowledge of methods of home care of the sick and raising the standard of health and physical efficiency through proper nutrition.

During the year just closed, more than 42,000 certificates have been issued in the Red Cross course in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, and since the courses were inaugurated more than 500,000 persons have been taught; 119,000 children were instructed in proper eating through the Nutrition course; 46,808 individuals passed the severe Red Cross tests in Life Saving and 52,596 persons passed the rigid examinations in the First Aid Course.

This work is supported from funds obtained in the annual Roll Call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 28.

SIX MILLION CHILDREN IN JUNIOR RED CROSS

The year 1929 marks the tenth anniversary of the founding of the American Junior Red Cross. There are now Junior Red Cross societies in forty-one nations, all pledged in the common cause of service to their fellows.

Membership in the American Junior Red Cross in the United States and insular possessions is 6,878,000, and is largely through grade and high schools and private schools. The organization is governed by the boys and girls. One of its chief features is conduct of international correspondence with schools of other nations, through exchange of albums and small gifts. The American Juniors sent 85,000 Christmas boxes of small gifts to children of many nations last year.

The American Junior Red Cross gained 319,171 in membership last year.

Fifty-one nations belong to the League of Red Cross Societies, and are prepared to carry on health, disaster relief and life saving programs all around the world.

The Girl With the Ukulele

By BRUCE F. RICHARDS

(Copyright.)

BILLY GREEN was rather inclined to be out of sorts. He had just made a place for himself in the social circles of the town where his firm had sent him, when he received orders to hand the office over to his successor and to go on himself to Clarkville to organize and start a branch in that lively little city.

Billy didn't know a single soul in Clarkville, and while he had no doubt that he would make friends and business acquaintances in time—that didn't help him on the first lovely Sunday afternoon that he found himself at leisure.

Well, at least he could take his classy little roadster and drive out to the lake which offered a delightful spot nearby for those who wished to enjoy an afternoon close to nature.

Following a woody road, he drove slowly on down to the edge of the lovely sheet of water which glimmered through the trees. The end of the trail found him on a little bluff pleasantly sheltered, although there were camps up and down the shore, and happy children playing and wading on the sandy beach.

Billy pulled a magazine out of the pocket on the door, but before he had opened it his ears caught a quaintly melodious sound, and craning his neck, he saw an extremely pretty girl swinging along the pathway, as though she were the only person anywhere around.

She was fair and her hair of the bright auburn tints Billy particularly admired. Her features were regular and her form shapely. There was no doubt about this, for she was wearing a green bathing suit. Over that was a colorful cretonne coat which floated wide open in the breeze. Her little feet were covered with low, white canvas shoes, and her stockings rolled down to the top of them.

She was strumming a ukulele, occasionally breaking into a low snatch of song as she approached. Billy might have been a thousand miles away for all the notice she took of him, but in spite of that his heart was going pit-a-pat, rub-a-dub, and he was wondering who she was and how he could make her acquaintance.

By this time she had passed his parking place, and he noticed that under her arm was tucked a large towel.

The watcher in the car followed the girl with the ukulele with his eyes, noticing that she went into a cottage just beyond. He decided to await developments. Presently two girls came forth from the cottage all ready for a plunge into the lake. Billy wondered how he could introduce himself and make a favorable impression.

Billy Green's philosophy in life was that if you want to do anything, the course to pursue is to stop, make a plan, and then put that plan into action. That was just what he did now.

He made up his mind to wait until the girls came back from their swim, and then while they were inside of the cottage, to go over, rap at the door and ask to borrow a pail in which he could carry water from the lake to his radiator. He knew this was a shameless subterfuge as he had filled the radiator that very morning, but he wanted to meet the girl with the ukulele.

The girls stayed in the water a long time. Billy kept track of the green-clad figure as it swam about gracefully, or dived from the raft.

At last he saw the girls come up from the beach and run dripping to the cottage. Discretion caused him to wait a few moments.

Before long he heard the strum of the ukulele and reasoned that his lovely mermaid was ready for callers. He hoped—yes, he prayed, that she would be the one to open the door! But she wasn't for when that door opened he found a motherly looking, white-haired woman eyeing him inquiringly.

Although Billy always carried his courage right with him, he found himself stammering and apologizing profusely for his intrusion.

"I'm a stranger around here," he explained, "so I don't know where the nearest service station is. I have just come to Clarkville and this is my first visit to your lovely lake."

He handed her a neat business card which read, "William F. Green, Superintendent Big Chief Oil company."

The lady looked up quickly.

"You don't happen to be Billy Green from Stoneham, do you?" she inquired eagerly.

"The very same," laughed Billy, "but—you have the advantage of me."

"Of course," she responded. "The secretary of the Big Chief Oil company happens to be a brother of mine, and knowing that I was summering here, he wrote and asked me to invite you out to the cottage, as you would doubtless be lonely in Clarkville. He thought you might like to meet my daughter Barbara and her friends. Sally Eldred is here with her ukulele. She and Barbara have just been for a swim. Do come in and meet them, as I assure you any friend of my brother's is always welcome."

Two minutes later Billy found himself being formally introduced to Barbara Matthews and Sally Eldred. Sally still had the ukulele under her arm, and Billy's heart sang with joy.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF STATE WARNS AUTOISTS

Garage Doors Should Be Kept Open While Engine Is Running

"The occurrence of two deaths in Baltimore City last week, from carbon monoxide poisoning, both of them in closed garages, serves as a tragic warning," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said, "of the danger that is always present, from this deadly poisonous gas, when the engine of a machine is kept running in a closed space.

"Carbon monoxide gas is always present in the exhaust from motor vehicles—trucks, delivery wagons, automobiles, farm machinery. The gas is colorless. It has no odor. It kills without warning. Tests have shown that in three minutes the exhaust fumes from a running motor will make the air of a small closed garage deadly. The gas combines three hundred times more quickly with the red corpuscles of the blood than oxygen does. That is why it is so deadly. It shuts out the needed oxygen from the blood and kills by asphyxiation.

"The only way by which the danger from this death dealing gas can be avoided is by having plenty of fresh air in circulation in sheds or garages where motor cars or trucks are housed or are gotten ready for use. No matter how cold the weather, the windows and doors of garages should be kept open while you are warming up your engine. Better still, shove the machine outside before you start the engine.

"Never tinker at your truck or car in a tightly closed garage. When you bring the machine indoors after using it, always keep the doors of the garage wide open, as long as the engine is running.

"Another source of danger that increases at this season, comes from the car that is kept tightly closed and into which a leaky joint brings a gradual seepage of carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust. Even very minute quantities of the gas will cause drowsiness, headache, dizziness or nausea. As a precaution against this danger, always keep the window near the driver open far enough to insure a constant circulation of air from the outside."

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Claud A. Martin vs. Alberta A. Martin.
No. 2933 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That on the 5th day of June, 1912, he was married by the Rev. Frank Roberts in Mineral County, West Virginia, to Alberta A. Martin, the defendant, with whom he resided, for the most part in said Mineral County, West Virginia, until the 13th day of September, 1926; that ever since their said marriage your orator has behaved himself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate husband toward the said Alberta A. Martin; that there were no children born of said marriage; that for a long time prior to said 13th day of September, 1926, said defendant treated your orator in a cruel and harsh manner, was threatening and abusive in her conduct towards your orator and at times threatened to take his life so that he was in constant fear of bodily harm and injury from said defendant; that for the space of about one year before said date your orator and the said defendant, because of her said conduct, occupied separate rooms and did not live together as man and wife; that although your orator endeavored to continue living with said defendant her conduct finally became and was so intolerable and your orator's fear for his own safety so great that he was compelled on the 13th day of September, 1926, to leave the house which your orator and said defendant occupied as a residence in Keyser, West Virginia, and to take up his residence elsewhere; that your orator has made every possible and proper effort to continue living with said defendant but found it impossible to continue said relationship; that the conduct on the part of the said defendant amounted to abandonment and to an entire deprival of your orator of his marital rights; that said abandonment and separation has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that your orator has been a resident of Garrett County, Maryland, continuously for more than two years, but the said defendant resides in Keyser, Mineral County, West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon this 6th day of November, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of November, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of December, 1929, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

Good Dairy Cows Multiply Profits

A quart of milk a day for each individual has become more or less a slogan, but if we were using that amount of milk, asserts H. C. Barker, Dairy Specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, it would require 44 million cows to supply our present needs, instead of the 22 million we now have in the United States.

It is possible, according to Mr. Barker, to meet this increased demand, however, with fewer cows by culling out the low producers, breeding the better ones to high-class bulls and giving the good cows more feed and a better balanced ration. He states that in a recent study of more than 100,000 records of cows in Herd Improvement Associations in the United States, the cows that produced only 100 pounds of butterfat a year made an income above the cost of feed of $14 per cow. The 200-pound cows had an income above feed costs of $55. Continuing on up to cows that produced 500 pounds of butterfat it was fouund that the average income above feed costs for cows in that class was $215 per animal.

As the butterfat produced per cow increased five times, that is, from 100 to 500 pounds of fat, the income increased from $14 to $215, or more than fourteen times. It is true that the 500-pound cow ate $108 worth of feed, compared with $46 worth consumed by the 100-pound cow, but with twice as much cost for feed, the 500-pound cow made fourteen times as much income.

Which would you rather do, asks Mr. Barker, milk, feed and care for fourteen cows to make a profit of $215, or milk, feed, and care for one cow to make the same profit?

Telephones Increases in Numbers

With 8,126 telephones added to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City's system since January 1, Maryland is now served by 206,555 telephones. In ten years Maryland's telephones have increased 67 per cent. Graham K. McCorkle, general manager of the company, is the authority for the statement that on November 1, 1919, there were only 123,896 telephones in the State.

This rapid increase in telephones is not confined to any particular section, for telephones are being added to the sytsem in every section of the State. To take care of this growth the company is constantly providing additional facilities to meet the requirements of the public for telephone service. Facilities for additional telephones placed in the past year or now in course of construction will involve expenditures of more than $4,200,000, Mr. McCorkle states.

MT. LAKE PARK.

We have nothing but commiseration for those compelled to leave the Park in the late summer. The fall months this year have been most delightful. While the brilliant foliage of late September and early October has disappeared yet the outlines of the mountains, hung with a transparent curtain of purplish haze, present an entirely different aspect, but, perhaps in a lesser degree, equally inviting. When one drives over the hill tops there is unfolded, as far as the eye can reach, vast stretches of scenic beauty unsurpassed anywhere.

Boyish pranks should not be taken too seriously unless they become annoying or destructive. Lately much complaint is heard of parties of boys and youths prowling about the Park at night, playing the part of "peeping toms" or causing fright and annoyance by rapping on windows or shaking doors of occupied dwellings. These practices are dangerous. Just the other evening a party of ladies were enjoying a game of bridge in one of the cottages when they were annoyed and badly frightened by what subsequently proved to be a crowd of boys prowling about the house. The hostess secured a revolver and fired —this time into the air. Perhaps another would not be so careful.

Now, generally speaking, we are fond of boys (and girls) but we want to sound a note of warning to those who chase over the Park at night annoying residents. It is not an exhibition of the conduct of gentlemen nor does it make for good reputation and character. It would be a source of regret, not only to the friends of the boys, but to the parents as well, if some of them should be led into the commission of a serious offense.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Echard are very much pleased to learn that their son Hugh, who was so seriously injured last Friday morning while duck shooting is getting along so nicely at the hospital. The family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community, as does also the victim of the distressing accident.

The bowling alley is receiving a general repairing and a coat of white paint. It will be a big improvement and will be greatly appreciated by everyone. Will White is doing the work.

J. A. Enlow is taking advantage of the spring-like weather to cut mountain laurel for the making of his rustic and artistic outdoor furniture.

If there is any scandal, personals, or items of local interest in this community, they are being kept under cover and not broadcast so that your correspondent may come in contact with them.

A meeting between the County Commissioners and delegations representing the Kitzmiller and Gorman sections of the county on roads matters is scheduled to take place at the board office at the Court House in Oakland this morning. Each of the communities mentioned want good roads—the people of Kitzmiller desiring the highway leading into their town completed and those from the Gorman section desiring the construction of a highway from Loch Lynn through the Ryan's Glade country to intersect with the Northwestern Turnpike at Gorman. Each community has what it considers valid reasons for building its own particular road.

Mrs. E. E. Kesner has accepted a position as assistant matron at the Odd Fellows Home at Frederick and will assume her duties soon. The ladies of Loch Lynn tendered Mrs. Kesner a farewell party at the Ladies' Aid Hall on Tuesday evening.

A new gas main is being laid for the C. & A. Gas Company through Loch Lynn Heights. The one being replaced has been in use for approximately twenty years.

Rev. J. A. Jessee, United Brethren minister is holding special meetings at Underwood, near Crellin.

The women of the M. E. church will give an ice cream social in the basement of the church next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. There will be other good things to eat. Tickets will be 25 cents.

Beginning next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in the Baptist church, Loch Lynn, Rev. Dr. Fincher of Cumberland, will begin a series of evangelistic services. Dr. Fincher is one of the best speakers in the conference and should meet with the hearty support and cooperation of the people of this entire community.

To O. H. S. Supporters: —

Are athletics a benefit to a school? Yes. Why? Athletics develop a definite school spirit. They build up a strong sense of loyalty of the pupils for the pupils, and of the pupils for the school. They encourage an attitude of cooperation. Aside from these purely moral values, atheletics develop the physical side of the child. They enable the child to participate in the most healthful forms of sport.

Girls, this is for you as well as for the boys! We want to build up a basketball team worthy of the name; one which is going to bring glory to O. H. S.! This can be done only through your support. And this means you! and you! and you! So far we have $19 in the treasury. Increase this 100 per cent by Christmas!

And, boys, where are you? To date you have $7.90 in the treasury. Give us your support and double your efforts to make athletics a success.

O. H. S. ATHLETIC BOOSTERS.

The Boys' Athletic Association met on Tuesday afternoon to discuss the prospects of winter athletics.

Western Maryland Railway Gets Chaffee Road.

The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington authorized the Western Maryland Railway to acquire control of the Chaffee Railroad by lease or purchase of stock by an order issued last Saturday.

The Chaffee Railroad extends from Chaffee, West Va., to a point near Vindex, Garrett county, a distance of approximately three and one-half miles, and serves an important coal region in that section of Maryland and West Virginia.

Action of the commission resulted from a hearing on an application of the Western Maryland Railway last August, at which time no objection was made to the application.

FISHERMEN REVIVE HOPE FOR YOUGHIOGHENY RIVER

Reports Prevalent That Famous Stream Will Be Restocked

Sportsmen of Garrett county, especially those who live within reach of the Youghiogheny River, again have visions of a fishing mecca in the historic stream.

This river was once famous for the fishing it afforded the knights of the rod and reel and also famous in Maryland geography as the answer to the question often propounded in the school room: "Name the river in Maryland, the waters of which eventually find their way to the Gulf of Mexico?" It has been practically without fish life from its junction with the Casselman River at Confluence, Pa., to its headwaters in Garrett county for many years. In the upper waters of the river a bass is occasionally caught, whereas a few years ago the stream literally teemed with this species.

It has been stated that for eight months daily tests of the waters of the Youghiogheny has been made and it has been found that conditions are favorable for the sustenance and the propagation of fish.

A shipment of young fish from Federal sources were recently sent for the purpose of restocking the river, but due to a misunderstanding of orders they were missed and went on through to another destination west of Confluence.

Carter, county agent, yesterday. The meeting will in all probability be held at Accident, it was stated.

Mr. Bomberger and Mr. Trenk, at a meeting prior to the organization meeting, will make plans for a constitution and by-laws which will be submitted at the Garrett county meeting. The two specialists are also working out in detail the inspection program that can be handled in this county.

"Lefty" spends a good part of the winter months practicing bowling, and is said to have gathered together a fine team.

The four in annual bowling league of Oakland started Tuesday evening and will continue throughout the winter. Team captains have not yet chosen names but this will be done in the near future. Matches are being played on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

STATE SETS RECORD IN BUILDING OF HIGHWAYS

Total Mileage of Maryland Improved Roads Reaches 3,012

The most extensive roads building program ever undertaken during a similar period by the State Roads Commission, was finished on Friday, it was announced by Howard Bruce, a member of the Commission. In seven months since April 15, 225 miles of new roads were built in the State.

With a total expenditure of $8,284,865, the commission completed almost double the amount of work heretofore accomplished in one year. The additions to the State roads system increased the total mileage to 3,012.9 miles. More than 140 miles of shoulders to widen existing roads also were built.

$11,000,600 Expended

New construction and maintenance costs for the entire system make a total of more than $14,000,000 expended by the commission this year.

Of the new roads, 167.7 miles of concrete were laid at a cost of $1,433,000; 67 miles of gravel roads at a cost of $498,000, and shoulders at a cost of $1,617,000.

During the same period thirty-nine bridges were started or completed at a cost of $1,046,486. Among these were seven grade-crossing elimination projects at Hyattsville, Elkton, Glenburnie, Altamont, Salisbury, Germania and Vinegar Hill. Twelve additional projects for grade-crossing elimination would have been undertaken if litigation involving property rights had been concluded, it was said.

Boulevard Widened.

Among the more important projects undertaken by the commission was the widening of Washington Boulevard from twenty to forty feet. Eight and a half miles of widening, completing the project from Baltimore to Laurel, was finished this year.

The commission, consisting of G. Clinton Uhl, chairman; Mr. Bruce and John K. Shaw, were appointed January 15 last.

Lester Yutzy Wins "Coop-full" of Birds.

Four hundred people attended the shoot. Mr. Yutzy was the only marksman present and participating who reached the bag limit set by the promoters.

In all nine turkeys, 11 ducks and 40 chickens were awarded as prizes for rifle competition. The shoot was held for the benefit of the University rifle team.

Keg Sitter Held Under $500 Bond on Liquor Charges

Marshall Crowe, Lonaconing, who was arrested last week on the charge of possession of liquor for the purpose of sale, was given a hearing before A. S. Teats, justice of the peace, Tuesday, and held under $500 bond for his appearance before the December term of Court. The charge of transportation of liquor will also be placed against the man.

Crowe's arrest followed an investigation of two men sitting along the highway near Bloomington on what appeared to be kegs covered with burlap. Crowe was caught by Richard West, deputy, only after a chase of a half mile or more. Two 10-gallon kegs of whiskey were found beneath the burlap.

SEEK MAN IN DEATH OF YOUNG BOY NEAR AURORA

Alonzo Cummings Wanted By Officers As Driver Of Car Which Killed Youth Friday

With the arrest of Howard Moats, 17-year old youth, by State police and county officials Monday, the officers redoubled their efforts to find Alonzo Cummings, whom they say they want as the driver of the car which ran down and killed Claude Lipscomb, 9, near Aurora, West Va., twelve miles south of Oakland, Friday night.

Following the accident, Preston county authorities at Kingwood were notified and after an investigation arrested James Cummings, 26, brother of Alonzo, and owner of the car. Cummings told the officers that his younger brother had the car out during the evening and brought it home telling him that he had hit something on the mountain and was going to go away.

Owner of Car Held

The youth, Moats, taken into custody, is said to have told officials he was riding in the car with Alonzo at the time of the accident and that he tried to get him to stop after having hit the boy, but without avail. The officers declared he said he felt the car strike the child, heard him scream and then realized when the car ran over the boy that an accident had occurred.

Persons in the Eglon section, five miles from where the accident occurred, say they saw Alonzo Cummings and the youth together in a car there a short time before the accident.

The Lipscomb boy, with his father, it is said, were attempting to cross the Northwestern Turnpike at a point near the Mountain Top Service station, which is operated by an uncle of the boy killed, when the car driven by Cummings approached at a high rate of speed, with the headlights off and only one of the parking lights burning.

The boy died a short time after having been removed to the home of his uncle, J. R. Lipscomb, opposite the point in the roadway where the accident took place.

1. What Oakland schools are teaching about health, Mrs. W. W. Grant; 2. What colleges are teaching about health, Mrs. W. B. Brock; 3. Our health from a nurse's standpoint, Miss Rhesa M. King; 4. Health from a mother's standpoint, Mrs. E. R. O'Donnell; 5. What our government is doing to aid health, Mrs. George Sprague.

A resume of Dr. Peter's talk at the Rotary Club last Friday evening will be given by one of the Civic Club representatives.

Band Gets More Donations

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland was in receipt of $7.90 in donations during the past week, $5.00 coming from Miss Thekla C. Fundenberg, Washington, D. C., and $2.00 from Miss Cora Frantz, who was awarded the $2.50 in gold at the band card party last week.

In Miss Fundenberg's letter to Mr. Gilbert she says, "It is a very small contribution when compared with the fine work that you and Mr. Brown have done in organizing and teaching the boys. That band is a real credit to Oakland, thanks to you both."

The money received will be applied on the fund toward furnishing uniforms for the members.

TWO HELD UNDER BOND; CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Carlton Bowers and Bruin Beeler Arrested Friday Night

Carlton Bowers and Bruin Beeler, both of Oakland, are under $1,000 bond for their appearance before the Grand Jury, charged with breakjng and entering the house of Ambrose Mattingly, just north of town, last Friday night.

They were given a hearing Saturday before E. I. West, justice of the peace, and the two confessed. Fred. Cropp identified them as having been in that section of the town about the time of the alleged crime.

It was said that the two were in search of $1,000 which they heard Mr. Mattingly had in the house. Bowers recently returned from the House of Correction where he had served a sentence upon conviction of a similar charge.

SUPREME COURT CHANGES MCKENZIE TRIAL VERDICT

W. R. Offutt Assists in Arguing Case for Mrs. McKenzie

The Appellate court of the State of West Virginia has reversed the action of the Circuit court of Webster county, in which Annie L. McKenzie, a former resident of this county, charged jointly with Seymour Smith with the murder of Thomas McKenzie, her husband, was convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to the penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., for life.

The case was first tried at a special term during May, 1928, and thru her counsel, William R. Offutt, Oakland attorney, and W. S. Wysong, Webster Springs, Mrs. McKenzie filed an appeal to the Supreme court of West Virginia. The appeal was argued before the court on November 9, and Mr. Offutt has just received word that the Appellate court had reversed the action of the Circuit court.

Smith was tried separately from Mrs. McKenzie and is now serving a sentence of 18 years in West Virginia penitentiary. This case has created a good deal of interest in West Virginia and Maryland and every step in the case for the past two years has been strongly contested.

Fire Lookout Towers Made Safe

During the past week or ten days fire lookout towers at Bittinger and Thayerville have been equipped with guy wires running from the elevted platforms to the earth where they are securely anchored. This precaution was deemed necessary not only to make the towers more secure but also to prevent them from weaving with the storms during the winter thus making it possible for the wardens stationed therein to keep their instruments in perfect line with fires that may break out and the location of such fires hold until the forest wardens can be communicated with.

H. C. Buckingham, who superintended the guving of the towers, also stated an examination of the State forests recently replanted under State supervisions shows that 95 per cent of the nursery stock planted has lived and shows a healthy growth, while only 50 per cent of native stock transplanted shows life.

Other work recently completed by the wardens and others under direction of Mr. Buckingham was the laying out of fire lines and the clearing of existing trails.

Mr. Buckingham also stated that the local forest wardens have cooperated with him in all his activities.

Case Against A. I. Fike Is Dismissed

The case against A. I. Fike, of Eglon, W. Va., who was charged with reckless driving and manslaughter following an accident in which Guy Martin, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen U. Martin was instantly killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mr. Fike, was dismissed by the State Monday at a hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice.

Mr. Fike was given a preliminary hearing immediately after the accident, but due to the absence of the State's attorney the hearing was postponed until Monday.

The boy, it was said, was crossing the State highway about three miles south of Oakland, and due to the noise made by the tractor his father was driving in a field nearby did not hear the approach of the car.

ARTHUR OSWELL KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Car Overturns When He Attempted to Avoid Obstruction On Road Under Construction

Arthur Richardson Oswell, aged 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Oswell, of Mt. Lake Park, and Washington, D. C., was instantly killed about 9 o'clock Saturday night about one mile south of Wilson station, between Kitzmiller and Altamont, when the Ford coupe in which he was riding left the highway and overturned several times. He was on his way from Washington to his parents' home at Mt. Lake Park.

Mrs. Flota Bice, a domestic in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Searle, uncle and aunt of the dead man, Washington, D. C., who was on her way to Terra Alta, W. Va., to visit relatives, was painfully but not seriously injured. Both occupants were thrown from the car.

Was On New Road

Between Kitzmiller and Altamont the State has under construction a new road, part of which is concrete. This road runs parallel with the old road, but about six feet higher. At the end of the concrete is a log barrier.

Oswell, it is said was driving on the concrete part at a high rate of speed when the barrier suddenly loomed into view. Not being able to check the speed of his car, he swerved to the right in an attempt to get on the old road. The elevation and sharp turn is believed to have caused the car to upset, throwing Oswell out and fracturing his skull and breaking his neck.

The deceased was employed in the office of the Judge Advocate General in Washington. He was the nephew of the late Dr. Charles W. Richardson, noted Washington physician, who died just recently. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. C. R. McCutcheon, New York City, and Harriet, at home in Mt. Lake.

The body was taken to Washington on Monday where funeral services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Searle, on Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. Dr. John C. Palmer, Washington Heights Presbyterian church, was in charge. Interment was made in the Rock Creek cemetery.

Mike Felty and James McDonald, of the vicinity of the accident, stayed with the body until W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, and Thomas E. Currie, state police, arrived and investigated the cause of the wreck. No inquest was held.

Mrs. Bice was brought to Oakland by Stanley Virts, Oakland, who passed in a car shortly after the accident.

Bruin Beeler Held on Liquor Charge

Bruin Beeler, Oakland, was arrested Saturday morning charged with the manufacture and possession of liquor, and was held under $500 bond for his appearance at the December Term of Court when given a hearing before E. I. West, justice.

County officers found 17 bottles of beer in Beeler's house but could not locate the still. A coil was the only indication that the beer had been manufactured in that vicinity. The beer was discovered when officers were searching for Beeler on the charge of having entered the house of Ambrose Mattingly, just north of town, Friday night.

Not Guilty Of Charge

Claude Jeffries, Oakland, was found not guilty of the charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, at a hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice, following an automobile accident in which the car he was driving ran into the rear of Harold Moon's Overland tourning car on Third street, between Crook and Pennington streets, Sunday evening. The charge was preferred by Moon. None of the occupants of either car was injured.

Noone Injured in Auto Wreck

Robert Moon, son of Mrs. George Moon, Oakland, damaged his Chevrolet coupe Sunday evening about one mile west of Table Rock on the Northwestern Turnpike, when he was sideswiped by a Buick sedan. Two wheels of the car were smashed and windows broken by the impact.

The driver of the car, and Genevieve Wilt, Crellin, who accompanied him, received minor cuts and bruises.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

Following Scoop's short epistle of last week he received such a calling down, bawling out, or what have you, from a number of The Republican's readers, that he is almost afraid to neglect writing it again. Still, there are excuses for everything and if this happens again readers, please be patient. At least be as patient with Scoop as the troops in the corn army of Garrett county have been.

Which reminds Scoop that there are rumors of another corn parade before the people of Oakland. Details will come in due time.

Prize Hunters.

"Turk" Shartzer and Taxi Bill Shaffer are ahead thus far in the race for gunning honors for the present season. Their most noted "catch" has been the hunting hound of Bill, which they bagged the first day out. Both fired their artillery at the bunch of waving grass at the same moment and the $60 hound immediately took his departure for the happy hunting grounds. "Turk" furnished the dog with food from Miller's meat store all summer with the understanding that he could use the hound for the fall shooting.

Business in Oakland is not as it should be, nor indeed is it in any other town and as a result merchants are undetermined about the future, but Miller's Sanitary Market seems to have no difficulty in making both ends every now and then says that only about ten per cent of the people have perfect vision. The ninety per cent constitutes the cock-eyed world.

Big Tire Inflated

Goodyear's big tire, which was only a day late in arriving at Kerins' garage, went out of Oakland much ensier than it had come in. It collected a carpet tack about a mile out of town and lost a lot of valuable wind. But Jim Kerins, of Kerins and Kerins, saved the day. He deputized all the members of the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work, and by harnessing and compressing all their hot air conversation, the tire was soon itself again and went on down the cement Morgantown bound. Those contributing largely to its inflation were Jim Kerins, Jerry Stanton, Harry Edwards, Betty Dawson, Joe Gonder, Kahl Kahl, Scoop, the Boss Editor, Bill Frazee, Doc Grant, Emmy Bishoff and "Slim" Shaw, president of the Society.

Colonel Bell was right on the job and took a picture which shows Jim Kerins showing the others how it is done.

Cupid's Bureau.

Dear Scoop:—I am a young lady of 41; widow by strangulation, but I didn't do the strangling; am considered neat, having taking ways (but I have never been convicted). Wish to correspond with man, not so particular, but with good immortal character. Matrimony on the horizon. Will inherit grandfather's farm of fifty acres (he's now 91). Am perfectly formed from the ankles up, but my feet aren't mates. Anyway, I would like to park my mules under my husband's bed. Somebody please write while I'm in the notion.

AFFAIRS CONCERNING THE NATION.

Written for The Republican by Frank P. Litschert.

When the United States Senate, after a historic battle, rejected the League of Nations so far as the United States membership in that international association was concerned, and it became necessary, because of conditions, that we draw up and ratify a separate peace with Germany, Uncle Sam was denounced, not only in Europe, but by the more rabid internationalists in the United States as a world, that we had adopted a policy which amounted to building a great wall around the United States with the intention of retiring selfishly unto ourselves, and that the natural developments would be loss of world prestige to ourselves and the fastening of the war danger on the world for generations to come because our influence for peace would be missing in world affairs.

* * *

Ten years have passed since the stirring battle over the League of Nations. It might be well to pause for a moment, and review succeeding events to see whether or not these dire predictions of the internationalists have been carried out. Have we built that insurmountable wall and retired into isolation? Have we endangered world understanding and world peace? What is the record of the past decade?

* * *

In 1921 there was called into being in the City of Washington a naval limitations conference. It assembled on invitation of the United States Government and in that conference we gave up what was agreed to be an excellent chance to become the greatest naval power on earth. We would soon have had a preponderance in battleships yet we gave up this assured battleship superiority and accepted battleship equality, with our only serious rival, Great Britain. We did this because we hoped that it would be the first act in a world drama of general disarmament and ultimate peace, and we sunk good battleships to show our sincerity and our good intentions in the cause of peace.

* * *

When the great battle of the Ruhr came on, when it seemed that Germany might sink into bolshevism and the financial security of France be destroyed in the general economic debacle of the times, it was the Dawes plan, perfected in a conference presided over by a leading American statesman, which saved the day, brought financial order out of chaos, gave Germany a new lease of life and lessened the financial tension, to say nothing of the military tension in France.

* * *

When the time came for the revising of the Dawes pact and the solution of the reparations tangle so that allied troops might leave the Rhine and actual peace be bestowed, American statesmanship and American financial genius were again in the forefront in bringing the solution.

* * *

When the time seemed ripe to write another chapter in the book of peace it was the Kellogg pact, put in motion by another American administration which finally bound the nations together in a moral agreement that war be renounced as an instrument of national policy and that henceforth nations of the world agree to settle their disputes by arbitration rather than at the mouths of cannon.

* * *

Finally, when the time seemed propitious for the taking of another step along the path of naval limitation was an American administration which, cooperating with the government of our chief naval rival, worked out a plan which, it is believed, will further lessen the naval burdens of the people of the earth without sacrificing the doctrine of parity and of defensive naval needs.

* * *

Here is the record of little less than a decade. Today Europe has gone farther along the path of peace and economic rehabilitntion than we would have been dreamed possible a scant ten years ago. In each step the United States has played a prominent part and has played the part of an adviser and friend, a disinterested party whose good offices could lend his aid for the very reason that he was not committed to any European policy and was not committed in advance to the entanglements of European politics. This much has been done by a country which sought only isolation, but the preservation of the traditional policy of friendship to all nations and alliances with none. Result proves that it is a successful policy. Had we ten years ago elected to enter into the maze of European diplomacy and European political jealousies could we have been successful in showing the way to peace and understanding? The answer is so plain that it needs no elucidation here. The internationalists have been refuted by the history of the world during the past decade. And our international policies will continue because it has been because it is the best policy not only for the United States but for Europe as well.

Lesson for November 24

THE HIGHER PATRIOTISM

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 1:1-3; 4:5-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is True Patriotism?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Patriotism and Internationalism.

The lesson committee has rightly suggested the entire book of Jonah as the basis of our study. The topic selected by the committee may seem a little strained. It will hardly do to call the spirit which moved Jonah to preach to the Ninevites, patriotism; rather, we should recognize it as the passion of a missionary going forth with the message of God, calling upon men to repent and turn to Him. Patriotism means love for one's country, while the spirit of the missionary is passionate love for lost men of all countries.

Jonah, a Jew, was called to go and preach repentance to a Gentile city. In a real sense, salvation is of the Jews. In the seed of Abraham all nations of the earth shall be blessed (Gen. 12:1, 2). The story of Jonah graphically portrays the history of Israel as a nation. God separated Israel to be the channel through which His mercy and salvation were to be carried to all the nations of the earth. They, like Jonah, have been recreant to duty. Because of this God has caused them to be swallowed up by the nations, who will one day in the future spue them out upon dry ground, Palestine. After chastisement they, like Jonah, will discharge their obligation and nations will repent and turn to God.

II. Jonah's Flight From Duty (1:3).

He turned his back upon God and attempted to flee from His presence. He went in the opposite direction to which he was sent. He did not believe in foreign missions. In the same way, Israel has become an apostate people, and instead of a blessing has become a burden and curse to the nations.

III. Jonah's Correction (1:4-2:10).

1. Overtaken by a storm (1:5).

Trouble soon came upon the disobedient servant of God. So with the Jews, misfortune after misfortune, storm after storm have overtaken them because they turned from God. They are now tossed about by the nations. They, like Jonah, are asleep.

2. Cast overboard (1:15).

In their perplexity the sailors cast lots and the lot fell upon Jonah. According to his own direction they did this. God had prepared a great fish which swallowed Jonah.

3. Jonah's deliverance (ch. 2).

Jonah in his affliction turned to God and prayed (James 5:13).

God miraculously preserved him while in the belly of the fish. God has miraculously preserved Israel while in the heart of the nations. The fish could not digest Jonah, neither can the nations assimilate Israel. Jonah repented while in the fish. So Israel will repent as she goes into the great tribulation. God made the fish to vomit out Jonah. So He will at the proper time cause the nations to cast out Israel.

IV. Jonah's Commission Renewed. (3:1-10).

Although Israel has been rebellious and failed in the execution of her commission, she will repent and go forward to fulfill her commission in preaching the gospel to the nations of the earth observe.

1. The field of his ministry (v. 3).

It was to be the great Gentile city Nineveh.

2. His message (v. 4).

He was instructed to "preach the preaching" which God had commissioned him to utter—Nineveh was to be overthrown within forty days.

3. Effect upon the people of Nineveh

They repented and sued for pardon. In the time to tions will repent of their sins when the gospel of the kingdom is preached unto them by the Jews.

V. Jonah's Behavior (4:1-11).

1. His displeasure (vv 1-3).

He now makes known the real reason for his flight from duty. He knew that the gracious God would spare the people who repented.

2. God reproves Jonah (vv. 4-11).

By means of the gourd God shows him his error. The closing scene affords a striking example of the patience and pity of God in contrast with the hard-heartedness of man.

Hidden Gold Found

A story is told of a man whose home and mill, all that he had in the world, were swept away by floods. But, as he stood on the scene of his loss, after the water had subsided, broken hearted and discouraged, he saw something shining in the bank, which the water had washed bare. It was gold. The flood which had beggared him, had made him rich. "Sorrow strips off loved possessions, but reveals the treasures of the love of God."

THE PASSING SHOW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

The Maryland Democracy continues badly mussed up as a result of Governor Ritchie's desperate attempt to hold on to his official and party power indefinitely, and as in the fourteen continuous years he has been in high office he has built up a more or less blind following the feeling is beginning to run high.

Many are becoming bitter over Ritchie's rule or ruin policy—a selfish attempt to grab everything for himself. Each day of the Ritchie insistence finds the party becoming weaker for the general election of next year and therefore the interest in the probable nominee of the Republican party is growing.

At this time it seems that the Governor is still blind to the situation. Those who would advise him that his insistence on a fourth term will bring disaster to the party are not given much attention. His Excellency has a queer complex, imagining himself the "strongest man" in his party and invincible. The big plurality of three years ago went to his head and he can't get over it.

He is represented by some as repeatedly pointing to himself as the "strongest man" and the only one deserving of consideration. Some call his trouble swellheaditis while others designate it as plain egotism and selfishness.

The Governor's official position gives him a strong hold on the party machinery and this he is working to the utmost, pressing into service as many as possible of those he feels are obligated to him.

The city followers (sincere and insincere) of the Governor, having run their course of club endorsing and drumming up everything possible, we may expect to hear from the anti-fourth termers who are supporting Senator McIntosh. The latter is represented as anxious to go out and do something but he has been advised to keep still while the Governor's admirers (real and feigned) are firing their heaviest artillery for the purpose of misleading the county Democrats as to the situation in the city.

The fact is that Howard W. Jackson and Wm. Curran are cooperating in an effort to bring about harmony in party ranks. Both are aware of the hopelessness of the Ritchie candidacy—that if nominated the Governor will not be elected. There is no chance of Curran again supporting Ritchie. He sees the latter choking himself to death with his own political greed.

On top of this the opponents of the fourth term now knew pretty well who among those now busy rounding up indorsements for the Governor are sincere. Some of them give the Governor assurances of support with one breath and in the next make preparations to go over to the opposition as soon as the signal is given. And even among the Governor's callers are those who want no greater pleasure than the opportunity to act as his political pallbearers.

Brooke Lee is still sticking to the Governor and some explain this with the theory that Brooke has a hope of getting the nomination in the jam that will come if Ritchie is pushed out of the picture

Brooke Lee Beating
Eastern Shore Bushes

Major Brooke Lee in the role of political lackey to the Governor, is now engaged in trying to line up Eastern Shore support for His Excellency's primary contest. We find in the Centerville Record an account of a meeting held at the court house there on Wednesday, called by the chairman of the county committee at the instance of Lee and which was addressed by him. The account says many of the county leaders absented themselves as they were not ready to take sides. In other words, it appears that Lee did not have much success in lining up support for his fourth term candidate.

It is on the Eastern Shore that the Governor's stock is at the lowest and he is using Lee in an effort to bolster it up. We presume that Lee began his Eastern Shore campaign in Queen Anne's, because there is less opposition in that county to the Governor than in some of the other counties. We would like to see Lee call a Ritchie meeting at Crisfield, for instance, or at Cambridge. We imagine the Democrats down there would give Boom-a-laddie a real chill.

Incense Burners
Doing Their Best

The week to date has been a busy one for His Excellency's incense burners. Eugene H. Beer drummed up all the people he could to attend a meeting at the Eleventh Ward Democratic Club on Wednesday evening at the same time that Parole Commissioner Ambrose Kennedy was marshalling his Tenth Warders and Criminal Court Clerk Eddie Gross was engaged in drilling his Eighteenth Warders.

In each of these instances the Governor was called upon to announce himself a candidate but in no instance was there a specific promise of how much Ritchie majority each ward could deliver on general election day.

The Governor should be able to scrape up a few more endorsements among the officeholders and their clubs. Certainly he must produce more than has been shown to date. But after all, the great public does not pay a great deal of attention to the indorements of ward clubs. The great mass of voters do not belong to ward clubs.

Republican Slate Now
In The Making

While the Democrats who are tired of the continued Ritchie domination of their party have been grappling with the problem of retiring the Governor to private life, the Republican slate-makers have been making quiet progress with their plans to avoid a primary election fight next year, if possible, and present a united front to their chances will probably be better since 1895.

The week's events have given Mayor Broening and his supporters a severe hump. This bump came in the shape of a statement by National Committeeman Wm. P. Jackson to the effect that he did not think that Mayor Broening would go into a primary contest, and the coincidental arrival in this city of David A. Robb of Allegany who had had Gubernatorial aspirations for at least four years.

Mr. Robb is engaged i nlooking around. He apparently had done considerable looking around before he arrived in the city, for those who talked with him got the impression that he was pretty well versed as to the situation in his party. He has no rival for the nomination in Western Maryland so far as known. Some time back there was mention of former Attorney General Armstrong but it seems to be the opinion of the leaders that Mr. Armstrong put himself out of the eligible list by helping the Governor and Brooke Lee with their legislative roads "investigation" which got nowhere.

The Fred. Zihlman talk has died down. There never was much to it. Over on the Eastern Shore there is no active candidate nor any likely to become candidates.

In Baltimore Cithy with a strong Eastern Shore connection is Albert G. Towers. He has some backing and has never said positively that he would under no circumstances accept a nomination. But it does not appear that Mr. Towers would enter a primary contest.

Mayor Broening has been doing a deal of indirect campaigning. In this he has been aided by his secretary, Theo. R. McKeldin, who has been moving around in a few counties. The Mayor seems to have a strong backing in Baltimore and Harford counties Outside of these two counties there there have been no public commitments.

As the situation stands today there are two men who have their eyes on the nomination—the Mayor and Mr. Robb. If the selection of a candidate is made in a conference of party leaders it appears at this time that Mr. Robb will be the choice of a majority of the county leaders. He has some support in the city, too, but Baltimore can be counted on as in the Mayor's hands if the latter continues as a candidate.

Mr. Robb is engaged in looking as in vote. But he is said not to he an extremist, yet believes that Maryland should have a State-wide enforcement law. Many of the county Republicans hold this same view and they have been strengthened in this attitude by the overwhelming defeat of Wm. Cabell Bruce, a wet champnon, in the election last year.

It would appear at this time that if Mr. Robb can obtain the support of both National Committeeman Jackson and former Senator Weller his nomination will be well nigh assured if he decides to become a candidate. But if he does, say the friends of the Allegany countian, the main issue will not be the liquor question but a house cleaning at Annapolis.

Bookmakers Scared
By Judge O'Dunne

Judge O'Dunne has been having a great time scaring the local bookmakers and annoying the police department, or at least, Commissioner Gaither. A bookmaker, it appears, by going into court over the matter of having telephones restored or something like that, directed the attention of the judge to the extent and ramifications of the industry which has been spreading and flourishing in Baltimore since 1920, the year of the beginning the current reign at Annapolis.

The Judge took energetic steps to ascertain the connection between the information dissemination system and the bookmakers with the result that the telephone company, usually ignorant in such matters, produced a list of its customers who have special facilities for getting information about the horse races.

What the Judge produced established the fact that the system is widespread and runs into nearly every section of the city and that the amount of business done must be enormous. He also established the fact that the police have not done a great deal with the bookmaking problem.

The impressive fact was that such a large number of persons sought admission to Judge O'Dunne's court while the bookmaking industry was under discussion. The Judge had the boldness to speak plainly of the bookmakers, although he did not say what he probably thought about their patrans.

Of course, the Judge will be criticized from several angles and it will be said that he was seeking newspaper notoriety. Yet it must be remembered that the whole bookmaking industry is built on publicity for, should the papers stop publishing racing entries and results, the interest would die out and the public would not invest its money in such a hazardous game. The newspaper justification is public interest and yet the papers have to create that same interest.

Anyway, Judge O'Dunne has shown the general public more than was ever before known about the extent of the business in this city and if it is to be curtailed or even seriously annoyed the instrumentalities are in the hands of the Governor, who controls the police.

THE NEW ERA OF POWER SERVICE

The power industry is growing and changing at an almost dazzling rate. Within a comparatively few years the small electric plant came into being, reached its maximum, and began to disappear. Mass production, the new industrial philosophy, is creating gigantic interconnected systems, destined to serve millions of homes in thousands of towns and cities, and in farming communities.

There is a new attitude here—a change in method. Power companies today, realizing that their progress and even their existence depends upon the quality and price of service they give the public, are out to cut costs and improve facilities on every hand. Every consolidation means unit profits may be decreased and yet produce an aggregate profit. Power is being sold as automobiles or shoes are sold—a maximum of quality for a minimum of price.

It is this development that has been confused in many minds by shouts of "trust." At present a score of great companies are, figuratively speaking, battling with each other to extend into new territory. Power companies, while seldom competitive in a single locality, are competing on a nation-wide scale to give better service.

It is a proven axiom that large turnover permits of lower cost. The electric power industry is working on this principle and the public reaps the benefit in higher standards of service at lower rates.

What's America's answer, you ask
As the challenge comes at the summer's end?
Will it find her equal to any task,
Or will she fail as a staunch, true friend?
This, the reply that the echoes bring:
Has she ever failed in anything?

Never a call has she heard in vain.
From a needy world or her stricken states,
Bearing relief from hunger and pain,
A cross in her outstretched hands, she waits.
This her reply: We will always give
That those who have less than we might live.

BY MISS ELSIE BENTHIEN

Cranberries are the tonic fruit rich in iron, lime and carbohydrates the vital elements that aid in restoring nerves and toning up the system. They stimulate the appetite and are an aid to digestion. If served freely at meals, they will prove extremely beneficial to the general health.

Cranberries are an inexpensive and delicious food. There is no waste of material or time in preparing them. No peeling, pitting, etc.

Whole Cranberry Sauce can be made in 10 minutes. It should be served cold. It is desirable to cook up a quantity at a time and fill mason jars, the same as other fruits, and have a supply on the pantry shelf ready for use. It is delicious and appropriate to:

(a) Serve with any meat course, hot or cold.

(b) Make pies or tarts.

(c) Serve on vanilla ice cream. This makes a most delicious and attractive sundae.

One pound (4 cups) cranberries, 2 cups boiling water, 1½ to 2 cups of sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; add the cranberries and boil without stirring five minutes is usually sufficient, until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops, and let stand in cooking vessel until cool.

Cranberry Meringue Pie

One and one-half cups of sugar, 2 cups cranberries, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, ¼ cup cold water, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon butter.

Cook sugar and water to a syrup; add the cranberries. Cook until they pop. Cool a little. Mix smoothly in a bowl the flour and yolks of eggs; add 3 tablespoons of the juice of the cooked cranberries, then add to the berries and simmer for 3 minutes. Stir in butter and vanilla and set aside to cool. Turn filling into deep pie crust previously baked; cover with meringue made from stiffly beaten whites of eggs and powdered sugar. Place in slow oven to set and brown the meringue.

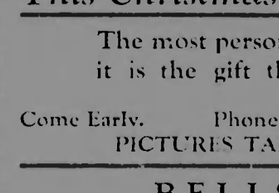
AN OPPORTUNITY TO HELP AT A VERY SMALL COST

Sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals to Begin Thanksgiving

"It is particularly appropriate that the sale of the tuberculosis Christmas seals begins near Thanksgiving Day," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health said, calling attention to the opening of the twenty-second annual sale of the little seals, with their message of hope and health, under the auspices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, on the twenty-ninth of this month.

"Since 1907, when the plan borrowed from Denmark—of using the little Christmas seals as a means of raising funds for the warfare against tuberculosis, was first tried out in the United States, every section of the country has seen a reduction in sickness and death from this disease. Maryland's death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half in that time.

"Through the vision of Dr. John S. Fulton, for many years Secretary of the State Department of Health, Maryland was one of the pioneers in our nation-wide fight against tuberculosis. As a result of the tuberculosis exhibit he arranged in 1904, what is now the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, was organized. That year 1904—there were 2,669 deaths from tuberculosis in Maryland. Last year—1928—with a much larger population, we had 1,711 deaths from the disease, 1,011 white and 700 colored. Twenty-five years ago, one out of every eight deaths recorded in the State, from all causes, was due to tuberculosis. Last year, tuberculosis caused one out of every thirteen deaths. In 1904 the deaths from tuberculosis amounted to 216 to every hundred thousand of the population. Last year the number was 105 to every hundred thousand of the population.



"Tuberculosis has been cut down greatly, but we have a long way to go before the battle against it is won. Much of the improvement has come through better care of those who suffer from the disease. Much of it thru the actual prevention of the disease. Fewer people contract tuberculosis because of the better understanding and the more general practice of the principles of healthy living and of personal hygiene, sunshine, fresh air, nourishing food, healthful recreation and plenty of sleep.

"Many of the preventive activities that are helping in the fight against tuberculosis, especially the clinics—which we have in every county—much of the public health nursing work and the work that is done to protect children and young people against the disease, are made possible through the sale of the Christmas seals. Every seal counts in the battle. The best part of it is that everybody can help.

SUBDUING MICROBE ARMY IS PROBLEM FOR PEOPLE

Invisible Things Most Dangerous, Says Dr. Peters in Address

To subdue and conquer the vast army of microbes in the world, was the problem of the people of the earth as presented by Dr. W. W. Peter, New York City, in his address of more than an hour before the Oakland Rotary Club and its guests at the meeting of the organization held last Friday evening at which time also the new dining hall of the William-James Hotel, well appointed in its several departments, was opened and used for the first time. Dr. Peter's address was on "Mastodons, Man and Microbes."

"Mastodons have perished and been swallowed up by the earth; other animals have been conquered by men in the light of dawning intelligence, but the most dangerous things of all to human life have not been subdued," Dr. Peter said, "and until this has been accomplished human life and human destiny in this life will grope in the dark, therefore science and all that it can command is being used to conquer and destroy the life-taking of the millions of microbes we do not see and cannot see unless placed under a magnifying glass, and then the revelation is startling, for the trained eye of the scientist and student of medicine sees many forms of animal life that are appalling and startling."

The speaker was highly entertaining and interesting throughout the entire time required to deliver his address and illustrated certain points with anecdotes laughable but to the point.

Dr. Peter, of the New York Health Department, came to Oakland with Dr. R. H. Riley head of the Maryland State Health Department, who introduced him at the dinner talk, the visit of the two men being for the purpose of taking part in the Rotary program for American Education Week.

Baby Beeves Sell For Good Prices

Maryland 4-H Club boys again demonstrated, when they received the very creditable average price of $17.78 per hundredweight for thirty-five head baby beeves at the Baltimore Livestock Exhibition last month, that such animals, fed to an approximate weight of one thousand pounds and finished nicely, can be produced successfully and profitably on an economic basis under prevailing market conditions in this State. This is the third consecutive year that the boys have carried out their work so successfully, it having been inaugurated in 1927.

An average of $17.05 per hundredweight was received for the Shorthorn steers, of which there were 24. This class furnished the only first prize winner, a very fine animal belonging to John Fenwick, of Glyndon, Md., which ran into some strong competition from the Virginia offerings. This animal was originally purchased from the Belair Farms, Collington, Maryland.

Second place in its class was awarded to the Hereford entry of Fred. Wintermeyer, Hagerstown, Md., and would have been given first place had not the animal's line been slightly off a perfect level. In the sale that followed, however, this animal sold for 8.30 a pound which was the highest price paid for any steer from this State. The average price paid for the seven Maryland Hereford steers was $20.39, which exceeded that of either the Shorthorns or the Angus cattle.

Fifth position was the best that could be won by a State entry in the Angus division and the animal belonging to Audrey Knepper, of Hagerstown, was awarded this place. This breed is very popular with the Maryland 4-H Club boys and the showing this year was hardly up to the standard, according to those in charge. The four Angus steers brought an average of $17.56 per hundredweight. Last year when the club was started suitable calves of the Angus breed were very scarce, which probably accounts for the poor showing this fall.

It is reported that the sale and show were by far the most successful hat the Maryland Beef Club has enjoyed since it was started, the total amount of money received for the 35 head of steers being in excess of $6.00. Plans are already under way for another club and a number of very fine steers have been secured for the coming year's work.

At the recent meeting of the North Atlantic section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, held at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., October 17 and 19, R. W. Carpenter, specialist in agricultural engineering for the University of Maryland Extension Service, was chosen chairman of the North Atlantic section for the ensuing year. Mr. Carpenter, who was toastmaster at the banquet held during the meeting, has taken a very active part in the organization since its formation.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Claud A. Martin vs. Alberta A. Martin.
No. 2933 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That on the 5th day of June, 1912, he was married by the Rev. Frank Roberts in Mineral County, West Virginia, to Alberta A. Martin, the defendant, with whom he resided, for the most part in said Mineral County, West Virginia, until the 13th day of September, 1926; that ever since their said marriage your orator has behaved himself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate husband toward the said Alberta A. Martin; that there were ... children born of said marriage; that for a long time prior to said 13th day of September, 1926, said defendant treated your orator in a cruel and harsh manner, was threatening and abusive in her conduct towards your orator and at times threatened to take his life so that he was in constant fear of bodily harm and injury from said defendant; that for the space of about one year before said date your orator and the said defendant, because of her said conduct, occupied separate rooms and did not live together as man and wife; that although your orator endeavored to continue living with said defendant her conduct finally became and was so intolerable and your orator's fear for his own safety so great that he was compelled on the 13th day of September, 1926, to leave the house which your orator and said defendant occupied as a residence in Keyser, West Virginia, and to take up his residence elsewhere; that your orator has made every possible and proper effort to continue living with said defendant but found it impossible to continue said relationship; that the conduct on the part of the said defendant amounted to abandonment and to an entire deprival of your orator of his marital rights; that said abandonment and separation has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that your orator has been a resident of Garrett County, Maryland, continuously for more than two years, but the said defendant resides in Keyser, Mineral County, West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon this 6th day of November, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of November, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of December, 1929, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Wounded Deer Found in Field

About 4:50 o'clock last Saturday afternoon while some local sportsmen were returning from a rabbit hunt on Meadow Mountain they discovered a deer in a buckwheat field near this village. The animal seemed to have been shot and badly wounded by some hunters earlier in the day as it is said that one front leg appeared to be broken and there were wounds from which blood was issuing along its side and hind legs. The deer seemed to be suffering from the effects of its injuries and would allow the men to approach within a rod of it but would then hobble away a short distance. It gave battle to a dog that approached too near. An effort was made to communicate with the district game warden but he could not be located.

Who wounded the deer and what became of it after the returning hunters left it in the field is not known.

The animal was a young doe and it is hoped that the lawless hunter who did the shooting may be apprehended and severely punished.

All physicians and midwives must report all living and stillborn births under penalty of the laws of Maryland, it was pointed out by the officer in charge. Parents in Garrett county who have not received a birth certificate from the State Department of Health Bureau of Vital Statistics for all born within the past year, should notify the county registrar, Miss Julia Rowan, Oakland.

Following is a list of birth certificates which have been in the possession of the statistician belonging to parents whose address has been changed since the birth of their child, and she will forward them to the proper place upon notification. In addition to the father's name the mother's maiden name is given so that relatives may get in touch with them: Roy Cecil Beekman, Lillian Thelma Newlon; John W. Rinker, Sallie V. McRobie; Spurgeon J. Creasy, Helen Blanche Schroyer.

What is the Value of a Used Car if No One is Using It?

Economically, a Used Car not in use is of no value. The same conclusion must be drawn for any other items of merchandisable products.

Whether it be a used car, a horse, a pony, farm, house, town lot, piece of furniture, radio, piano, or whatever it might be you have that is not in use, it is costing you money to carry it, and worst of all it is doing nobody any good.

Turn your used cars, etc., into money by using "The Paid Local" column in The Republican, and follow the column for your wants. You will be the winner.

MT LAKE PARK.

The appearance of the community should get the th Annual Committee efforts to brighten up the Park. Some additional lights have been left on the last two months, which adds materially to the cheerfulness, comfort and safety of the residents. A walk over the postoffice in the late evening will convince the most pessimistic that the outlook from passing trains is much more attractive.

There is naturally and properly much rejoicing over the fact that the County Commissioners have promised their aid in getting two miles of the road leading from Mountain Lake Park to German built this coming summer. While it may be two or three years before the entire road is completed, at the same time the building of the two miles will put the road over Little Backbone, as we understand it, which will aid greatly in facilitating and increasing business between this community and that section of the county known as Ryan's Glades. And when it is completed, it will be a short cut east and will largely increase traffic through Oakland, Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn.

Already there is much speculation and interest as to the location of the crossing over the railroad tracks. Certain it is, that it cannot be located to suit everyone. Let's don't delay matters by getting into a squabble. Get together on the best compromise location, if there is any difference of opinion, and recommend that one to the powers that be. The main thing is to get the road started.

It is a verity that "the old must die, the young may." It is one of the unalterable laws of nature. It has been so from the beginning of time and will be ever thus to the end of time. Yet, whether it be the passing of one who has long been on a bed of sickness or the snapping of the life thread in the prime of life, we are never reconciled. Life and death, joy and sorrow, pain and pleasure are mysteries as yet unexplicable.

The community was shocked at the news of the death of "Archie" Oswell, a young man of exceptional promise. He would have been twenty-four years old today, and was just beginning to blaze the trail for future usefulness. His untimely death is deeply deplored and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to his bereaved parents and sisters.

The Gilbert Brown Boys' Band began practice on the annual Christmas concert, to be presented in the Maryland theatre sometime during the week of December 22, R. R. Gilbert, director, has announced.

A concert has been given by the Boys' band each Christmas time for two years. The first Christmas concert was the first public appearance of the organization.

Three instruments which had been sent away for repairs, have been returned and will be available to the band members, Mr. Gilbert stated.

MEETING AT PLEASANT VALLEY WELL ATTENDED

Feature Program of Year Held Thursday at Grange Hall

Approximately ninety people were present for the meeting sponsored by the Pleasant Valley grange, held at the grange hall last Thursday evening. The Oakland quartete, Wade H. Hinebaugh, Jesse Ashby, Reeves Blandford and Cecil Smith, with Wm. Gibson at the piano, opened the program with several numbers. Band Weber gave a piano selection and the Browning Brothers, Abel and Tom, accompanied by Fred Shank, made the musical part of the program complete.

Rev. I. S. Middaugh spoke on "The True Picture of Farm Life," and pointed out that the farm furnishes more than a living to those who have a true philosophy of life. Lowell Loomis presented an entertaining number entitled "Looking at the Wedding," which was enjoyed. Logan Weber of the Agriculture class of Oakland High school, spoke on "Opportunities in the Vocation of Farming." O. T. Glaser, lecturer of Pleasant Valley Grange, acted as chairman.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee were served. The next meeting will be held December 5, it was announced. The committee wished to thank everyone who contributed to the program in any way.

TALKS ON HEALTH WORK HEARD BY CIVIC MEMBERS

Methods Used in Schools in Teaching Health Described

The Civic Club met November 26 at the homes of Mrs. J. L. Polbeck and Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh at which time an interesting and instructive program, in charge of Mrs. George Sprague, was heard.

Mrs. W. W. Grant gave a survey of what the three Oakland schools are teaching about health. In the first and second grades cleanliness, posture, etc., are taught chiefly through the dramatization method. The third and fourth grades use the drill method in stressing health points; also health charts and outlining of balanced meals. While in the fifth and sixth grades one finds the study of weight, malnutrition, their causes and cures.

The high school studies more intensively meal planning, figuring of calories as required by those in various occupations, and Home Economics in general.

Mrs. W. B. Brock told of health as carried on in our colleges where hygiene courses are required as well as compulsory lectures given by doctors. A large number of colleges offer a complete course in Domestic Sciences and Arts and are graduating trained students to further this work.

Miss Rhesa King in speaking of health from the nurses standpoint pointed out the types of food in connection with their value to our bodily need and growth.

Mrs. George Sprague outlined the work the Government of the U. S. is doing to aid health by pure food laws, food testing laboratories, fighting insects, and government pamphlets.

Speaks at Rotary

Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, was the speaker at the week's meeting of the Oakland Rotary club held last Friday at the William-James hotel. She spoke on 4-H work in Garrett county.

Miss Anna J. Stemple, local 4-H girl, also gave a short talk on her work, and members of the Oakland club sang some 4-H songs.

C. Coe Turns

The automobile owned and driven by Lester Green Coe, overturned on the Oakland-Accident highway, about three and one-half miles south of Accident, last Thursday evening about 8 o'clock. The car skidded on the ice as the driver was attempting to negotiate the sharp turn at that point. No one was injured. The car was taken to Accident for repairs.

Wm. J. Alexander, Oakland, Calif., who is visiting relatives in and near Accident, was an Oakland visitor last Saturday.

Church Attendance Increases

Attendance in the Oakland churches continues to show an increase as a result of a house to house visitation some weeks ago. Last Sunday was observed as "Roll Call" Sunday when the rolls of the several churches were either audibally called or called in prayer.

Next Sunday is "Advent," when appropriate messages on the birth of Christ will be preached.

MARYLAND CHAMPIONS TO BEGIN TOUR THURSDAY

The party will be accompanied by J. H. Carter, county agricultural agent, Garrett county, Oakland, representing the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, and L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent of the Baltimore and Ohio.

The tour is being sponsored by the Baltiomre and Ohio as part of its agricultural development program and in cooperation with the University of Maryland.

The winners were chosen jointly by E. G. Jenkins, State club leader, University of Maryland, and O. E. Quivey, general agricultural agent, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

TRAINING COURSE ENDS; FORTY RECEIVE CREDITS

Standard Teacher Training School Completed Last Friday

The second Standard Teacher training school, held in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland, closed last Friday evening with appropriate ceremony when Dr. Robert Davids, Baltimore, dean of the school, granted credits to 10 pupils who had successfully completed the courses offered.

The school was conducted under the auspices of the Oakland Community Council of Religious education, with Dr. Davids, general secretary of the Maryland State Council, in charge.

There were 55 registrations from Oakland, Mt. Lake Park, Red House, and Crellin. Three courses were offered, "Teaching Religion," by Dr. Robert Davids; "The Rise of Ancient Israel," by Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank, Oakland; and "Primary Methods," by Miss Lillian McCormick.

"The school was considered a success in every respect," Rev. C. A. Shilke, Lutheran pastor, said. "Much interest was shown by the community and it is hoped that another one can be conducted during the winter months.

Bear Is Killed At Red House Sunday Evening

A seventy-five pound cub bear was killed on the farm of Greeley Janoske, Red House, eight miles north of Oakland, Sunday evening, after it had been treed by a dog.

By the commotion the dog was making Mr. Janoske thought that he had probably cornered a muskrat, raccoon or some other small animal, and when he went to investigate he took his .22 calibre rifle. He discovered the bear in a tree, and returning to the house he got his .32, with which he shot the bruin. It was exhibited in Gortner and Oakland Sunday night.

Dance Given at Manhattan

Misses Margaret Kochenderfer, Martha Engle and Edna Kraft, entertained Saturday night in honor of Miss Rhesa M. King, with a dance, given in the Manhattan Hotel Ball room from 8:30 until 12 o'clock. About 30 couples were present from Oakland and nearby towns. Music for the program of dances was furnished by the Harmony Boys of Oakland.

OAKLAND RAILBREAK MAY BE COSTLY TO B. & O. R. R.

Seven Miles of Trackage Under Suspicion and Observation

A striking example of the length to which modern railroads go in safety methods was contained in a discussion by H. R. Laughlin, general superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad of the rail break and subsequent derailment of seven cars near Oakland on Monday night.

As the result of the break, which was caused by a "transverse fissure," seven miles of track are under close observation and may be replaced with new rails.

According to Mr. Laughlin, a transverse fissure is a systematic flaw extending for a considerable length or throughout the entire length of a rail. While modern steel manufacturing methods produce many rails with but a small percentage containing transverse fissures, this particular defect cannot be detected by any known method.

Consequently when one develops the entire number of rails which came from the same "heat" of steel at the mills is under suspicion.

When the break occurred Monday night and the cause assigned to this particular defect, the local offices of the road at once searched their records to learn where all the rails from the same heat had been laid. Four miles of the rails are laid through Oakland to points east and west embracing this length of track and three more miles are near Greenspring, Mr. Laughlin said. The rails were laid during the past summer.

Should another break occur in either of these sections the entire heat of rails might be removed. Should five breaks occur the entire heat of rails would certainly be removed.

Mr. Laughlin further explained the [illegible] rails from each heat were laid [illegible] system of rail layout by system the main important trackage. Those from the middle of the heat are reserved for high speed trackage and curves.

Photographs of the break, particularly those of the cross sections, on file in Mr. Laughlin's office at Cumberland showed clearly the systematic flaw in the rail removed from the track near Oakland following the derailment and wrecking of the cars on Monday night.

MISS KING TO LEAVE FOR WIDER FIELD ON MONDAY

Public Health Nurse Will Take up Work at Greensburg, Pa.

Miss Rhesa M. King, public health nurse, who recently presented her resignation to the Board of County Commissioners, will leave Monday for Greensburg, Pa., to assume her new duties. She will be supervising nurse for that city and part of Westmoreland county in which Greensburg is situated, and will have four or five nurses under her charge.

Prior to her appointment to Garrett county, Miss King was superintendent of nurses at the Memorial hospital in Winston-Salem, N. C. She has been in Garrett county practically four years, during which time she accomplished much work, as was shown by her records and reports.

Miss Ruth Martin, R. N., who has been doing health work in Kitzmiller health center for the past several months, will fill the vacancy, and will assume her duties on January 1. Miss Martin, prior to her work in Kitzmiller, spent one and one-half years in Mineral county, W. Va., in rural health work, and prior to that one year in Cincinnati where she was engaged in public health work.

Mr. Emroy Bolden, who purchased the Matthews property on Second street, opposite the William-James Hotel and greatly improved it at the time, is still engaged in adding comforts and necessities, a force of workmen being now engaged in installing a heating plant.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE TO BE ON THURSDAY A. M.

Date of Annual Union Meeting Changed from Wednesday Evening

The annual union Thanksgiving service of the Oakland churches will be held this year in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, it has been announced. It was announced on Sunday that the service would be held Wednesday evening, but this date was later changed to Thursday morning by an agreement of the ministers.

Rev. B. T. Trevey, pastor of the Methodist church, will preach the sermon. Rev. C. A. Shilke, Lutheran church, will preside, and Rev. W. B. Brock, Presbyterian church, will read the President's proclamation, read the scripture and offer the prayer.

"This service should be attended by a large number of Oakland people," Rev. Trevey said. "We have every reason for Thanksgiving to God, who gives us all things."

The offering to be taken at this service will be turned over to Miss Rhesa M. King, public health nurse, who will use it for the relief of the worthy poor and distressed of Oakland and vicinity.

Released From Custody

James Cummings and Howard Coats, the two young men who had been held in the county jail at Kingwood, W. Va., since November 16, as possible witnesses in the automobile accident which happened near Aurora on Friday, November 15, and in which Claude Lipscomb lost his life, were released last Thursday and allowed to return to their homes.

James is the owner of the car which was being driven by his brother, Alonzo, when the accident occurred, and Coats was riding with Alonzo at the time. The latter has not been apprehended.

PYTHIANS WILL COMBINE CELEBRATION OF EVENTS

Veterans' Night and Rededication Services Will Be Held

Veterans' night will be observed and rededication of Castle hall will take place at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge, to be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock, according to A. G. Gortner, a member of the committee in charge.

Veterans, those who have been in the lodge for 25 year continuously, will be honored with appropriate badges of their rank. Eight members are eligible for the award.

Benj. H. McKinley, supreme representative, Baltimore; George W. Stevens, grand chancellor, Baltimore; A. Elwood Martak, grand keeper of records and seal, Baltimore; Col. Nelson W. Rusecler, supreme representative; will be present and give short addresses fitting to both occasions.

The Harmony Boys, the Oakland quartet, and Mrs. Fred A. Thayer, Jr., will furnish the musical numbers. There will be light refreshments. W. W. Dawson, D. W. Walter and A. G. Gortner are members of the committee in charge.

COURT OF HONOR AWARDS MERIT BADGES TO SCOUTS

Four Scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1 Pass Examinations

Four scouts were awarded five merit badges at the regular monthly meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday evening at the City hall, Oakland. There were three first class scouts and one second class.

The following awards were made: Harley Dawson, hog and pork production; Richard Glotfelty, physical development and pathfinding; Robert Altstetter, swimming; Donald Stemple, leathercraft.

Members of the Court present included Harland L. Jones, chairman; H. A. Loraditch, Henry Lauer, G. J. Altstetter, and Dr. W. W. Grant. It was decided to hold no meeting in December on account of the Christmas holidays. Election of officers of the Court will be held at the meeting in January, the chairman stated.

The regular scout meeting Friday night will be given over to playing games. This is done once each month in order to make the meetings more interesting. John McIntire was made a second class scout at the last regular meeting.

MORE THAN $17,000 TO BE PAID BY CHRISTMAS CLUB

Checks of 250 Depositors to be Mailed December 1—New Clubs Start December 9

More than $17,000 will be sent out from the Oakland banks on December 1, in Christmas Savings checks, it was announced today. This is about $1,000 less than was sent out last year, but $2,000 higher than in 1927. This amount will be given out to more than 250 depositors in the First National Bank and the Garrett National Bank, it is said.

Approximately $600,000,000 will be distributed by more than 8,000 banking and financial institutions, according to Herbert F. Rawll, president of the Christmas club, a division of the National Bank Service corporation. The average amount received by each individual will be $50, it is estimated.

The Christmas Savings club feature was established in Garrett county about four years ago by the First National Bank, Oakland, and three years ago this policy was introduced by the Garrett National Bank, Oakland, and by the First State Bank, Grantsville.

Many of the checks which will be received on December 1 will be cashed and used in the immediate vicinity, while others will find their way into the stockings of Garrett county residents.

Small Amount Each Week

By depositing small amounts each week those who have taken advantage of the class now have a sufficient amount to meet the demands of Christmas.

Both the First National and the Garrett National Banks will begin next year's Christmas Savings account on Monday, December 9. There are clubs for 25 cents each week; 50 cents, $1.00, $2.00, $5.00 and so on. The money deposited will draw three percent interest.

J. M. Falkenstein and Henry Abernathy Painfully Hurt in Automobile Wreck

Returning to Oakland last Friday evening from Aurora, W. Va., where he had been engaged at work, Mr. J. M. Falkenstein, of near town, was painfully cut and bruised about his face and eye, and Henry Abernathy, of Aurora, W. Va., owner and driver of the car, which skidded on the road and ran into a tree near Gortner, had his knee badly bruised and was otherwise injured and has been confined to his bed ever since.

The cause of the car skidding is unknown, as the roadway is perfectly straight. Mr. Falkenstein was thrown against the front seat of the car after its sudden stop when it collided with the roadside tree and Mr. Abernathy's injuries came from contact with the steering gear and front part of the car. Mr. Falkenstein was brought to Oakland where he received surgical attention by Dr. Hinebaugh. Mr. Abernathy returned to his Aurora home and was attended by a physician in that place.

Strawberry Hill led the two-teacher schools with a percentage of 98.2 while Kempton led the graded schools with 97.7 percent.

Kempton was the only high school in the county above the standard of 91 percent, Kitzmiller having 93.8; Grantsville, 93.5; Accident, 92.0; Oakland, 91.7; and Friendsville, 91.2.

Oakland Grammar school had a percentage of 92.2, with an average daily attendance of 231 pupils. Oakland high school had an average daily attendance of 316.

Lesson for December 1

THE CHRISTIAN HOME IN A MODERN WORLD

LESSON TEXT—Deut. 6:3-9; Matt. 19:3-9; Luke 2:46-52; 24:28-32; Eph. 6:1-9; II Tim. 1:3-5; II Tim. 14:15, Luke 2:40-52.

GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Pleasing God in Our Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Pleasing God in Our Home.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living as Christians at Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Home: Its Helps and Hindrances.

Instead of an exposition of the printed text, as suggested by the lesson committee, it will be better to make a synthetic study of the salient points of the several reference texts proposed by the committee.

I. The Makers of the Home (Matt. 19:3-9).

The home is a divine institution. Its makers are the man and the woman joined together in holy wedlock, according to God's primary law—one man for one woman and one woman for one man.

1. The union is so vital that God declared the man and the woman to be one flesh (Gen. 2:21).

2. Divorce was not in God's thought for man (v. 6).

It was only permitted because of sin (v. 8). Divorce has the disapproval of God and right thinking men and women.

3. Fornication the one and only ground for divorce (v. 9).

Laxness of the divorce laws causes the Christian to hang his head in shame

II. The Ideal Child (Luke 2:40-52).

Marriage has as its primary purpose the propagation of the race. Children are to be desired and expected. Christ stands as the ideal child in the home.

1. His central interest (v. 49).

"My father's business." Being conscious of His Mission He entered the temple to inquire into the meaning of the ordinances of God's house.

2. His obedience (v. 51).

Though fully conscious of His divine being and mission, He went down to Nazareth and lived a life of filial obedience.

3. His development (v. 52).

(1). Bodily—"Increased in stature." His body became strong. A strong, healthy body is the inalienable right of every child, and parents are obligated to provide food and raiment such as to preserve their health.

(2) Mental—"Increased in wisdom." As a normal human being, his mental powers developed.

(3) Spiritual—"The grace of God was upon him," and He increased in favor with God and man. How beautiful is the picture of the symmetrical development of the Savior of men.

III. The Place of God's Word in the Home (Deut. 6:3-9).

The home has a vital teaching function. The child develops slowly; remains in the home for a long time to give an opportunity to be taught the things of God.

1. The central truth to be taught (vv. 4, 5).

This is twofold. The unity of God (v. 4) and man's supreme obligation to God (v. 5).

2. How the truth was to be kept alive (vv. 6-9).

(1) It was to be diligently taught to the children (v. 7).

(2) It was to be talked of everywhere and under all circumstances.

(3) It was to be bound upon the hand and placed as frontlets between the eyes (v. 8).

(4) It was to be written upon the posts of the houses (v. 9).

IV. The Early Training of the Child (II Tim. 1:3-5; 3:14, 15).

Timothy was taught the Scriptures from his childhood by a godly mother and grandmother. The Holy Spirit uses the Word of God in the salvation of children as well as adults.

V. Christ a Guest in the Home (Luke 24:28-32).

At the urgent invitation of certain disciples, Christ tarried in their home and sat at meat with them. Christ will come into the home and bless those who sincerely invite Him.

VI. Mutual Relation of the Members of the Home (Eph. 6:1-9).

Each member has certain rights and privileges which must be respected. Children are to obey and honor their parents. Parents are not to provoke their children to wrath, but to bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Servants are to be obedient to their masters and to render service as unto the Lord. Masters are to show consideration to their servants, since they themselves are servants to the heavenly Master.

Faith

When we are confronted by misery which needs relief, suffering which requires sympathy, folly which should be reproved, ignorance waiting for counsel, sin pleading forgiveness, the true prayer is, "Lord, increase our faith." Nothing is impossible to faith.

A Daily Thought

I say to you truly, the heart of him who loves is a paradise on earth; he has God in himself, for God is love.—Lamennais.

The First Thanksgiving

(From Painting by J. L. G. Ferris in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.)

In Plymouth colony, after the first dreadful winter, of 1621, summer brought a plentiful crop and in the fall Governor Bradford set aside a day for thanksgiving. Great were the preparations—the few women in the colony spent days in baking and cooking and even the children helped. As guests, more than four score Indians were invited, who furnished venison and wild turkey for their share of the feast. The tables were set out of doors and the company sat about them as one big family. It was the first Thanksgiving.

Hand of God Reached Out to Pilgrims

The Pilgrim Fathers were more than pioneers in body. They were spiritual pioneers. And this it was that sustained them when so many others failed.

And so their homely Odyssey of exploit and discovery is thrilling. From the ship, after its arrival in Provincetown harbor, where they first thought to land, a small boat went scouting. It encountered Indians, who fled. It brought back baskets of corn discovered buried in the sand. This seed it was that saved them from starvation later. Six months afterward (as they had purposed when they took it) they found the owners and paid them for it. Next the small boat started on a circuit of Cape Cod bay.

"The weather was very cold and it frose so hard as the spread of the sea lighting on their coats, they were as if they had been glased." They camped ashore in a barricade of logs. At midnight came an alarm. It was only wolves. But at dawn, after prayers and breakfast, the Indians made a furious attack. They beat them off and gained the boat. Next it began to snow and rain. Wind increased and sea roughened. The rudder broke. "It was as much as 2 men could do to steere her with a cupple of oares." The storm grew worse. Night was coming on. Their mast broke in three pieces. They tried for a harbor. It proved a trap of deadly breakers. Rowing for their lives, they barely got clear. "And though it was very dark and rained sore, yet in the end they gott under the lee of a small island and remained there all night in safetie."

Promised Land at Last.

Next day on this island they kept their Sabbath. Monday they explored. Harbor, cornfields and running brooks. Here or nowhere was their Promised Land. They returned to their ship. On December 21 the Mayflower sailed into Plymouth harbor. The pilgrimage of these refugees had ended. The pilgrimage of a nation had begun.

Their settlement was a very Iliad of woes. One month after they landed, pestilence broke out. In three months half their number were dead.

"There was," says Governor Brauford, "but 6 or 7 sound persons, who, to their great commendations be it spoken, spared no pains, night or day, but with abundance of toyle and hazard of their own health, fetched them woode, made them fires, drest them meat, made their beads, washed their lothsome clothes, cloathed and uncloathed them; in a word, did all the homly and necessary offices for them which dainty and quesie stomacks cannot endure to hear named; and all this willingly and cheerfully, without any grudging in the least."

One of these good nurses was that gruff soldier, Capt. Myles Standish.

The Indians, meanwhile, skulked about and stole the colonists' farming implements. Finally came two who could speak broken English, which they had learned from crews that came to fish off the Maine coast. One was Samoset, the other Squanto. Both remained loyal friends, Squanto acting as interpreter and pilot, teaching them how to plant corn and where to fish. Through these two redskinned friends they met the great sachem, Massasoyt, with whom they made a treaty of peace which lasted half a century.

Additions to the Colony.

In April the Mayflower sailed for home. And now it was bare hands against the wilderness. Their first harvest seemed fairly good; beans and Indian corn to the amount of "a peck of meal a week to each person." Then in sailed the ship Fortune, adding 35 unprovided men to their number. By putting every one on half rations they would have barely enough to hold out for six months. Next, the warrior tribe of Narragansetts sent them "a bundl of arrows tyed aboute with a great snakeskine." It was declaration of war. They sent back the snakeskin with bullets in it. This gave the Narragansetts heart disease. They declined to accept the bullets and sent them back.

By May, 1622, food was exceedingly scarce. Anxiously, day after day, they scanned the blank sea horizon for a ship. The one that came was an open boat from a fishing vessel off Maine, bringing them no food, but seven more hungry mouths. Hard on the heels of this came a ship from England which unloaded 60 more men on the colony.

Providential Interventions.

And now begins that extraordinary series of interventions, seemingly pure chance, whereby time after time this colony, in its extremity of need is just saved from extinction. Bradford is so sure of their authorship and grows so used to them that he merely remarks: "Behold now another Providence of God." One or two or half a dozen befriendings of chance may be pure coincidence. But when these befriendings go on, month after month and year after year, seemingly in response to firm reliance that they will so come, then what are we to call them? Let us first consider the bare facts of this phenomenon.

The plight of the colony was now desperate. Actual famine impended. At this pinch [illegible] a boat bearing a letter from a man and a settlement they had never so much as heard of, telling them [illegible] could be had. They sent a [illegible] to the place directed and obtained enough to sustain them till the next harvest by dint of all living on one-quarter of a pound of bread a day.

The harvest of 1622, when it did come, was meager. Markets they had none, and no commodities to trade for corn from the Indians. Again the cadaverous face of famine glared them in the eye. And, again, a seeming chance befriended them. An adventuring ship, sent to explore and trade, sailed in with a supply of English beads and knives. These the colonists obtained in return for beaver skins, and traded off to the Indians for enough corn to keep them alive for another space.

Saved From Treachery.

Next came two befriendings of chance even more startling. The colonists hear that their friend, the great Sachem, Massasoyt, is ill. They send him food, medicines and attendance. He recovers. Visited by compunction he tells his benefactors that he had been party to a conspiracy to wipe out both the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth settlements. As if to engrave the faith in an unseen power on the very hearts of these religious folk, at the same time comes a messenger from the Massachusetts Bay colony with the same tidings, and under the following extraordinary circumstances: he knew not one foot of the way to Plymouth, yet he reached the place. On the journey, however, he lost his direction, and this was well, for the Indians were pursuing him and had he known the trail and kept to it, he never would have reached Plymouth. Ignorance itself befriended them.

Then back came their grisly visitor, famine. Corn they had none. They were reduced to living on ground nuts, such shellfish as they could dig at low tide, what wild fowl they could shoot, and now and then a deer. When spring did come there was a drouth from May 21 to mid-July. Their crops were burning up. They appointed a day for prayer. On the afternoon of that very day, fell "sweet and gentle showers."

True to Their Principles.

In their dealings with that riffraff humanity which forever gravitates to frontier settlements these religionists adhered to a principle which the doubting world proclaims to be lunatic. And they proved it to be sane. Time after time they were wronged and betrayed by people whom they had befriended at grievous cost to themselves. Their betrayers would shortly come to grief, straggle back to Plymouth, beg forgiveness and fresh assistance, receive both; then turn around and betray their benefactors again, and again come to grief. Such were the episodes of the scoundrels Thomas Weston, John Lyford and John Oldham, and the untrustworthy steward, Isaac Allerton. All these and many more stabbed the colony in the back; yet the colonists always forgave the injury and recovered from the wound. It was as if they deliberately "tempted Providence"; as if they said: "We are told that God takes care of His own. Let us try it." All that human heads and hands could do they did. This done, they befriended their enemies, forgave their foes, and, for the rest, relied on Providence.—Boston Globe.

God, I Thank Thee for This

Though I have lost the one most dear to me,
I still have unbound faith, Oh, God, in Thee;
And know that somewhere in your starry sky
She watches lovingly and guides me . . . Why
I feel her loved presence everywhere,
And when at last I climb the golden stair
She will be there to take me to your throne.
But first we'll kiss and talk awhile alone
Of things that happened since she went away;
I know we'll have so many things to say.

L'ENVOI

With head bowed in prayer, I give thanks to Thee
God for your promise of Eternity.

Once more the liberal year laughs out
O'er richer stores than gems or gold,
Once more with harvest-song and shout
Is Nature's bloodless triumph told.

Garrett County Sheriff And Antiques He Treasures

WILLIAM D. CASTEEL

Garrett County's Sheriff Gains Fame As Antique Collector

William D. Casteel Has Penchant For But Two Things—Gathering Violators Of The Law And Obtaining Antiques For Jail Home.

A special writer for the Baltimore Sun, here a short time ago, secured a photograph of Sheriff William D. Casteel and his roomful of antiques in the sheriff's home. The article appearing in the Sun Tuesday morning was accompanied by the two photographs and read as follows:

Sheriff William D. Casteel, of Oakland, who at the time of his election three years ago was the youngest man to ever hold the post of Sheriff of Garrett county, has two hobbies.

One is the collection of violators of the law and the other is collecting antiques and curios.

The criminal docket of Garrett county shows that the youthful sheriff, who is just 33 years old, has had considerable success in the former and a room in the county jail wherein Sheriff Casteel lives when not busy chasing down criminals proves that as a collector of antiques he has few equals in the county.

Room Like Curio Shop.

That room reminds one of a combination antique and curio shop over which hovers a domestic touch that gives it more than usual charm.

Hardly a greater or finer collection of such articles can be found in Maryland than those now adorning the Sheriff's room in the residential portion of the county jail. One visiting his room would first possibly have his attention drawn to two handsome beds, both of which were made in the Revolutionary War days. The beds were put together with wooden pegs instead of nails. In liu of springs, ropes are laced from side to side, holding the mattresses.

A collection of rifles is prominently displayed. One of the firearms was manufactured in the year 1811; another was used in the John Brown raid at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and in a conspicuous place hangs the rifle with which Mabel Swann, of Baltim killed Daniel Mosser, near Swanton, three years ago. She is now serving a term in the Maryland House of Correction and is the only woman ever tried for murder in Garrett county.

Prizes Leg Cuff

Another curio is a link of a leg cuff worn by John Smith, negro, who was convicted of murdering Alex Harden during the construction of the West Va. Central railroad (now the Western Maryland) in the little town of Gorman, twelve miles south of Oakland, forty-six years ago. Smith broke jail and, while pulling the door open, James Cropp, the warden at that time, slashed him in the abdominal region with a case knife. The Garrett County Guards, of the Maryland National Guard, were called out and surrounded him for two days within a quarter-mile of the jail. Smith, thinking he was going to die from the injury, surrendered.

On the first Friday of November, 1883, the negro was executed. His body was buried in the jailyard, immediately to the west of the building, and on the piece of ground upon which the annex to the high school building is being erected. While breaking ground during the present week for the foundation of the building his coffin was plowed up.

Other Antiques

In one corner of the room stands a grandfather's clock, which is said to be 185 years old. This is borne out from the fact that there is a notation of the repairer that the clock was repaired 120 years ago.

There are two spinning wheels, one of which is said to be 80 and the other 100 years of age. A powder-horn used by the famous Meshach Browning, of Garrett county; a German harp 125 years of age; a Paul Revere lantern, several old-time dressers, mounted heads of white tail and mule deer moose. An old flint-lock pistol dug up near Grantsville, a grease lamp, dart gun, pirate's sword, candle molds and snuffers, an iron tea kettle made in Wheeling, W. Va., in the year 1863, old rocking chairs, bed quilts and other antiques, many of which have interesting histories, and a set of roped-bottom chairs are included in the Sheriff's collection.

And he is still on the job of collecting—both prisoners and antiques.

AN APPETITE FOR FRESH AIR SHOULD BE ACQUIRED

Health Department Stresses Aids in Keeping Fit

"As the frosty days come, the temptation to shut out the air and slump into warm quarters is so general that it would be a good thing if each of us could develop as pronounced an appetite for fresh air as we have for our favorite foods and then should insist with just as much vigor upon having that appetite satisfied. We know when we are 'food hungry' but half the time when we are drowsy or droopy, we don't realize that what we are really suffering from is 'air hunger'," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health said, in stressing the importance of deep breathing, fresh air, and good posture, as aids in keeping fit.

He continued, "out of a total of 3,755 children from five to seven years old who were examined by the Bureau of Child Hygiene during the spring and summer months, in preparation for their admission to school, 252 had marked postural defects. That was one out of every fifteen. Much of the bad posture of young children is due to undernourishment—not from lack of food, but from poorly balanced meals. Much of the girls and in grown-ups is due to bad posture in the older boys and habitual slouching or slumping, contracting the chest, taking in an inadequate supply of air, getting into bad habits of sitting, standing and walking.

"A good many of our daily dozens, call for a round of breathing exercises at an open window, in the early morning. This is thoroughly worth while, but we don't want it to end there. Deep breathing should be a habit. For the effect of deep breathing is cumulative, like the house that Jack built. You cannot breathe in deeply—satisfying your hunger for fresh, clean air— and sit or stand in a slouchy position. To enjoy to the full, your draught of fresh air—in doors or out of doors— you have to hold your head up.

"Almost unconsciously, this brings the whole framework of the body into better position—shoulders back, chest out, abdomen flat. This in turn gives greater room for expansion of the lungs, free action of the heart, and better circulation of the blood, insures better digestion through the toning up of the muscles supporting the whole digestive apparatus. In other words, deep breathing helps to tone up the whole mechanism. It has another effect—it tones up the courage and self respect of the individual who habitually practices it.

Nothing else imbues one so much with that glowing feeling of self-satisfaction on these chilly damp evenings, as an inviting easy chair, beside which are one's favorite books and magazines. Mellow light bathing the ensemble with an irresistable WELCOME.

A hypothetical picture? Yes, in a way but one so easy to paint as an actuality that you should no longer deny yourself the pleasure of adequate, unobstrusive light.

TIMES OUT OF JOINT?

Are the times out of joint, just at present? If one were to accept present conditions at their face value the answer would have to be in the affirmative.

In France we have recently seen the fall of the government, and the formation of a new and untried one only after grave difficulty, bringing into being a cabinet which threatens a fall once more at the least provocation. In Germany, the Nationalists are on the warpath again. After the agreement on the Young plan the Kaiserites, fortunately in the minority, have succeeded in getting enough signatures to bring about a plebiscite on the ratification of the Young plan. They hope by this means to repudiate the reparations agreement in its entirety and to throw Central Europe once more into chaos. True it is that the Nationalists, unless all signs fail, will not have enough votes to bring this deplorable condition about but just the same Germany will have to go through a bitter campaign and an expensive election, and the times call for a strong guiding hand to take the place of the late Dr. Von Stresemann. And the effect on France is not reassuring.

In England, the Labor government seems at the present strongly entrenched because of Prime Minister MacDonald's successful visit to the United States, but there are a number of ticklish questions in the offing, among the more important being the solution of the unemployment problem and the recognition of Soviet Russia. Italy is peaceful because the iron hand of Mussolini is still at the throttle, while for Russia there is little to be said except that the communist autocracy is still busy in every part of the world seeking to undermine governmental solidarity. The present pitiable condition in China is an eloquent example.

Here in the United States we have our troubles, too, though they are not of so serious a nature. But it must be regarded as more than regrettable that after a campaign in which there was no party backing the principle of free trade, the anti-tariff advocates seem to be about to get their way in preventing more tariff legislation because of the peculiar situation in the United States Senate. In our own country it would seem at least possible that party government, through which we have functioned for nearly a century and a half, may go by the boards and be succeeded by the European bloc system.

Yet after all, things may not be so bad as they seem. The world has a way of muddling through its difficulties. Perhaps after all it is only the politicians who have the real cause to worry. The people have a way, given time to think things over, of settling questions in a manner which is not always satisfactory to the politicians but highly agreeable to the best interests of the country.

AMERICAN STABILITY

The action of President Hoover in arranging a series of conferences of the heads of business, agriculture and labor interests, to prepare and discuss plans for a constructive business revival following the debacle in the stock market, has properly been received with universal commendation by newspapers and statesmen of both great political parties. If the meeting can do no more than "dispell foolish pessimism" and stabilize the public itself, it will have done a great deal, for after all the term panic represents more or less of a state of mind, feeding as it does on terrors which are usually for the greater part imaginary. But it is likely that the conference will do even more than this and that constructive measures will be planned looking for an accelerated business pace in 1930.

The steadiness of American industry in the face of the recent debacle in the stock markets is the most remarkable evidence it would be possible to adduce of the soundness of the American commercial structure.

With a twenty billion dollar shrinkage in securities values, and all the fear that went with it, there have been no important failures of banks or other business houses.

While panic prevailed in the stock markets, American business enterprises were reporting increased sales, expanding operations. This was true even of institutions whose stocks were being disposed of at prices representing less than inventories and cash on hand.

There never before has been a stock market panic so great as the recent one, and there has never been a stock market panic which so little affected the usual course of business.

It is true that billions of dollars have passed from the hands of some speculators to the hands of others. But the money has not flown the country. It is still here and will continue to be at work.

When a cyclone or earthquake has occurred, the inclination is to believe that the region affected will never prosper again. And the history of such calamities shows that in an incredibily short time the effect has entirely passed away.

In the absence of any serious industrial repercussions the recent stock market stampede will soon be forgotten, except by those who have been injured in it. And many of these will have learned a lesson upon which they can in the future earn larger dividends than were promised by the stocks they held and lost.

The lesson of the recent disaster is that we have a commercial fabric which defies disaster. It proves that if there was panic in some quarters, there was courage in others. It likewise proves that while American prosperity can be made to lag or hesitate, it cannot be made to stop.

Today we have as many factories running, as many banks open, as many merchandise establishments doing business, as many fertile acres awaiting cultivation as ever before in the history of our country. And we have the same industrious, inventive, enterprising people, to whom nothing is impossible. The European croakers who are predicting that because of this disaster the United States has started the downward way have been preaching that doctrine for a century, and have seen the repudiation of their prophecies by events.

American business conditions are sound. Better than this they rest on a solid foundation which disasters can shake, but not destroy. Confidence in the future is the life-blood of prosperity; the American people still have confidence in their country, their government and in their fellow Americans. Such confidence is invincible.

Letters Are Sent to Maple Sugar Producers

Letters notifying all Garrett county maple sugar producers of the organization meeting, to be held in Accident on December 17, were sent out this week from the office of John H. Carter, county agent.

The importance of having an organization, and a name for the maple sugar products was stressed in the circular. "All advertised products have products and are known from coast to coast," Mr. Carter said, "and there should be a standard name for Garrett county's products so that they may become well known."

The meeting will begin at 2 p. m., and supper will be served by the Ladies' Aid at Accident. The organization will be formed, a constitution adopted, officers elected, and a name and label decided upon, at the December meeting, and it is hoped that all maple sugar and syrup producers will attend.

A bricklayer got a marriage license this week, and his middle name was "Rock." That's awfully close to predestination.

March of Progress

The fellow in the Maryland theatre who used to read the film subtitles out loud now sits there at the talkies and helps the hero to sing the theme song.

Nothing further has been heard from Madame Illig, R. N., since she handed "Slim" Shaw her card last week. She may return however, at a more opportune time.

Shorty Gortner—"Why didn't you cut off his head or shoot him?"

Well, even if it was only a 75 pound cub, it would have been enough to make all the root hairs of Garrett county's famous hunters tingle and squirm, had they been the ones to discover it.

County's First Thanksgiving

The good ship Mayapple, belonging to the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work, had sailed for several days in Green Glade of the mighty lake of the Hydro Electric company. "Slim" Shaw, president, stood on the poop-deck, with eyeglasses in hand. He had sighted land only once through the dense fog, but it wasn't Thanksgiving Day yet and he couldn't land. Miles Standish, alias Joe Gonder, fretted and fumed at the delay. "My warriors must find a turkey. What is Thanksgiving Day without turkey meat and a couple of redskins to share it?" Standish yelps.

"What has that to do with Priscilla?" John Alden, alias Betty Dawson, bawled out.

"What ho?" was heard from the poop-deck. "We are passing the Boy Scout camp. We'll soon be able to sight Glenndale bridge and then whoopee, home again."

"We'll land at the Commodore's," shouted Andalusia, one of the Gold Dust twins. "Nix," hailed another pilgrim papa, "Soldier Halsey's place is where this anchor is whiffed."

In the ensuing argument, all the papas forgot to give thanks and a strong west wind blew them into Meadon Mountain run, where they were tossed about until good ship Mayapple became pie for the waves.

Massasoit and his cohorts, in place of Pilgrims for dinner, had to catch a million or so of those d---d tinch. They gave thanks that they were no smaller. Continued next Thanksgiving.

Eight of the permits granted this week were issued on Saturday, showing that the end of the week was still the most popular time for weddings. One license issued was marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused a permit.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

Farm Egg Record Project

The poultry calendars which have been prepared for the Maryland Farm Egg Record Project are expected to be available for mailing to applicants for them within a few days.

Only 250 calendars are being printed as their cost limits the distribution of them to only those signifying their intention to use them as they are designed to be used.

If you want one of these calendars, and want particulars on keeping records, make application to your county agricultural agent or the Extension Service, College Park, at once before they are exhausted.

What the Extension Service Will Do

1. Send to each cooperator a summary of reports each month, which will show the lowest, highest and average records for month.

2. Prepare for you each month a letter containing helpful suggestions on poultry management. This report and letter is to replace the present monthly poultry letter after December 1.

3. Send a poultry specialist to visit your farm as often as practicable to look over your poultry plant and offer suggestions on management and improvements.

4. Have a poultry or farm management specialist meet as often as practicable with you and a group of cooperators to discuss your records and poultry problems, provided sufficient interest in this work is manifested in your community.

Feeding The Layer

Since there are high and low producers in all breeds and varieties, all pullets showing general indications of unthriftiness and slow development should be culled from the flock and disposed of. Only early, well grown pullets should be kept for layers, and these should have a good supply of surplus flesh before being placed in the laying house early in November. Good condition of flesh may be obtained by feeding a liberal allowance of corn and wheat for a few weeks previous to housing the pullets. Continued heavy consumption of mash which is high in protein may stimulate production before the pullets are well matured.

The following ration was used in the egg laying contest conducted by the University of Maryland Experiment Station during the first three years. That the ration should be regarded as suitable for Maryland conditions is evidenced by the fact that production records for the respective years showed an average per hen of 177.8, 186.1 and 191.3 eggs.

Dry Mash

Wheat bran, 100 lbs.; wheat flour middlings, 100 lbs.; finely ground No. 2 oats, 100 lbs.; freshly ground No. 2 yellow corn, 100 lbs.; meat and bone meal (50-55 percent protein) 100 lbs.; salt (free from lumps) 2½ lbs.

Grain

Greens

Fresh greens, such as lawn clippings, young clover or alfalfa, garden waste, cabbage, chick weed and the like, when available, fed twice daily. When fresh greens were not available, a small daily feeding of clover or alfalfa hay, of good quality, was supplied.

Oyster shell, limestone grit and granulated bone in separate hoppers were kept before the birds at all times.

The mash should be fed dry on hoppers kept before the birds at all times. The grain should be fed in clean litter on the floor morning and night (heaviest feeding at night), and in such amounts as will cause the birds to consume approximately equal parts of mash and grain by weight or a slight excess of grain in cold weather.

Some prefer to feed mash moistened with hot water in cold weather. Care must be exercised in this respect not to overfeed, lest the birds be forced too hard, causing prolapsis of the oviduct, or physical breakdown.

The time used in preparing such mash could probably be used more profitably in cleaning dropping boards, drinking vessels, and maintaining proper sanitation in the house and about the premises.

AGED FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT AND PHYSICIAN VIEWS MUSIC AS VALUABLE AID IN TUBERCULOSIS BATTLE

BY CARL GOELZ
Central Press Correspondent.

Music is a valuable aid in the fight against tuberculosis, writes the Central Press Correspondent under a Charleston, West Va., date line.

This startling announcement of Dr. Fleming Howell, eighty-year-old physician of Buckhannon, West Va., appearing in a recent issue of the West Virginia Medical Journal, has provoked wide discussion in the state medical association and has attracted the interest of the nation at large.

This story concerning Dr. Howell and his remarkable announcement will be read with interest by his many friends in Oakland where he resided for a number of years prior to removing to Buckhannon.

Experiments of Fifteen Years

In his article "Relation of Musical Sounds to Physical Diagnosis," Dr. Howell has set forth the results of experiments to which he has devoted fifteen years of his life.

Leading medical authorities have read Dr. Howell's suggestion "that a tuning fork be employed to determine the progress of diseases of the lungs and pleural cavities" with startling amazement and his further claim that he has employed the method with excellent results has the medical fraternity in the state agog with wonder.

Not only tuberculosis, but suspected cases of pneumonia, can be detected and their progress or decline noted, the veteran physician says.

Dr. Howell explains that when a patient consults him, he obtains the "control" note of healthy tissue and then files this for comparison with later observations.

The Method Used.

When the patient's control note ascends the musical scale in subsequent visits, he invariably has found the patient growing worse, no matter what the other symptoms may be, Dr. Howell says, and vice versa.

Dr. Howell's paper gives a carefully planned method for noting results and adds that the experienced and even less experienced diagnotician, can readily apply the method to different conditions when he has learned the methods.

Dr. FLEMING HOWELL

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Claud A. Martin vs. Alberta A. Martin.
No. 2933 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That on the 5th day of June, 1912, he was married by the Rev. Frank Roberts in Mineral County, West Virginia, to Alberta A. Martin, the defendant, with whom he resided, for the most part in said Mineral County, West Virginia, until the 13th day of September, 1926; that ever since their said marriage your orator has behaved himself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate husband toward the said Alberta A. Martin; that there were no children born of said marriage; that for a long time prior to said 13th day of September, 1926, said defendant treated your orator in a cruel and harsh manner, was threatening and abusive in her conduct towards your orator and at times threatened to take his life so that he was in constant fear of bodily harm and injury from said defendant; that for the space of about one year before said date your orator and the said defendant, because of her said conduct, occupied separate rooms and did not live together as man and wife; that although your orator endeavored to continue living with said defendant her conduct finally became and was so intolerable and your orator's fear for his own safety so great that he was compelled on the 13th day of September, 1926, to have the house which your orator and said defendant occupied as a residence in Keyser, West Virginia, and to take up his residence elsewhere; that your orator has made every possible and proper effort to continue living with said defendant but found it impossible to continue said relationship; that the conduct on the part of the said defendant amounted to abandonment and to an entire deprival of your orator of his marital rights; that said abandonment and separation has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that your orator has been a resident of Garrett County, Maryland, continuously for more than two years, but the said defendant resides in Keyser, Mineral County, West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon this 6th day of November, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of November, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of December, 1929, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

An intimate closeup of Mr. Turkey Gobbler, the "National Bird" of America, who will lose his official head, with many other members of his family, to grace the tables of America on Thanksgiving day.

Wild Turkey Ranked King of the Woods

When Charles the Ninth of France sat down at his wedding banquet in the year 1570, he was probably entirely unaware that something was about to happen to him which had never happened to any other king of France. Perhaps his mother, Catherine of Medici, had knowledge of what was coming, for Catherine was a managing sort of woman and kept a watchful eye on everything that was done or planned in the royal palace. But chefs are an independent tribe, intolerant of interference with their affairs, and possibly only the palace chef and his underlings knew that a rare distinction was about to be conferred upon their exalted master.

History is silent as to these details. The important fact—vouched for by Charles Lucian Bonaparte, the French naturalist—is that Charles the Ninth at his wedding banquet consumed, doubtless with great gusto, liberal portions of a strange new fowl never before eaten in France—a large and extraordinary and very delicious bird known as a "Cock of the Indies."

Thereby Charles the Ninth of France established a precedent. That "Cock of the Indies" was, as a matter of fact, a turkey. No other French king, probably no other European king, had ever dined on turkey, and certainly no African or Asiatic potentate had enjoyed that experience. Hence Charles the Ninth's wedding banquet may be set down as one of the turning points of history. Then and there the turkey, noblest of his royal race, came into his own as the king of all table birds, fit provender for monarchs and for presidents.

Second to None on Earth.

He is not only the king of table birds. He is also, in his wild state, the king of game birds, certainly the noblest game bird of the Western hemisphere and probably unexcelled anywhere on this planet. "It has been given to but a few hunters," says Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological park, a great sportsman as well as a naturalist, "to seek this bird in its native forests, witness its splendid flight, and afterward shoulder a splendid gobbler weighing from 25 to 30 pounds for a ten-mile carry. He who has done this, however, will thereafter rank the bird as second to none on earth." To the naturalist and nature lover, also, the turkey is the feathered monarch of the woods, just as the eagle is the winged lord of the air. He is one of the wildest and in many ways one of the wisest of all woods creatures, and a glimpse of him in his wilderness haunts is an event never to be forgotten. I have seen him many times in the woods, for I am fortunate enough to live in a region where the wild turkey still exists in considerable numbers; but I have never yet seen him without experiencing that thrill of delight which only the wildest of wild things can impart. And so it will be until my woods-roaming days are over.

Wild Gobbler Beautiful Bird.

The man who knows only the domestic turkey, and who has seen that pompous and rather foolish swaggerer often in the barnyard, may find it a little difficult to understand why the sight of a turkey in the woods always and invariably makes a red-letter day. Let him go hunting wild turkeys—either with or without a gun—and he will understand why. As a matter of fact, the tame turkey of our barnyard and the wild turkey of our woods are two entirely different birds, differing not only in plumage (though in this respect the difference is slight) but also in form, in bearing, in mentality and in personality.

In the wild gobbler, for all his size and weight, there is something of a gamecock's slimness. His form is powerful and stalwart, yet beautifully molded. His bearing is proud and confident; yet one sees in him always a hair-trigger alertness which accentuates his wildness; and somehow that wildness is apparent in every line and curve of his body, in the poise of his head, in the glance of his eye, in the springiness of his stride. His rich coppery-bronze plumage glows and glints in the sun and in certain lights gleams like burnished gold; and when he is on guard (and it is no easy matter to catch a wild gobbler napping), he holds himself splendidly erect so that his tall form seems amazingly tall and that clean thoroughbred slimness which distinguishes him delights the eye of the beholder. There have been times when, fresh from a meeting in the woods with some superb bronze monarch of the sunlit glades, I have almost been ready to agree with old Ben Franklin that the turkey and not the bald eagle should have been chosen as our national symbol.

Not Match for Fierce Eagle.

Almost, but not quite; for the wild turkey, with all his stalwart grace and stateliness and pride of bearing, cannot compete with the eagle in those supreme attributes which render the "Bird of Jove" the most impressive of all the denizens of the air. The turkey's name is against him, too. It lacks both majesty and beauty, and to many people it implies, naturally enough, a Moslem origin. Moreover, familiarity too often breeds contempt, and though the wild turkey is as far superior to the domestic turkey as a gamecock is to a dominicker rooster, it is the barnyard bird that generally comes to mind when the turkey is mentioned. The turkey, whether wild or domestic, belongs not with the martial birds but with the game birds, a much less dashing and aggressive group than the eagles and falcons; and though he is fairly strong and swift on the wing for short distances, his power of flight is as nothing compared with that of the great eagle family. As for physical prowess, the largest turkey gobbler, though far outweighing the largest eagle, would have no chance in a combat with the latter bird. Not many miles from where this is being written such a combat once took place, though the eagle in this instance was not the bald eagle, our national bird, but a golden eagle. The turkey was already dead and the eagle was feasting on its body when a gunner shot the victor.

Belongs to New World.

Nevertheless, though it is probably just as well that Franklin did not have his way, the wild turkey might be regarded as, in some respects at any rate, a logical second choice for the symbol of the United States; and lumping the wild and the domestic forms together for the moment, the popularity of the turkey as a table delicacy in America and the prominence which it assumes at Thanksgiving and Christmas might well entitle it to be called "Our Other National Bird." Hence the history and natural history of the turkey constitute a subject of particular interest, especially in view of the fact that most Americans know very little about this bird which plays a gala part in our gastronomic lives, while a good deal of what they do know about it is not true.

Perhaps the most widespread error concerning the bird is the vague idea shared by thousands of people that the turkey came originally from Turkey. This is an utterly false notion. The turkeys are a distinctively New world family and were entirely unknown until the first explorers crossed the Atlantic. Possibly the turkey owes its misleading name to the habit once prevalent in England of calling every strange and foreign object Turk, Indian, and so forth; or possibly the English of those times saw in the headgear of this bird a resemblance to the headgear worn by the Turks. No one really knows how the name originated and most of the suggestions which have been offered are guesswork.

Another common error is the notion that the tame turkey is the descendant of the wild turkey of our woods. It is quite natural to assume that some person or persons in the early days caught some wild turkeys and tamed them and that from these our domestic turkeys are derived. Like a great many other plausible and widespread assumptions, however, this idea is incorrect.—Herbert Ravenel Sass, in American Legion Monthly.

MT LAKE PARK.

Knock on wood, but have you noticed the absence of fires at the Park? This is the first season for many years that the fire department has not been called upon to render aid in fighting fire, either in some building or on account of burning leaves. The fallen leaves, generally, have been cleaned up and burned or carted away. This has very much reduced the fire hazard. However, there are several properties with the leaves still piled high around the dwellings which constitute a menace, not only to the property of the owner, but to neighboring property as well. After the leaves are all down it is just as easy to dispose of them in the late fall as it is in the early spring—and a good deal safer.

From the window of the room in which we are writing we can see the new addition to the warehouse facilities of the Canning factory. ## The Enchanted Harp

By LAURA R. MONTGOMERY

(Copyright)

HENRIETTA, looking around the waiting room filled with teachers, experienced an acute fear. When there were such a number of applicants would she be able to get any kind of a position? And, if she did secure one would it be in a town that Dora would like? Dora, her younger sister was not fitted for work, or so she thought, and Dora took avid dislikes to places. Henrietta could have kept on at the Sawyer high school if Dora hadn't insisted upon a change of scene, saying in her gentle, pathetic voice that she hadn't much to amuse her. Her sister seldom had time, herself, to think of amusement because the work of the tiny apartment, plus her teaching took most of her strength.

All year Henrietta sewed and cooked and mended and got temporary positions during the school vacation. She was an expert stenographer and was seldom out of work more than a few days between offices. But, work as she might, the expenses kept her thinking.

Two years before Dora had heard a harpist at a concert and had come home possessed of a consuming desire to learn. The harp cost a thousand dollars which Henrietta paid for in monthly payments. Also she had contracted for a long term of lessons because Dora felt that harpsichord was exactly what she could do. And she was an apt pupil. The lovely long fingers with their delicate pink nails swept the golden strings beautifully, and in an amazingly short time she played simple melodies with both feeling and accuracy. To Henrietta, accustomed to the long hours of teaching, the harp seemed the entrance to a new and glorious world. She would forget her mending and sit entranced while Dora played and sang in her sweet thread-like voice.

It was through the harp music that Henrietta had her first chance at romance. Peter Pringle, in the flat below heard the music. He asked a mutual friend to present him and soon he ran in nearly every night.

Dora had high ideas about marriage and was, as she candidly told her sister, saving herself for the man who could give her wealth. She looked on at the embryo-romance with cool, amused eyes and was most agreeable about playing the songs that Peter loved. So friendship had progressed into courtship under the blue-eyed scrutiny of Dora, and Henrietta knew that she owed an immense debt to the music that had brought Peter to her.

But, although it was Dora's playing that formed a bond, it was also Dora who proved a barrier because the lovely, useless Dora was an expensive luxury and Peter earned only thirty dollars a week. Therefore the hope of marriage must be postponed until Dora, in some miraculous fashion, found the man of wealth who would relieve Henrietta of her load.

The employment placement clerk looked at Henrietta's shiny blue serge, glanced at her papers and then regarded her impersonally. "I'm afraid I can do nothing for you," she said coldly.

The girl went slowly out, almost stumbling against an old college friend who was wearing the very latest French hat and clothes to match.

"Good old Henrietta," she greeted. "I'm mighty glad to see you. Do you know I am going to give up teaching next year?"

"To be married?" demanded Henrietta.

"No. But I've got a chance to travel in a musical show playing the banjo. If only I knew the harp I would be in better luck."

Henrietta fled about the world more to be pleasant than through curiosity, for she was worrying about her own problem.

"It's right here in Chicago. A music shop in a new suburb needs a harpist. Not any wonderful musician, you know, just one who can give a program of popular melodies and sing a bit. By the way, did you ever buy the harp that Dora talked about so much?"

"Oh, yes, and she does well. Why don't you come up tonight and hear her play?"

* * * * * * *

Her friend arrived bringing a man with her. At the end of the evening Jack Gordon asked Dora if she'd care for the position he had to offer. The salary wasn't very large but it was ample for one person and Dora's cool eyes brightened as she listened.

"Why, playing my harp is my greatest pleasure," she said. "I'll be glad to start in right away."

The manager of the new venture smiled. "We're going to have an evening in the new community house next week. I'd like you to wear something blue turquoise, I believe is the shade that will match your eyes. You'll have two numbers and I hope you'll let me call for you."

Peter was the last to go, and while Dora was dreamily sweeping her beautiful hands across her beloved golden strings to draw Henrietta out into the hall. "That harp seems to be enchanted," he said quaintly, "when I first heard it downstairs I was simply unable to keep away. I managed to get acquainted and now it has"—he checked himself lest he disturb the elder sister who had worked so uncomplainingly for Dora. "Well," he said, "it leaves you free for me."

JUDGE SLOAN CONVENED DECEMBER TERM MONDAY

Jurist In Charge To Grand Jury Scathingly Arraigns Those who Seek to Obstruct Justice

In his charge to the Grand Jury upon the convening of the December Term of the Circuit Court Monday morning, Judge D. Lindley Sloan scathingly arraigned those who are known to be in the bootlegging business for their part in obstructing justice by tampering with witnesses in cases to be tried and sought to impress the members of the grand jury with the heinousness of the act on the part of those guilty of this serious breach of the law, ending his charge by saying, "The energy and completeness with which the grand jury pursues its investigations is the best security that the citizen has. Criminals invite such action, and the good citizen has a right to expect it from the grand jury."

The charge of the Court to the jury is given in full as follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:

Many of you are, perhaps, familiar with the routine duties of the Grand Jury and know about the character of service that will be required of you at this time. The services of the State's Attorney will be available to you at all times and the work of the Grand Jury will be pursued largely under his direction, but the responsibility for whatever action is taken by this Grand Jury is your responsibility and not the responsibility of any other persons or any other body. The work of the Grand Jury is not a mere perfunctory duty that the citizen is called upon to perform, and there is no higher obligation or one involving a greater responsibility upon the citizens of the State than that of members of the Grand Jury.

In these days when we hear and read so much of the disrespect for law one might imagine that society has run riot, yet the fact remains that the vast majority of persons are law-respecting and law-abiding, and it is only a decided minority that really give communities a bad name. The way to win the respect of good citizens is to enforce the law, and the way to do that is to punish those who offend against those laws which are necessary for the proper conduct of society.

There are certain statutes that we are required to call to your attention at each term of the court. There is a statute forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons and providing drastic punishment for those who offend against this law. Entirely too many people carry guns and other weapons, and the carrying of them is often fraught with disastrous consequences. The misuse of a deadly weapon will give a community a bad name about as quickly as anything we know of, and if any such cases come before you or if you have reason

Miner Loses Leg In Mishap at Kempton

Clyde Simmons, 33 years old, of Kempton, this county, was admitted to the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, yesterday afternoon, suffering from a badly crushed leg. It was found necessary to amputate the injured member above the knee, the operation being performed by Dr. W. A. Gracie. Simmons was reported as resting comfortably this morning.

Simmons' leg was caught between a loaded mine car and a mine motor in the Davis Coal and Coke Company's mine at Kempton, where he is employed.

Oliver Lewis Improving Following Gunning Accident

The condition of Oliver Lewis, son of Emory Lewis, of Swallow Falls, who was accidentally shot by his brother Charles while gunning for rabbits on Thanksgiving Day, was considered very favorable to his early recovery from his wounds by Dr. W. A. Gracie, of the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, to which institution the youth, who is aged 18 years, was sent by Dr. Hinebaugh, his physician, following an examination and first aid treatment.

He was taken to the Cumberland hospital by Roy Lichty, of Gortner. Physicians are of the opinion that he can probably return to his home within a few days.

Crellin Mustrel Presented Last Wednesday Evening

An estimated crowd of 225 attended the Louisiana Minstrel Show, held in the P. K. Adams hall, Crellin, last Wednesday evening, and was considered a great success by those in charge. The minstrel was given by the Youghiogheny Rifle and Revolver association and the Crellin Boys' band, and was in charge of R. C. Ford. H. S. Mickey had charge of the orchestra and good music was furnished throughout the play.

Before being presented again in Crellin the minstrel will be given at Sunnyside Grange hall during December, Mr. Ford announced.

FLAMES DESTROY MINE PROPERTY AT BAYARD

Blaze Sweeps Through Several Buildings, Causing $100,000 Damage To Plant

Fire of undetermined origin swept the Emmons Coal Mining Company plant at Bayard, twelve miles south of Oakland last Thursday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, causing damage estimated at $100,000. The blaze started in the mine foreman's office.

D. J. Keenan, superintendent of the plant, had been at his home at Portage, Pa., to spend Thanksgiving Day with his parents and upon being notified of the destruction of the plant he made an all-night drive from Portage to Bayard and then back to Oakland early Friday morning to get into communication by long distance telephone with insurance companies and the owners of the property.

Mr. Keenan gave it as his opinion that the fire had its origin in a short electric circuit. He stated that the flames had gained great headway when the residents of the town, who were aroused by the persistent blowing of whistles and other alarms, arrived at the plant.

The fire swept through the motor barn, car repair shop, mine office, the blacksmith shop and supply house, destroying all the buildings and their contents. Six mine motors, two mining machines and nearly all the tools were either destroyed or badly damaged. One mine motor and the mine superintendent's records were saved.

The mine is located about one mile from the town of Bayard and after the alarm was sounded practically the entire male population went to the plant, but efforts to check the flames were futile.

Largest Mine In District

The mine is owned and operated by the Emmons Coal Mining Company of Philadelphia, and has been in operation about thirty years. It is one of the largest and best equipped operations in this section, employing at the time of the fire nearly two hundred men, and when running at full capacity 300 men are on the pay roll. The mine had been operating steadily for fourteen months, having more orders for certain grades of the output than the mine could supply.

It is not known how long the mine will be idle, but several weeks will be required to secure new equipment and prepare for renewal of operations.

The mine is practically the life of the Bayard community and residents were stunned by the calamity, coming as it did on Thanksgiving Day and at the beginning of winter.

Miss Kathrine Brown, home economics teacher in Accident High School, spent the week-end in Oakland with friends.

OAKLAND POSTOFFICE IS CENTER OF WIDE ACTIVITY

Handles First Class Mail From Points 50 Miles North and South and Hastens Delivery

Oakland postoffice is now what might be termed as a dispatching center for first class mail east and west along the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, for a territory 50 miles north and more than 50 miles south of here, according to Webster Ravenscroft, postmaster.

Practically all of this additional territory has been sending and receiving mail through Oakland during the past year, with the last territory added less than a month ago when first class mail from parts of Randolph county, West Va., west of Elkins, began coming this direction via the bus lines.

With Oakland as a sort of center, Dr. Ravenscroft explained, first class mail reaches Friendsville, and Fearer, Md., and Hazelton and Cuzzart, W. Va., towards the north, several hours sooner than it otherwise would, and Parsons, Davis, Thomas, and points in Randolph and Pendelton counties receive and dispatch their mail quicker. Outgoing mail reaches the main line of the railroad much faster by this method. Since beginning this new service Friendsville is enabled to read Eastern daily papers about nine o'clock in the morning.

Mail from Davis, Thomas and Parsons and surrounding territory is received at Oakland in the evening and is immediately sent out on trains No. 12 and 11, east and west respectively.

It is interesting to note that newspapers and first class mail sent from Kingwood and Terra Alta, Preston County, West Va., the former town being less than 20 miles from Hazelton, W. Va., also in Preston county, is sent to Oakland and delivered through Accident and Friendsville, arriving at its destination quicker than it could get there by any other route. In gaining this time it travels more than 75 miles.

Changes in the postal system have been made to speed up the service and to give the people their mail in as short time as is possible, Dr. Ravenscroft said. The changes recently affecting Oakland included the route from Accident to Friendsville, started on July 1; the line from Davis and Thomas, started about a year ago; and the line from Thomas to Parsons and surrounding territory, started about a month ago. Mail from these southern points are being carried by motor lines.

Mr. C. E. Ellithorp, Bittinger merchant, was a business visitor to Oakland on Friday last.

EXPECTANT DEER HUNTER STARTS OUT WITH MUZZLE LOADER; BAGS DEER WITH SOMEBODY ELSE'S RIFLE

Deer Shot By Whitfield DeWitt Gets Heavyweight Prize: Many Nimrods Bring In Alibis

The most optimistic and still one of the most successful hunters in Garrett county has been discovered since the season on deer opened for the two-day period on Monday and Tuesday.

Whitfield DeWitt, Hoyes, started hunting for his deer Tuesday morning with an ancient muzzle-loader—the kind into which you have to drop your powder and ball and tamp it good and tight with waddin', trust in the Lord and keep your powder dry—and he expected—and did—return with a buck.

He did—but not until after he had exchanged guns with a half-frozen lad who carried a Winchester rifle and who couldn't have pulled the trigger if he had tried. DeWitt's prize was the largest of any of the other eight or ten successful hunters in the county, the weight of the animal being 210 pounds, dressed.

Bucks Have Narrow Escapes

Reports of many narrow escapes for the bucks were brought back to Oakland by the hunters, with their usual alibis, but so far as is known at the present time only the following were successful in bagging a deer: Whitfield DeWitt, Frank Schell, Zenas L. Mellott and son, H. C. Buckingham, Roy Frantz, Leonard Sweitzer, Swanton, and a Mr. Durst, of Grantsville.

Approximately three hundred hunters, it is estimated, scoured the forests of Garrett county, exclusive of the game preserve, in search of venison, and although many were seen during the two days, the majority of them were said to be does, and, of course, safe from the guns of the ambitious nimrods.

Most of the hunters scoured the thick woods on both banks of the Youghiohgheny River, north and west of Muddy Creek, Sang Run and the mountains in the vicinity of Grantsville and Swanton.

Harry Mickey, veteran hunter, estimated that there were about one hundred deer along the Youghiogheny River, the most of them being large.

It has been only within the last few years, hunters say, that there have been deer in Garrett county. The State Conservation Commission placed a few on the game reserve at Nicola's a few years ago, and in addition to them and the natural increase, it is said that many have wandered into the county from the forests of Pennsylvania. This is the first open season on deer in this county for more than thirty years. A three-day period was opened from December 1 to 3, inclusive, but December 1 happened to fall on Sunday, cutting down the hunters' frolic period to but two days. But even two days is long enough for Garrett county hunters to gather material for cracker-box stories and Burnside yarns that will last through the remainder of the winter.

And there will always be plenty of willing listeners. People are funny that way!

MONTHLY INSPECTION OF SCOUT TROOP TO BE HELD

Two Members of the Troop Committee To Have Charge

The monthly inspection of the local troop of Boy Scouts will be held tomorrow evening in the Scout Hall with two members of the troop committee in charge. Inspection will cover appearance of boys as to neatness, uniform, etc., activity during the past month in passing tests and taking merit badges, attendance at meetings and other matters of importance to members of the troop.

Inspections are made the first Friday in each month and thus far have been stimulating to the boys, according to the Scoutmaster.

Robert Altstetter became a first-class scout at the last meeting when he passed his final test of map making. Roger Maroney, Lewis Jones and Eugene Nordeck also passed their map-making tests, and William Tillett passed first class first aid. Classes are being held both in map-making and first aid, and it is planned to begin a course in signalling.

Harry Stemple, Jr., who passed his twelfth birthday on November 26, has already passed a number of tests required for a Tenderfoot Scout and will probably be enrolled as such at the next meeting of the troop.

GRAND JURY WILL LIKELY ADJOURN THIS AFTERNOON

Is Is Said Quite a Number of Indictments Have Been Returned—Petit Jury Monday

It is probable, according to information gleaned from sources at the Court House this morning that the Garrett County Grand Jury, which went into session Monday morning, will complete their work this afternoon and ask to be discharged by the Court.

It is also intimated that quite a number of indictments have been returned by the jury many of them covering violations of the liquor law and other offenses.

With the adjournment of the Grand Jury this afternoon Court will recess until Monday morning at which time the petit jurors will be required to be present and the criminal docket will be taken up. Following the criminal docket civil cases will be called and disposed of either by the Court as a jury or before a panel of jurors.

TWO MORE RAIL BREAKS DISCOVERED ON B. AND O.

One of Them Was in Newly Laid Section Under Observation

Two rail breaks on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, one at Deer Park, and one at Weber, were discovered Saturday morning, less than a month after the rail break at "88" bridge, about two miles west of Oakland, which caused the derailment of seven coal cars and tied up traffic for a number of hours.

The first break in the rail was caused, it was stated, by a transverse fissure" a systematic flaw which modern steel manufacturing methods have not been able to eliminate. When one of these flaws is discovered the entire number of rails which came from the same "heat" of steel at the mill is watched closely.

Four miles of track in the vicinity of Oakland were newly laid last summer, and after the break on Monday, November 11, which caused the derailment, the entire stretch was put under close observation by the railway officials.

The break in the track at Deer Park was reported and when trackmen from Oakland were en route to repair the break they discovered the one at Weber. The tracks at Weber are included in the four-mile stretch, but the break at Deer Park was in a section laid some time ago.

At the time of the discovery of the first break, H. R. Laughlin, general superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, stated that should another break occur in the newly laid section the entire "heat" of rails might be removed.

A chicken and waffle supper, for the benefit of the Gilbert-Brown Boys Band of Oakland will be served Wednesday, December 11, from 5:00 until 7:00 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Nettie Eichelberger, on Oak street. The tickets will be 50 cents each.

HUNTERS FIND LOST MAN NEARLY FROZEN IN WOODS

Oakland Hunters Discover C. C. Shay In Remote Section Four Miles West of Swallow Falls

Half frozen and half crazed as a result of exposure and a night and part of two days spent in the woods lost and alone while the storms of winter howled and swept about him, C. C. Shay, of Fearer, Garrett county, was discovered in a remote section of thick weeds four miles west of Swallow Falls Tuesday at noon by Cecil Ramsey and Wm. R. Browning, of Oakland.

Had it not been for the timely discovery of the man by the local hunters it is probable that Shay would have perished before nightfall as he had been in the woods from Monday morning at four o'clock and had had nothing to eat from that time until Tuesday noon. He had spent Monday night in the shelter of a large rock and when found had a small fire as his only protection from the intense cold and high wind which had prevailed for more than forty-eight hours.

From what can be learned, Mr. Shay arose early Monday morning in order to get a good start for a deer hunt and had traversed the remote section between head of Swallow Falls and Muddy Creek, when he realized he had lost all sense of direction and was floundering about without getting anywhere. The country roundabout is unsettled and is covered with a heavy growth of underbrush and laurel. There are no farm houses or other places of habitation for several miles in any direction.

The man, when found by Mr. Ramsey and Mr. Browning, was still able to walk but his mind was not entirely clear as a result of his harrowing experience. He was assisted to Swallow Falls, four miles distant, by his rescuers, who turned him over to Frank Browning, who was a member of the Ramsey hunting party, who in turn took him to the home of C. B. Sines where he was kept until yesterday morning when he was accompanied to his home by Lemmie Beckman, of Swallow Falls. No serious after-effects are anticipated.

Mr. Shay is married and was formerly employed as manager of the E. S. Evans White Front Store in Oakland.

LOW TEMPERATURE MARK IS RECORDED SATURDAY

Six Below Recording Is November's Coldest Temperature

The record for the coldest day during November was established on Saturday morning when the government thermometer at the Weber greenhouses near Oakland registered six degrees below zero. Records have been kept at the Government station here for 25 years and the coldest day for November, other than the past Saturday was registered in 1908 when it was three degrees below zero. Records also showed it to be one degree below zero in 1917.

Sunday morning, December 1, also registered six degrees below zero, but the temperature began to rise on Monday when recordings were made slightly below the freezing point.

Along with the cold spell during the past week-end came a snowfall of approximately six inches, with a strong westerly wind which blocked the State highway for a short period and made traveling difficult along many other roads.

The temperatures from last Friday until Monday were as follows: Friday, highest 28, lowest 10; Saturday, highest 10, lowest 6 below zero; Sunday, highest 26, lowest 6 below; Monday, highest 30, lowest 13.

From the files of The Republican, issue of December 2, 1909, the following appeared: "The mountain top is enjoying the most remarkable weather in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Thus far we have had two little flurries of snow, and for the past two or three weeks the days have been clear and warm and the nights with just enough frost in the air to invigorate and stimulate one. The thermometer has been registering from seventeen to twenty-five above zero at seven o'clock a. m., and reaching as high as sixty-five during the day. The month of November has been the warmest November during a great many years.

Lesson for December 8

HELPING NEIGHBORS IN NEED

LESSON TEXT — Luke 10:25-37; James 1:26, 27; 2:14-17; Matt. 25:31-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being a Good Neighbor.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being a Good Neighbor.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Neighbor.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Modern Good Samaritan: Who Is He?

It is difficult to discover a thread of unity running through the texts selected by the lesson committee. The teacher should choose between them, making a study of the one best suited to the needs of the class. If the use of all the texts be desired, the teacher will be under the necessity of selecting the verses from each unit best suited to the needs of the class. Perhaps the nearest approach to unity of treatment of the texts in the light of the lesson subject would be the following:

I. Who Is My Neighbor? (Luke 10:29, 30).

The parable of the Good Samaritan makes clear who is a neighbor and also what it means to be a neighbor. This destitute and wounded man left on the highway by the robbers, needed a neighbor. My neighbor therefore, is the one who needs my help—whether he lives next door or on the other side of the world.

II. What Being a Neighbor Means (Luke 10:31-37).

Our primary concern is not—who is my neighbor? but whose neighbor am I? Being a neighbor is:

1. To be on the lookout for those in need of help (v. 33).

2. To have compassion on the needy (v. 33).

Human need called forth Christ's compassion. All who have His spirit will be likewise moved.

3. To give to those in need (v. 34).

This means not only to give money but also to minister to the poor.

4. To bind up wounds (v. 34).

5. To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34).

6. To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34).

7. Genuine love is not spasmodic, but completes its service.

8. To give money (v. 35).

It costs much to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God His only Son; it cost Christ His life.

III. The Test of Pure Religion (James 1:26, 27).

1. The tongue is bridled (v. 26).

This means that those who have experienced Christ will speak with discretion.

2. Sympathizing with and helping those in need (v. 27).

The widow and orphan are the symbols of helplessness and need. Those who have true pity will visit such and render necessary aid.

3. Keep unspotted from the world (v. 27).

The one who has truly experienced the life from God will separate himself from the world.

IV. Judgment of the Nations (Matt. 25:31-46).

It is difficult to see what bearing this text has upon neighborly responsibility as it is a picture of the judgment which is to take place at the end of this age.

1. The Judge (v. 31).

He is the Son of Man who died to redeem the human race. He will then be clothed with majesty and power, occupying His throne as Judge.

2. The time (v. 31).

It will take place when the Lord comes in His glory, accompanied with a retinue of glorious angels. It will take place after He has gathered the elect remnant of Israel.

3. The place (v. 31).

From Zechariah 14:1-5 we learn that it will be in or near Jerusalem. Since, according to Luke 1:31-33, Christ is to sit upon the throne of His father David, we conclude that the place and the throne will be real.

4. The people judged (vv. 32-45).

They will be the living nations upon the earth after the translation of the church (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). They will be people unto whom the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached (Matt. 24:14). Those who preach this gospel will be Jews (Rev. 7 and Romans 11). They will be the brethren of the Lord in the flesh.

5. The issue of the judgment (v. 46).

(1) The sheep, Israel, shall enter upon their inheritance of the prepared kingdom.

(2) The goats, rejecters of Christ, go into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels.

A Glowing Service

There is no greater or more glowing service in the world than that of recovering from the human refuse pile those who have been thrown there by a world's bitter condemnation, and giving to them that new hope that will "turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God."

Beneath the Humblest Garb

Not a Monogamist

Mr. Ross: "This license entitles you to one deer and no more."

Bill Browning: "But I asked for a hunting license, not a marriage license."

* * *

Sporting Offer

Jim Painter tells this one on two Garrett county hunters whose names must be omitted because of the wrath of their wives:

During a deer hunt two sportsmen were gunning from places very close together. Suddenly a red face showed over the top of the brush and emitted the following: "Curse you, sir; you almost hit my wife just now."

"Did I?" said the man, aghast. "I'm terribly sorry—er—have a shot at mine over there."

* * *

The Wonder Rifle

Bill Browning has what is termed by local hunters as the prize gun of the year. It was bought especially for the deer season and its advantages over ordinary guns are said to be numerous and unique. It is noiseless, smokeless, and as far as the deer at which Bill aimed is concerned, is also harmless.

That gun ought to be watched. It WILL go off some time—maybe.

* * *

Jim Kerins and Emroy Bolden were among those also hunting deer Tuesday. Emroy shot at one and missed. Jim then took a shot and hit it in the same place. It's just as well for the doe and them, too.

Conservation commissioners who have limited the deer season to two days should be transferred to the State Department of Foods and restrict the dear season in that territory. There has been an open season in stores all over the country for several years.

Christmas Is Coming.

Christmas is coming, and so are my relatives. In June my relatives can be numbered on my fingers. In December they multiply like flies and rabbits and their vote alone could elect Mike Maroney street commissioner for another term.

But a little shrewdness will net one a handsome profit on the Christmas trade-ins.

Do Hogs Pay?

The question, "Do Hogs Pay?" was asked of Scoop by a farmer from the Walla Walla Hog Pen District. No; a good many do not. They take the paper for several years and then have the postmaster send it back marked "refused," "gone west," "moved," "left no address," etc.

Name May Be Changed.

At a meeting of the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work, held on the green bench in front of The Republican office Saturday morning when the mercury registered six below zero, "Slim" Shaw, presiding, it was moved by Betty Dawson and seconded by Neil Fraley, that the name of the organization be changed from its present one to that of "The Energetic Club." Reasons given were that it would take less room in Scoop's column and less time to compose it on the linotype and that it would fit the members of the society better.

After a hot discussion, pro and con, it was decided to hold the matter over until the next meeting to see if any of the membership would snap out of it. During the discussion Thad Hinebaugh jumped to the floor and in a stirring speech modeled after that of Patrick Henry and William Jones, said: "We are what we are; you can't teach an old horse new tricks. If you want energy in this club, you'll have to get some young bucks to display it. I uphold the traditions of my alma mater."

The Izak Waltons and Nifty Nimrods want to form an alliance with the Ananias Club whereby they can be better fitted to tell their yarns. It is rumored that they are going to employ two well known orators as instructors in a course of public speaking in which the art of slipping the tongue over the roof of the mouth with great rapidity and little friction will be taught.

It beats all how the liquor and the consumers of moonshine are so hard to find or so rare to be seen when the Grand Jury is in session.

Col. Bell has been busy during the week erecting a special television apparatus whereby he can see what preparations Santa Claus is making for Garrett county's Christmas.

Letters received by Scoop will be placed in this machine and translated so that Santa may read them from his home in the North Pole flats. Some will also be printed in this column so get them in before Christmas. Here is a short one filed by Howard Rathbun:

Dear Santa:—I'm not going to ask for a thing for myself but please send the following care my daddy: Three or four good boys' books some reeds for a saxophone a uniform for a member of the Boys' Band a one-man tent for camping trips. These things to my father personally: A bathing suit, size 28; shotgun and all kinds of fishing tackle.

Scoop's marriage bureau is at a standstill since the Thanksgiving rush. But with this snowstorm the Garrett county maidens will surely get cold feet and wish for an Armstrong heater, so the letters next week ought to be plentiful.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

All Barns Need Plenty of Air and Sunlight

All barns should have an abundance of ventilation, sunlight and drainage. Beware of drainage toward or into the barn or yards from premises previously occupied by diseased animals of any kind. Old barns are more apt to be troublesome. Basement barns, particularly if built years ago, are likely to have floors at a level below that of the outside ground levels. This is dangerous, as it keeps such barns damp and full of bad air. Basements require a larger amount of drainage and ventilation than barns built wholly above ground and on high ground, with ample natural drainage of the surroundings. A low basement barn may easily drain an area of two or three hundred feet around it.

Worthwhile Statements For Thought

The more livestock fed on the farm the richer the land will become. Good livestock is the corner stone of better farming.

In selecting a livestock sire there are three main considerations to keep in mind: The individuality of the animal; his pedigree; and the performance of his progeny. The record of the progeny is the most important consideration, particularly in choosing a dairy sire.

From every angle in the cattle production business, a good sire is a necessity and a good cow herd is a great help in the production of beef that will return a profit.

No dairy herd is well managed unless a fairly accurate account is kept of the quantity of feed consumed. A convenient and practical way to feed the grain is to use a cart, with feeding charts or cards showing the amount of feed for each cow. A small blackboard can be attached to the cart and the figures chalked on the board every two or three days. A spring balance scale suspended above the cart on an arm is of great help. If the allowance of silage and hay is weighed occasionally, the quantity can be measured with reasonable accuracy.

The system of feeding sheep that is most economical and most likely to keep the flock in good condition is one which provides frequent changes of good pastures and grazing crops, and winter rations mainly of good leguminous hays, with some succulent feeds. Grain should be held for feeding in winter and after the lambs are born until good pasture is available. One hundred pounds of grain in a year for one ewe and her lambs is about all that can be used profitably.

If fleeces are allowed to become soaked with rain or wet snow, colds and pneumonia will surely result. Dry snow, on the other hand, has no ill effect, as the ewes will readily shake it off.

Ewes Need Care

If you like a good many twins in your lamb crop see that your ewes are gaining flesh at the breeding season—do this in your own way. But one good way is to change them into a fresh pasture where grass is abundant ten days before you turn in the ram. If you do not have good fresh pasture, some oats and bran will do the work for you. Of course you will carefully drench them if there is a possible chance they carry any internal parasites.

If the lambs are to be born strong and vigorous, a moderate amount of exercise is necessary for the ewes during the winter.

Early spring lambs to be fattened for market should be given grain when three or four weeks old. A creep should be built where the lambs may go to get their grain at any time.

By following the plan of creep feeding, lambs may be marketed earlier at a higher price.

Successful sheep raisers have found that rigid culling of aged ewes and light producers is a good practice for the immediate improvement of their flocks.

Late Potatoes Successfully Produced

Late potatoes are most successfully and economically produced on land where a regular crop rotation is practiced. Leguminous crops such as clover or alfalfa are the best preparatory crops. It is better to plow a clover or alfalfa sod under in late summer or early fall, rather than in the spring, except where the land is subject to washing during the winter.

JUDGE SLOAN CONVENED DECEMBER TERM MONDAY

Jurist In Charge To Grand Jury Scathingly Arraigns those Who Seek To Obstruct Justice

to suspect that there are any people in your communities carrying deadly weapons it will be your duty to make a thorough investigation of such cases. While the public generally is inclined to regard the carrying of concealed weapons as a slight offense, we know in this Court House, on account of the results following in the past, tha tit is really one of the most serious violations of law that may come before you. It is one that involves the safety of the citizen more than any other offense because it is the cause of so many disastrous tragedies following upon its practice.

You are required at each term to examine the books of the County Treasurer and to report your findings to the Court. Now we realize that it is impossible for you to make a complete audit of the Treasurer's books in the short space of time usually taken by the Grand Jury, but you can see that they are properly and accurately kept, and that he has on hand the balance that his books call for. The State has provided by law for an audit of these books, so that it has relieved the Grand Jury in a great measure of this responsibility.

We are required to call to your attention the statute forbidding and providing for the punishment of abortion. These are matters which not often are brought to the attention of the public, and it is altogether unlikely to be known, until there is an explosion, that such a crime has been committed.

A vicious practice that has grown up in many communities is that of the use of drugs and narcotics such as cocaine, opium, morphine and such substances, and if you hear of or know of any addicts of these drugs and narcotics it is your duty to summon them in and try to ascertain where they are getting their supplies.

At each term of the court it is the custom for the Grand Jury to inspect the Court House and Jail to see that they are being properly taken care of This will be one of your duties.

The Mine Inspector is also required by law to appear before you at each session of the Grand Jury and it will be unnecessary for me to go into details, but you will examine him in order to determine whether the various sections of the State Mining laws are being observed.

It is also the duty of the constables to appear before the Grand Jury at each term of the court. The constables ought to be able to give you real information about what is going on in their respective communities. If they are attending to their duties at home they undoubtedly can be of valuable assistance to you.

The thing, according to the metropolitan papers, that causes much more disrespect of law than any other is the repeated and continued vidation of the prohibition law.

We have no State prohibition law applicable to Garrett County as such, but we have in this county a law forbidding the sale, manufacture or possession for purposes of sale of intoxicating liquors and no doubt some of these offenses will be brought to your attention.

One thing I want to call to your attention especilaly in regard to this question is that the most brazen offenders against this law have been tampering with witnesses, and if you have reason to suspect that any of the witnesses appearing before you have been tampered with there ought to be some action taken about that and the Court will be glad if you would call its attention to this matter if such suspicion should be aroused against any witness. This is a thing that hits at the very fundamentals of society and there is no obstruction of justice that is quite so serious as that and these offenders seem to be the class that are especially prone to attempt such things

At the last term of court we were compelled to carry over several cases because the witnesses were not available. They had escaped out of this jurisdiction before summons could be served on them. The result of such practices, if permitted to continue, it is unnecessary to comment on to you, because you know the seriousness of this offense.

I think it was just last June that I was here during the trial of the criminal docket and we had a witness here who had been summoned four times and each time got out of the way, and on this occasion an attachment had to be issued and he had to be held in jail to await the trial of two offenders against the liquor law, otherwise they might not have been tried yet.

There is something about the business that makes the offenders more brazen than any other class of criminals we have. They stop at nothing to accomplish their purposes and to continue in the business.

Let the investigation of the trade these men ply be a matter of very serious concern to you and especially the question as to whether or not there are among them offenders that have been trying to interfere with the attendance or with the testimony of witnesses who may be summoned against them.

It is desirable that you be as expeditious as possible, but do not sacrifice thoroughness to speed. The energy and completeness with which the Grand Jury pursues its investigations is the best security that the citizen has. Criminals invite such action, and the good citizen has a right to expect it from the Grand Jury.

Mr. Orval A. Welch, cashier of the First National Bank at Friendsville, is foreman of the Grand Jury, his associates being those drawn from the jury box when the Court drew the jury as published in The Republican in it sissue of November 21.

DANGER SPOTS

One of the things which seems to impress the observant tourist in Europe is the number of political "powder magazines" which remain on the map of that continent. Before the World War there were submerged minorities all over Europe. Russia and Australia possessed a big share of them, and Germany also had some sore spots of the same kind. The war changed the map of Europe. It satisfied the claims of many of the minorities which were submerged before the great conflict but the victors went further than this in reconstructing the map and created a lot of new submerged minorities. It will not do to judge their work too harshly. Races are so intermingled in Europe that it would be difficult to draw boundary lines to please every nation, though doubtless some improvements could be made on the present status quo of Europe.

Along with the Versailles treaty and as a part of it we got the League of Nations. Like famous grand alliances of the past, the League was designed primarily to maintain the status quo created by the war. The purpose of the less idealistic of its sponsors was to preserve for the victors in Europe the territory they had gained during the war. If the League should eventually grow into something more than that and become a factor for peace in Europe, all well and good. No citizen of the United States will criticize any such happy effect that it may have.

But this does not gainsay the fact that it is just as important now as it ever has been for Uncle Sam to stay out of the League and its entanglements, and to do business with or through the World Court only with proper and safeguarding reservations. Just now the will of most of Europe seems to be toward peace. There is much brandishing of the sword in Rusia and the Reds are busy now with military operations against China, but so far as the nations of western Europe are concerned there seems to be a genuine desire for peace.

But we must not forget that the danger spots remain. They are present not only in Russia but in the submerged minorities in Rumania and the Balkan states. These questions of boundaries are questions with which the League of Nations may properly have a great deal to do, but they are questions with which Uncle Sam has and should have nothing to do. His mixing up in their adjudication would promote not the peace of Europe but a hatred in Europe against him for mixing in where he had no real interest at stake.

It is much better therefore that America maintain its freedom of action, promoting a program of peace by mutual understanding and through the force of enlightened public opinion. Further than this we cannot go with safety to ourselves and with benefit to the rest of the world. We can do much more in case of a European crisis in the role of a disinterested friend on the outside, than as a member of the feudal family.

FRANCIS E. WARREN

The history of the republic is enriched by the life and character of Francis E. Warren, senator from Wyoming, who passed to his reward on November 21, full of years and honors. The news of his death comes as a shock, as it had been reported that his robust frame was shaking off the attack of bronchitis that confined him home. Pneumonia having developed, the ordeal was too much even for Senator Warren's stout heart.

Francis E. Warren was the last veteran of the Civil War serving in the Senate. He served longer in that body than any other man in the history of the United States, his service in all extending over 36 years. He reached the Senate after a war record that won him the Congressional Medal of Honor, and after a civil record as mayor, member of the legislature, treasurer of Wyoming, and several terms as governor both by appointment and election.

Like one of the fathers of the republic, Senator Warren wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams. His antique virtues were in odd contrast with the manners and political morals of the latter-day Senate. He kept faith in all things, and regarded a political pledge as binding as any other pledge. At this, of all times, the country can not afford to lose such a citizen in the Senate. It mourns his departure, and will cherish his memory, but must acknowledge that after his extraordinary service to the state and with his burden of years it would have been thoughtless and selfish in his countrymen to begrudge him rest and endless sleep.—Washington Post.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS IN MARYLAND ARE FEWER

Death Rate Cut Half in Twenty-five Years of Organization

In twenty-five years since organized work for the control of tuberculosis has been carried on, under public and private agencies throughout Maryland, the general death rate for the disease in the State has been cut down more than half, from 250.28 per hundred thousand population in 1901 to 105.62 in 1928. This statement was made in the monthly bulletin issued by the Maryland state department of health for the month of December.

In 1924, when monthly clinics were established throughout the counties, the rate was 121.68 for the general population of the State; in 1928, at the end of five years, the rate has been cut down to 105.62.

Clinics Are Held

Maryland is one of ten states in which tuberculosis clinics have been held throughout the counties. The Maryland clinics were organized in 1924 and since then have been held regularly each month at conveniently accessible places in each county. Examinations total nearly 4,000 annually.

The clinics are rendering a distinct service to the residents of the counties, the bulletin states. Since the clinics were established six years ago, more than 15,000 persons, either recognized cases of tuberculosis, suspects, or contacts, have been examined. Many early cases have been recommended for sanatorium treatment. Over 700 practicing physicians in the counties have either attended the clinics or have referred cases for diagnosis.

The report for the year closing on September 30 shows that at the 249 clinics held during the year, in the 22 counties, 3,506 persons were examined; that 661 of the number were manifest cases; 490 were active; that sanatorium care was advised for 225, and preventorium care for 94 children.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MISS MOLLIE HAMILL

Noted M. E. Church Worker is Interred at Thayerville

Funeral services for Miss Mollie Hamill, 65, of Mountain Lake Park, a noted worker in the Methodist Episcopal church for a number of years, who died in Sibly Memorial hospital, Washington, D. C., Saturday morning, were held Wednesday morning from the Methodist church, Mt. Lake Park. The services were conducted by Rev. I. S. Middaugh, assisted by the Rev. H. P. Hamill, of Washington, a cousin of the deceased. Rev. W. M. Shultz, Fairmont, her former pastor, preached the sermon. Interment was made in in the Thayerville cemetery.

Miss Hamill had been a patient in the hospital since July 21, 1929, and it was thought her death was due to the effects of an accident last February when she and her sister were struck by an automobile at the top of Columbia Hill, Mt. Lake Park.

Miss Hamill spent her early womanhood in teaching public schools in Garrett county. She taught in Oakland for several years and while in Oakland she was an active worker in the M. E. church. She was teacher of a Sunday School class of young boys numbering twenty-one. It was a loyal and loved band of this same class who bore her remains to the last resting place.

In the pioneer days of the Epworth League in this and adjoining sections, Miss Hamill was active in organizing societies in and near St. George, Parsons, Mount Storm and other vicinities.

In 1901 she decided to change her life work. She entered the Lucy Webb Hayes National Training School for deaconesses and nurses. She spent two years there, and after graduating from this school in 1903 she was appointed to serve in a church in Columbus, Ohio. She served in two churches, spending in all twenty-six years there.

In the summer months during these years Miss Hamill returned to Mt. Lake Park where she was successfully engaged in keeping boarders at Dixie cottage.

In June 1924 she returned to the Park and thereafter was unable to return to active work in Columbus owing to a nervous breakdown, but she continued to carry on work by correspondence. She erected a comfortable home in the Park where many happy family gatherings were enjoyed.

Miss Hamill was actively interested in many movements of the Methodist church and other religious works. She was secretary of the Mountain Lake Park Interdenominational Summer School of Missions; secretary of Evangelism of the Home Missionary Society of Morgantown District; organized and was president of the Missionary society of Mt. Lake Park. She was made a perpetual member of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Gift street M. E. church, Columbus, Ohio.

She is survived by four sisters: Mrs. Bell Nine, Lake; Mrs. T. A. Kimmel, Clarksburg, West Va.; Mrs. Lawson Schooley, Fairmont, West Va.; and Miss Missouri Hamill, Mt. Lake Park, and four brothers, Robert Hamill, Loch Lynn; William Hamill and Hugh Hamill, near Thayerville, and Patrick Hamill, near Oakland.

THE PASSING SHOW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

According to the talk of the Governor's associates the fourth-term candidate is now in a frame of mind to throw overboard his associates on the ticket of three and six years ago and make up an entire new slate as a part of his fight for indefinite continuance in office.

He plans a new candidate for State Comptroller to take the place of William S. Gordy, Jr.; a new candidate for Attorney-General to take the place of Thomas H. Robinson, and a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals to supersede Jas. A. Young.

It is no secret that Mr. Robinson has been counting on being a running mate with the Governor in case the latter persists in his effort. The same thing, it appears, applies to Mr. Gordy, who has hosts of friends who would like to see him nominated for Governor and who appear confident that he would, if nominated, get thousands more votes than can again be gathered by Mr. Ritchie.

As for the Governorship, Mr. Gordy's chief trouble now, as three years ago, is insufficient backing on the Eastern Shore, his own home section. There are over there too many other Democrats who think they are just as much entitled to consideration as is the Comptroller.

Further, it is stated that the Governor is strongly opposed to going into a conference as to the make-up of the State ticket. Three years ago and six years ago—he listened to Frank A. Furst, and thus Mr. Gordy and Mr. Young were carried along. Mr. Robinson having been added as the successor to Attorney-General Alexander Armstrong, Republican, who beat Thomas J. Keating in 1919. The Governor probably realizes that no conference of leading Democrats would vote him a fourth nomination. So he wants no conference and no general exchange of views. He is in a frame of mind to go through with the fight to the last ditch—and perish there, as many believe he will. So set is he that some of his acquaintances are now referring to him as a hopeless magalomaniac—suffering from delusions as to his own political strength.

An ugly feature of the present situation is the bitterness that has arisen. The greater part of it appears to be on the Governor's side. Threats are being made as to what will be done to the opposition from day to day, and these threats are State-wide. There was not this bitterness three years ago, nor, in fact, six years ago.

It cannot be said that there is much bitterness on the anti-Ritchie side because those opposed to the Governor are ninety-five per cent convinced that his political days are numbered and that, nominated or not, he is to be retired. Hence they do not feel bitter toward a man who seems to be passing. For it must be conceded that if Ritchie insists on his candidacy and loses—primary or general election—he will soon become a bask number in the party.

True it is that Howard Bruce in his warning statement suggested that the Governor, by stepping aside, could continue in his favorite role of Maryland's national figure. But the fact is that if he loses the Governorship Ritchie will soon be no more of a national figure than any other ex-Governor of Maryland. He will be just one more retired and bitter statesman.

Bruce Statement
The Big Noise

The statement of Howard Bruce, given out this week, was the big noise in the Democratic party and it made a serious dent in the Ritchie defenses. That much is certain.

Many expected the Governor to make reply but he did not do so, relying, instead, on statements prepared by Dr. Wm. H. Welch for the State Department of Health and R. Howard Bland, president of a surety company which gets its share of State business.

Mr. Bruce plainly stated that he did not think Ritchie could be reelected and cited the fact that in the past he had done what he could to help the Ritchie cause along.

It is not so easy for the Governor to make reply. He cannot cite anything conclusive to show that he is likely to be reelected. Nor can he cite any good reason for being given a fourth term. For it is difficult even for a child to give convincing reason why he should be given a fourth slice of cake. When the parent can give no other reason the reply is, "It's not good for you; it might make you sick." Of course, a greedy child replies, "Mama, I won't get sick; 'deed I won't."

Fact is, it is very difficult to see how the Governor, now that he has been put on the defensive, can make a good reply to Mr. Bruce. The latter helped him to the second and third terms, but he is not willing to keep on helping him to the same job for life. All things come to an end some time.

Campaign Fund
For The Governor

Some of those who take a practical view of things political have been suggesting that the Governor might have difficulty in raising a liberal campaign fund for the primary but those who talk that way have hardly taken stock of the Governor's retinue. Not counting the doubtful ones, there are now with the Governor, Brooke Lee, Robert B. Ennis, Frank R. Kent, Charles H. Knapp and John M. Requardt. Each one of this group is well stocked with this world's goods and should be able to chip in handsomely. Certainly they should be able to provide the $100,000 that will be needed to finance a State-wide fight, as all of them are devoted to the Governor. And they can get their due rewards after the Governor becomes President of the United States. And there are not so many in this group that the President would not be able to give recognition to all.

One could be made Collector of Customs, one could be named Postmaster, one might be sent abroad as an ambassador and one could be put in the Cabinet. As for Brooke Lee, he would by that time be ready to become a United States Senator, a place very convenient to him as he could sell real estate in the mornings and attend sessions of the Senate in the afternoon, while editing his newspaper at night.

Talk of Conference
Is Still Heard.

Many Democrats think that the end of the present battle will be a conference in which an agreement will be reached to name a candidate without a primary election contest. Brooke Lee, acting as the Governor's handy man, opposes a conference and wants the Governor to stay in willy nilly. Lee wants a candidate who in the event of election will do the most for Lee and his projects. Naturally.

Lee can hardly think that a conference would pick Ritchie to run again. If the party as a whole wanted Ritchie there would be no need for a conference to find out.

A conference might sidetrack Senator McIntosh and find an entirely new candidate. Frequently mentioned is Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, who has not been figured as a member of the Ritchie camp. Many regret that Judge Samuel K. Dennis will not run. He seems to fit into the picture better than any other man. But he doesn't want it and that settles it.

Now and then somebody hints that the Governor wants Emory L. Coblentz—which many doubt, Ritchie seeming always to be in favor of himself. And Mr. Coblentz, picked by Ritchie, might be handicapped by his backing. One never can tell.

Candidates For Attorney-General

Democratic candidates for Attorney-General are by no means scarce at this time. Gossip says Robert R. Carman has ambitions in that direction; some say State's Attorney O'Conor thinks the place is due him and then some say the Governor wants ex-Judge Walsh on the ticket for that place while Allegany has another aspirant in the person of Saul Praeger, who ran for the State Senate in 1926 and was shuffled out of it by some of the Democratic factionalists. And almost any day one can hear a new name for that particular place, some thinking that even if the Governor is finally nominated and goes down in the wreck the Attorney Generalship may be saved. Maybe so.

BITTINGER.

With an unexpected swoop winter swept down upon this section last Friday bringing with it blinding snow flurries and high winds. The snow fell intermittently all day until at night there was about six inches covering the ground with many huge drifts in the roadways. On Friday night the mercury fell fast until Saturday morning when the thermometer stood at fifteen degrees below zero. All during the day the temperature hovered around the zero mark and continued until Sunday when there was sufficient moderation in the weather to occasion some melting of the snow in sheltered places.

Rev. Wheeler, of Washington, D. C., spent Saturday in this village, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Elthorp, while waiting for an abatement of the storm, which would permit the continuance of his journey to Dry Run, whither he was bound to visit friends.

Miss Dorothy Meyers, of Markleysburg, Huntington county, Pa., who was motoring in this section last week, found herself snow bound at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas C. Beachy, near here, where she must remain until the roads are cleared of snow.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stark are rejoicing over the arrival at their home of a son. George wears broad smiles and declares that it does not now matter much if thieves did break through and steal some of his fine turkeys.

Deputy Sheriff Joy Grillith and Constable Thomas Seymour, of Oakland, passed through this village on business one day early last week.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fortney and John Fortney motored to Oakland on business last Friday.

William A. Speicher, of Accident, was a business caller here a few days ago.

Daniel King, of Springs, Pa., passed through this village on Tuesday of last week.

Fred. Custer, of Jennings, spent part of last week visiting friends in this community.

Merchant O. C. Buckle, of this place, was called to Oakland on Monday to serve as a juror at the present session of the Circuit Court.

The inclement weather made it necessary to postpone the Thanksgiving service, which was announced to be held in the local Lutheran church on Thanksgiving Day.

The snow-blockaded roads has temporarily stopped the trucking of logs from this region.

Rev. E. E. Campbell conducted the funeral services of the late Russell Yaste at Jennings, last Sunday morning.

GRANTSVILLE.

The table was beautifully decorated with candles and turkeys with favors and place cards of same design. The guests were: Mrs. Annie Getty, sons Frank and William; Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Fahey, D. W. Dorsey, Miss Vivian Powers and Miss E. Caulk.

Teachers Training Class

A Standard Teachers Training class is being conducted by Dr. R. W. Davids, of the Council of Religious Education, of Baltimore, at the Lutheran church in Grantsville on Monday evenings. Thirty-four members of the class have enrolled and others are expected to attend. The course is instructive and interesting and credits will be given all who complete the course of study as outlined.

Missionary Society Entertained

Mrs. Annie Stanton entertained the Missionary Society of the Reformed church of Grantsville Friday night. A very interesting meeting was led by Mrs. Fred. Livengood. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Serving As Jurors.

Daniel W. Dorsey and Fred. Livengood have been drawn as jurors from Grantsville to serve as such at the present term of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Claud A. Martin vs. Alberta A. Martin.
No. 2933 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That on the 9th day of June, 1912, he was married by the Rev. Frank Roberts in Mineral County, West Virginia, to Alberta A. Martin, the defendant, with whom he resided, for the most part in said Mineral County, West Virginia, until the 13th day of September, 1926; that ever since their said marriage your orator has behaved himself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate husband toward the said Alberta A. Martin; that there were no children born of said marriage; that for a long time prior to said 13th day of September, 1926, said defendant treated your orator in a cruel and harsh manner, was threatening and abusive in her conduct towards your orator and at times threatened to take his life so that he was in constant fear of bodily harm and injury from said defendant; that for the space of about one year before said date your orator and the said defendant, because of her said conduct, occupied separate rooms and did not live together as man and wife; that although your orator endeavored to continue living with said defendant her conduct finally became and was so intolerable and your orator's fear for his own safety so great that he was compelled on the 15th day of September, 1927, to leave the house which your orator and said defendant occupied as a residence in Keyser, West Virginia, and to take up his residence elsewhere; that your orator has made every possible and proper effort to continue living with said defendant but found it impossible to continue said relationship; that the conduct on the part of the said defendant amounted to abandonment and to an entire deprival of your orator of his marital rights; that said abandonment and separation has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that your orator has been a resident of Garrett County, Maryland, continuously for more than two years, but the said defendant resides in Keyser, Mineral County, West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon this 6th day of November, 1929, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of November, 1929, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of December, 1929, to show cause if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

TAIT TO DIRECT FIRST ASSAULT ON RITCHIE CAMP

Verbal Bombshell By G. O. P. Leader Will Be Signal For War To Death

By James A. Newell, In the Baltimore Post.

Some of these days Galen L. Tait, who for years has held the position of chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, to the admiration of both friend and foe, will take his trusty pen in hand, dip it in the mordant fluid he uses for ink and once more get off that famous quotation about—

Upon what meat hath this, our Caesar, fed,
That he has grown so great.

Then and not till then will the real Republican assault upon the Ritchie battlements begin. Already the Republican state chairman is warming up, but it is only the overture, the firing of a few range shots. The real barrage will come later. Tait is merely throwing out a few hints of what may be expected; and these few hints are embodied in a polonic, which is a real piece of political literature.

A Real Classic

English classes in college, after they have worked up through Dean Swift, may take a finishing course in Galen Tait, if they are interested in satire. Lawyers, if they are interested in learning how to prepare an opening statement, may peruse with profit the Republican chairman's recent remarks as to the issues in the impeding campaign. Politicians of both parties will study those utterances with care. Tait's statements are classics and even the high priests of the Ritchit cult admit that "Tait is a smart fellow."

The state roads scandal—the Republicans will meet Ritchie on that issue and meet him gladly. They might have been willing to do so, even without the invitation so cordially extended by the Governor at the Frederick meeting of Junior Democrats.

"Never before," says Tait, "has a Governor offered as a main plank of an election platform the thefts and embezzlements of his administration. On this theory, the more defalcations uncovered and culprits sent to the penitentiary, the better chance of the Governor or his chosen candidate to be elected."

"Continued Rule."

A little later the Republican chairman remarks with an irony that is really delightful, no matter whose ox is gored—

"The brilliant incompetency of the Governor's administration as applied to the state roads will thus be a guarantee of the continuance of his rule in Maryland."

The significance of that word "rule" will not be missed; the incidental allusion to a monarchy, to that dynasty which Alexander Armstrong foresaw when he ran against Ritchie in 1923, that being the Governor's first re-election.

The best Republican opinion as to who will head the Democratic ticket next year may be gleaned from Mr. Tait's satirical estimate of the chances of "the Governor or his chosen candidate to be elected." It would seem that either McIntosh does not figure much in the Republican horoscope or that the Republican idea is that the Senate president might be a Ritchie selection.

Chairman Tait forsees the Governor, having made state roads the exclusive issue, trying to "hamstring that issue by claiming a Republican vindication before the fight begins.

Those Prison Stripes

"He would prefer," Tait continues, conjuring up a picture which must stir righteous indignatoin against the Governor, "to hide behind the striped figures of the little fellows sent to the penitentiary and thus claim vicarious atonement for the sins of omission of his executive administration." A pathetic touch that, about the little fellows, even though stripes may now be outmodod for the best prison wear.

But, Tait perceives, "Governor Ritchie will claim that Republicans were on the commission which whitewashed the wrongdoing of his administration," and the G. O. P. chairman hastens to demolish that claim in advance. "The Republican party," he points out, "is not responsible for views of individual Republicans seted by the opposite party."

Out of The Party.

No more responsible, of course, than the Democratic party is responsible for the views of individuals in that party, and it has become evident that the views expressed by Chief Judge Dennis regarding the unplumbed extent of the roads frauds are to be exhibit A in the Republican campaign.

Judge Dennis is an outstanding Democrat; had he so desired he might have won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year. Edwin G. Baetjer, who served on the roads investigation commission, is an outstanding Republican; so is Alexander Armstrong, of counsel for the legislative inquest committee. In a campaign based on the roads issue, some distinguished Republicans and Democrates may find themselves outside their respective party reservations. It is a delicate situation for both parties.

The Republicans, however, will not confine themselves to roads as an issue. "There has been," Tait declares, "politics in the school system; political meddling with the judiciary; dangerous concentration of all appointments and power in the hands of the Governor; large gubernatorial expenditures; a one-man $25,000,000 budget, and a complete domination of the Legislature by the Executive through the 'green bag' and the budget."

Here is a serious arraignment, though perhaps faintly reminiscent in some respects and material for half a dozen campaigns. Even the schools are not spared and the school system, as developed under the present state regime, is the thing at which the Governor has pointed with perhaps the most pride.

To quote from the Republican chairman's favorite bard—

Lay on, Macduff,
And damned be he who first cries,
"Hold, enough."

Ritchie will be riddled. The counts in the indictment drawn hy the opposing party are many and severe. The most hardened heart may feel a twinge of pity even if the Governor did "have it coming to him." And, most significant of all, Chairman Tait evidently forsees in the 1930 campaign a continuance of the 1928 alignments, for he says:

"The 310,000 citizens of Maryland who voted for President Hoover and Senator Goldsborough last year will be glad to enter the fight of 1930 as a continuation of the battle of 1928, for the complete regeneration of Maryland from the present political oligarchy." Which is just what the militant drys have been saying—provided the G. O. P. nominates men of the Goldsborough stripe.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

By HARRIET SAMUEL

The Seventy-first Congress met at noon on Monday, with brief sessions in both the Senate and the House.

The Senate, after Chaplain Phillips' opening prayer, adopted a resolution of regret on the death of Senator Warren of Wyoming, and then adjourned as a further mark of respect.

Just at noon an assistant Sergeant-at-Arms marched into the House, bearing the eagle surmounted mace, the symbol of the House's authority. Once this was in place, Speaker Longworth brought his gavel down and the busy session had started.

The floor of the House, after Chaplain Montgomery had given the opening prayer, resembled the floor of the New York Stock exchange. The members crowded around the Speaker's desk, and the droning, buzzing motley of sound, out of which could be heard occasionally the voice of the reading Clerk calling the roll, was a terrific babel.

When the Senate sent over a resolution, as is customary, announcing that it was ready to proceed with business, members of the Lower House burst into a roar of laughter. The tariff fights in the Upper House had its effect on the lower body. It was much amused at the solemn message.

After the usual routine resolutions, Representative Moore of Virginia, introduced a resolution extending congratulations to Commander Byrd on his flight over the South Pole. It was adopted amid cheers.

Tuesday the annual message of President Hoover on the "State of the Union" was read in both houses.

The Senate has resumed the tariff fight and has taken up the Vare case. Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania is in Washington to personally direct the battle for his seat. The first business of the House will be the $160,000,000 tax reduction recommended by President Hoover and Secretary Mellon.

Takes Oath As Ambassador

Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, took the oath as Ambassador to France at the State Department on Monday. He announced that he intends to apply "horse sense" to diplomacy when he assumes his post in Paris.

Ambassador Morrow As Senator

Official Washington was completely taken by surprise by the announcement made by Governor Larson of New Jersey at the farewell dinner given to Senator Edge on Saturday evening at Atlantic City, that he would appoint Ambassador Morrow as Senator on his return from the London Naval Conference; that Senator Baird had been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by Senator Edge's resignation, temporarily. State Department officials would not admit that Ambassador Morrow would resign his Government commission. Mr. Morrow is leaving Mexico City this week and will be accompanied to London by Mrs. Morrow and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Morrow.

Speculation is rife as to whom President Hoover will appoint to succeed Ambasador Morrow. The names of Senator Moses of New Hampshire and J. Reuben Clark, former Under-Secretary of State, who has been in Mexico for several months and is widely versed in Mexican affairs, have been mentioned. It is rumored that the Mexican appointment might he the most expeditious way of disposing of Senator Moses, chairman of the Republican Senatorial committee, who termed the insurgent Senators, "sons of the wild jackass", before the campaign next year.

America's Financiers Meet President

What was probably the greatest army of industrial and business magnates ever assembled met here today to confer with President Hoover to consider means to continue the business activities of the country. Two hundred and fifty of America's foremost financiers and business men, representing thirty-two manufacturing and distributing groups attended.

President Hoover opened the session which is being held in the United States Chamber of Commerce. It is the aim of the group to form an organization as a contact agency between the Government and business.

Memorial Service for Mrs. Pankhurst

The National Woman's Party will hold a memorial service for Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, famous suffrage leader of Great Britain in the crypt of the Capitol on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Pankhurst's daughter, Miss Crystobel Pankhurst, will he the guest of honor.

The meeting will be opened by a procession of fifty young women bearing the British banner of purple, green and white which was carried in the British suffrage campaign, sent from London for the occasion, and the banners of purple, white and gold of the National Woman's Party. The exercises will be held before the statue of the three suffrage pioneers, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott.

Social Functions Halted in Respect of Secretary Good

Since official Washington is in mourning for Secretary Good, two important affairs which would have opened the social season this week have been postponed. The first State function, the diplomatic reception at the White House, was scheduled for Thursday and the Vice President's dinner for President and Mrs. Hoover was to have been given on Tuesday. The Vice-President's dinner will be an event of January 7th, but no date has been announced for the White House function.

Cabinet days at home will start on Wednesday, December 18th, the day official mourning is ended, and the wives of Cabinet members will be "at home" for the first time in the Hoover administration.

The reception which the Hungarian Minister and the Countess Szechenyi (the former Gladys Vanderbilt of York) were to have been given Saturday to introduce their daughter, Countess Alice Szechenyi, and the reception at which Miss Maria Sacasa, daughter of the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de Sacasa, was to have been formerly presented to society, have been postponed until the lifting of official mourning.

MT LAKE PARK.

While we have not escaped the cold wave that has held the entire county in its grip for the past ten days, even extending to England and southern France, at the same time the blanket of snow that has covered the mountains and glades has compensated for any inconvenience we may have experienced. It is indeed a beautiful sight—unlike a good many sections, there has been little or no suffering. The coal stocks are ample, the gas pressure is good, the buck wheat cakes and sausage are above par, rabbits have been killed by the hundreds, pheasants, turkeys, ducks, wild and tame; and venison have graced the tables of many of our citizens. ### December 18 Is Final Date of Meeting of Sugar Producers

The date of December 18 for the organization meeting of the maple syrup and maple sugar producers of Garrett county, to be held at Accident, has been definitely decided upon, according to John H. Carter, county agent. The date of December 17 was previously announced, but it was felt by those in charge that Wednesday would be the better time.

All producers of maple sweets are urged to attend the meeting, which will be held in the high school building at Accident, and will begin at 2:00 o'clock.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, director of the State Department of Markets, and Mr. F. B. Trenk, Extension Forester, will be at the meeting, and will submit a proposed constitution and by-laws for the association to be then formed.

Adoption of a trade name for local syrup and sugar and plans for the detail of grading syrup, will be submitted and discussed at this time.

The woman's organization of Zion Lutheran church at Accident will furnish supper to those attending the meeting.

Christmas Bags To Cheer Men In Tropical Garrisons

In the holds of army and navy supply ships now at sea, bound for America's outlying possessions, are stowed cases of brightly colored cretonne bags for Christmas trees in barracks and hospitals. These bags are the annual gifts of women volunteer workers of the American Red Cross to the men on duty in the isolated tropics. The call by the National Red Cross headquarters this year was for something over 70,000 bags, and Garrett county's quota is ten. Hawaii, with 19,000 men, leads in the number of bags. The Canal Zone follows with 11,500 men, and the Philippines with 9,000. Other points are Nicaragua, China, Porto Rico, Haiti, the Virgin Island and the naval stations at Guam, Samoa and Guantanamo, in Cuba.

The Garrett County chapter has taken an active part in the making of bags under the direction of Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman.

The Christmas bag idea dates back to the Mexican border mobilization effected shortly before America's entrance in the World War. At that time, the Red Cross, then a relatively small organization, conceived the idea of brightening the Christmas of Gen. Pershing's men encamped in the bleak plains of Chihuahua. The idea was vastly expanded during the World War. The contents of the bags include such articles as pocket knives, diaries, cards or puzzles, pencils, sewing outfits, writing materials, tobacco, shaving soap, tooth brush, tooth paste, combs and the like.

As expressed by a chaplain last year in a letter to the National Red Cross: "To many a lad in Uncle Sam's service out here in the Pacific, these bags bring fond memories of home and the most real Christmas joy."

One of Garrett county's own boys, Billy Helbig, received one of the bags sent from the Garrett county Chapter last year. Letters of appreciation were received from a number of the men who had been presented with bags made in Garrett County.

NOVEMBER LICENSE TOTAL GREATER THAN LAST YEAR

Seventy Time Monthly Records Have Been Broken in 1929

When 112 marriage licenses were issued during the past month last year's monthly records were broken for the seventh time, and the total for the eleven months is 27 more than the total for the first eleven months of 1928, according to A. G. Ross, deputy clerk of the Circuit court. Thus far 1168 licenses have been granted in 1929.

Although last year's records were broken seven times, only two of these are all-time records, it was pointed out. These records were made in July and August when 132 and 151 permits were granted respectively. Other months whose totals were larger than in 1928 were January, March, April, September and November.

Eighty-eight permits are needed during December to tie last year's record for twelve months, and 132 needed to tie the all-time yearly record, made in 1927 when 1,300 applicants were granted. This is not entirely impossible, Mr. Ross said, as 151 licenses were issued during December of 1920. As a general rule, however, December has about 100 applicants.

Twenty-three licenses were issued during the past week ending Monday at noon, eight of these being issued on Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving. Three licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused a permit.

THIRTY-TWO INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Session Adjourned Last Thursday After Long Meeting—84 Witnesses Examined

Thirty-two indictments were found by the December Term grand jury of Garrett county, which adjourned Thursday afternoon after having been in session since Monday morning. Eighty-four witnesses were called before the body for questioning. The indictments covered violations of the liquor law and other offenses.

The grand jury submitted the following report:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County:

The Grand Jurors for the December term, 1929, of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, respectfully beg leave to submit the following report:

The Grand Jury has been in session for the past four days and have to the best of our ability inquired into the violations of the criminal law in Garrett county, and have endeavored to perform all the duties required of us by law as Grand Jurors.

We have had before us and examined 81 witnesses and have found 32 presentments and indictments.

Agreeable to the instructions of the honorable Court we have looked over, examined and inspected the Court House, Sheriff's residence and County jail and the County records.

We wish to report the excellent manner and neatness in which the county records in the various offices in the Court House are kept, and desire to commend the county officials for the excellent condition in which we have found the county records. We find the Sheriff's residence and jail in excellent condition, sanitary and neatly kept. We, however, desire to make the following recommendations:

1. The basement of the jail, which is now used for storage purposes, we believe should be utilized for the storage of the Sheriff's automobile and other county automobiles. We believe this can be done with little expense and without affecting the safety of the building.

2. Inasmuch as we found that the gutter on the roof over the entrance to the Sheriff's residence is now leaking, as well as other leaks from the gutter around said building, we would recommend that the same be promptly put in repair. We also recommend that a mail box be installed in the treasurer's office.

We find the Court Room, offices and Court House in general in a neat and tidy condition, and desire to commend the janitor, Oscar Notes, for this condition.

We wish to express our thanks to Judge Sloan and the several county officials for the courtesies shown us while in the discharge of our duties.

We wish also to express our thanks to our State's Attorney, J. C. Renninger, for the aid and help which he has extended us during the course of our duties.

Now, having concluded our labors at this time we beg to be discharged.

Respectfully submitted,
Orval A. Welch, Foreman.
Jasper C. Myers,
Milburn W. Mann, Clerks.

Rabbit Propagation in Maryland Upset

Maryland's plans for rabbit propagation work next year have suffered a set-back by the prevalence of tularemia among the animals in Kansas and Missouri. Plans for importation of rabbits from the western states usually are made at this time of the year. J. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, said in announcing the postponemen

Health departments of both Kansas and Missou... reported prevalence of the disease among cottontails, although expressing the opinion that it was on the wane. Oklahoma dealers have reported there was no tularemia among the rabbits in that state but because of the climate there Mr. LeCompte decided against getting Oklahoma animals. Rabbits brought from that state in the past failed to survive the first cold spell in Maryland coverts, it was explained.

Farmer Is Killed in Fall

SCHOOL TRANSPORTATION IS STEADILY INCREASING

Cost For Each Pupil Is Reduced From $61.77 to $36.56—Nine New Bus Lines Established

An increase of nine bus lines, an increase of 436 school children being transported, with a decrease in the cost per pupil from $61.17 to $36.56, a reduction of $24.61, was reported to the County Board of Education of Garrett county, by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, at a regular meeting of that body held on Tuesday.

The 436 additional children is more than were transported all last year at a cost of $18,351.31, while the entire number this year costs only $8,562 more, the report showed. This accounts for the decrease in cost per pupil, it was shown.

Transportation of school children was started in Garrett county schools less than three years ago, and its rapid growth is in accordance with the State Board of Education's program to give every child in the state an equal chance in learning. Garrett county is one of the pioneer counties of Maryland in the transportation system, and its growth during the past two years has not been equaled by any other county in the state, according to Superintendent Rathbun. It is felt that within a few years there will be more than 1,000 children transported to the various centers.

The newest line to be from Hutton to Crellin to Oakland, will be opened the first of January, and will take care of the elementary and high school children now being transported by the Monongahela West Penn bus. The proposed bus for this route will have a seating capacity of from 75 to 80 pupils.

The following comparisons were made between 1928-29 and 1929-30 in the report:

The number of bus lines has increased from 19 to 28, making a net increase of 9.

The number of pupils transported has increased from 300 to 736, making a net increase of 436.

The cost per child transported during 1928-29 was $61.17. During 1929-30, it is $36.56 or a decrease of $24.61.

Total estimated cost of all lines has increased from $18,351.31 to $26,914.20, a net increase of $8,562.89. With this increased expenditure of $8,562.89 for transportation of 436 additional children, it is found that the transportation of each of these 436 additional children is $19.61 each per year.

It was further pointed out that if the total number of children, 756, now being transported, were transported at the same cost per capita cost of $61.17 as prevailed during 1928-29, then the total cost of transprtation this year would be $15,011.12, instead of $26,914.20, effecting a saving of $18,096.92.

GARRETT COUNTY "SPUDS" WIN HONORS AT CHICAGO

Potatoes Grown by 4-H Club Boys Take Fourth Place at National Congress Last Week

Garrett county potatoes, raised by 4-H boys, which were entered in the potato exhibit at the National 4-H club congress at Chicago last week, and which represented Maryland's only specimens, won fourth place among exhibits from eighteen States, according to John H. Carter, county agent, who accompanied the Maryland representatives to the exposition.

Five pecks of potatoes, Rural Russet variety, grown by Murrell Garletts, Earl Harvey, Ernest Hauser, Merle Wilburn and Austin Glotfelty made up the exhibit. The seed used in growing the potatoes came from Michigan, the State which won first place in the contest.

This was the first year that Maryland had ever entered potatoes in the national exhibit, and all those exhibited from this State came from Garrett county.

Ernest Hauser was one of the six Maryland boys chosen by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as farm boy champion and given a free trip to Chicago during the club congress. He was chosen for his work in raising potatoes.

A cash prize of $10 will be given to the Garrett county boys as a result of their standing. Exhibits were made by members of first year potato clubs, sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

SERIOUS BLAZE AVERTED AT FRANTZ HOTEL FRIDAY

Oakland Volunteer Firemen Subdue Flames With Chemicals

What might have proved a disastrous fire was averted last Friday evening about 9 o'clock by the Oakland Volunteer Firemen when they were called to the Frantz hotel, between Liberty and Railroad streets, to extinguish a blaze on the third floor of the building.

The bedclothing and floor of the room on the third floor of the hotel, occupied by Bruce Collins, was in flames when discovered, but Oakland firemen had the blaze under control in a very few minutes by use of the chemical apparatus. It was not necessary to use any water.

It is supposed that the fire was caused either by a burning cigaret left on the bed, or by the flue which may have blown out.

"Had the fire started during the middle of the night," George Kerins, fire chief, stated, "it would have gained considerable headway and probably have taken the entire block."

ALLEGED WHOOPEE PARTY IS BROKEN UP BY POLICE

Three Men and Girl Arrested in House Sunday Evening

They are Guy Simmons, Donald "Nixie" Davis, George Jeffries, and Gertrude Haskell.

Mrs. Waingold discovered what was termed by some as a whoopee party going on in her home as she returned from Cumberland, and immediately notified police, who surrounded the house.

It is said the trespassers had broken a number of eggs, crushed a lot of fruit and damaged furniture. Those making the arrests were W. D. Casteel, sheriff, Joy Griffith, Thomas Seymour and Richard West, deputies.

PLUNKETT FOUND GUILTY; PRESTON TRIAL REMOVED

Several Prisoners When Called For Trial, Cal Menhorn Among Them, Entered Pleas of Guilty

Enoch Plunkett, Frostburg, was found guilty of the crime of rape, Ethel Rosenberger, of Garrett county, being the victim of the man's brutility, upon which charge he was indicted by the recent grand jury.

Plunkett went on trial before a jury Tuesday morning. The witnesses for both the prosecution and State were examined during the day and at an evening session of court the attorneys made their arguments. The jury was out about two hours and returned a verdict of guilty about 10:30 o'clock. The verdict carries with it a death sentence or life imprisonment. The jury in its verdict, however, recommended mercy to the Court.

Bernard Preston, also of the Frostburg community was indicted for the same crime and upon the same girl. Upon motion of his attorneys his case was removed to Allegany county.

The attack by the two men took place at a point on the National Highway four miles west of Frostburg, on June 30. The girl, Ethel Rosenberger, is said to be but fifteen years of age. Preston was arrested immediately following the commission of the crime, but Plunkett was not apprehended until August 21, when he was placed under arrest at Detroit, Mich, whence he had fled.

W. J. Ryan, Cumberland, and W. R. Offutt, Oakland, were the attorneys for the defendant, while State's Attorney Renninger prosecuted the case with his usual vigor.

Yesterday afternoon the trial of John D. Browning, indicted more than two years ago on a charge of selling intoxicants, was called before a jury. At the time this paper goes to press the trial is still in progress.

When called for trial three liquor violators entered pleas of guilty, three others were convicted following their trial, four were found guilty of larceny and one entered a plea of guilty of the crime of bastardy in cases taken up at the December term of the Circuit Court for this county, which reconvened on Monday morning, with Judge Albert A. Doub presiding.

Calvin Menhorn, Oakland, was convicted by the Court sitting as a jury, of selling liquor. To another indictment charging him with the same offense he worked a surprise by entering a plea of guilty. Another indictment, found by the recent grand jury, charging him with the same crime, remains to be tried. Menhorn was convicted at a previous term of court on a like charge. Sentence has not yet been passed.

Alphonse Borella, Oakland, who recently returned from a 45-day jail sentence imposed by the United States Court at Cumberland, was again convicted of the sale of liquor. Borella plead his own case before the Court.

Albert E. Wilson plead guilty to an indictment charging him with the manufacture and possession of liquor.

Lewis and George Fazenbaker were indicted jointly for sheep stealing, the former entering a plea of guilty and George stood trial before the Court. Verdict guilty.

Everett Bray plead guilty to an indictment charging bastardy. The Court required the traverser to enter into a bond to pay the woman $9 per month for fourteen years for the support of the child.

Thomas Hoover and Elmer Hoover, charged with stealing tools and other property from Albert Schlossnagle, confessed their guilt.

W. L. Casteel and H. A. Sisler, manufacture of liquor, tried before a jury; not guilty.

Marcel Crowe, arrested about two weeks ago when he was observed sitting on a keg along a roadway in the vicinity of Bloomington by Sheriff Casteel, Richard West, State's Attorney Renninger and Justice Gonder, plead guilty to the charge of importation of liquor and was fined $400 and costs by the Court.

Ernest Resh and John Daw, sale of liquor; jury trial; not guilty.

Bruin Boehler, Oakland, sale of intoxicants, plea of guilty confessed.

Charles Madigan, Deer Park, sale of liquor; tried before the Court; verdict not guilty.

Philip Crissinger, who has been a persistent violator of the liquor law, indicted for the sale of intoxicants, was tried before the Court and found guilty of the charge.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Through the press we are just beginning to get the reaction of the late break in the stock market, probably the most serious and far reaching for more than a decade. The result of the rapid decline in stock values is being felt, not only in the United States, but abroad, especially in the curtailment of the purchase of luxuries and in travel. Reports from Amsterdam and other large diamond cutting centers tell of the laying off of hundreds of workers, buyers, and agents in that field. Italy, France, Switzerland, and Germany are already greatly concerned over stemship and hotel reservations that are being cancelled. Reports from New York tell of expensive apartment leases that are being cancelled. Despite all these more or less disturbing reports, President Hoover and great leaders in finance and business assure us that fundamentally general business is sound.

But however much we may sympathize with those who have been reduced in circumstances by crumbling values, at the same time this community should prepare itself to take advantage of the situation. Those in the habit of spending vacations at the high priced resorts of this country and in Europe, will be compelled to go to the less expensive resorts for their recreation and the soothing of jangling nerves frazzled by their recent distressing experiences.

Judicious advertising in the way of an attractive booklet containing descriptive matter and views of Garrett county, conservatively distributed where they will do the most good, would, in our judgment, have the effect of attracting hundreds to our community. We believe it is well worth trying.

Return From National 4-H Club Congress

Mr. John H. Carter, county agent, and Ernest Hauser, one of six Maryland farm boy champions, returned to Oakland Saturday from the national 4-H club congress, held at Chicago, December 1 to 6 inclusive.

During their stay in Chicago the following places were visited: model farm at Mundelein, Ill., Wilson and Co., Armour and Co., Swift and Co., all packing plants; Corn producers refining Co., at Argo, Ill., and the International Harvester company. ## GORMAN.

Sudden Death of Simon Cade

Simon Cade died in the office of Dr. W. G. Drinkwater here on Monday. He was aged 50 years. The cause of death was acute indigestion. He had been complaining for the past several weeks but had continued at his work as station agent for the Western Maryland Railway Company until the morning of his death when at about 10:30 he became very ill and went to the office of Dr. Drinkwater. Upon reaching there he collapsed and did not regain consciousness. Mr. Cade was born near Belington, W. Va., and lived at Bayard for several years following his appointment to a position with the railwey company. "Simon," as he was known by nearly all, was always smiling and was an accommodating gentleman at all times. He was a regular attendant at the Methodist Episcopal church and was an active member of the local lodge of Odd Fellows. He is survived by his aged father and by his wife and four children, Josephine, Frieda, Ruth Lee and Yolanda, and also by a brother, H. S. Cade, of Michigan. The interment will be made at Belington.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop

It isn't because Scoop is filled with too much Holiday cheer or because he doesn't want to, but there just isn't room for any such bunk this week, us the Boss Editor told him. He said to make it short and sweet.

We also ought to have a few jokes about the whoopee party out on the state road, about Carl "Buckingham" Frazee, and Walt Janoske and their deer hunting experiences, and others of interest.

Scoop also got a lot of Santa Claus letters from Jud Loar, Slim Shaw, Jim Kerins, Bill Browning, Harry Edwards, Tom Flanigan, and Ed Wallace, but lack of space hinders their publication.

It beats everything how the women rush up to the court house to listen in on an assault case, such as was tried up there on Tuesday. The court room was so full of "ladies" that no one else could get in. Not that Scoop tried it, however.

SORE THROAT? DON'T GARGLE

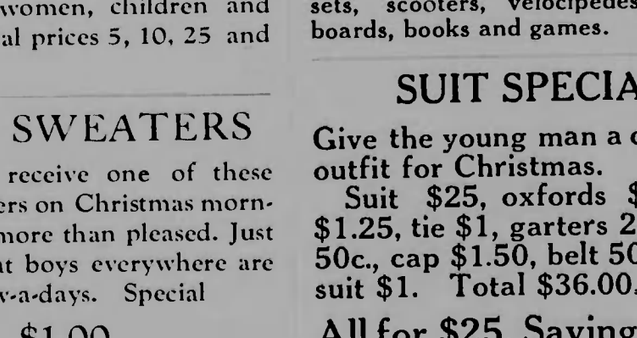
This Doctor's Prescription Gives Quicker, Better Relief.

Don't suffer the pain and discomfort of sore throat. Use a doctor's prescription called Thoxine guaranteed to relieve with the very first swallow. Gargles and salves are too slow and if they do relieve, it is usually only temporary.



Thoxine has a double action—it relieves the soreness and goes direct to the internal cause. It contains no harmful drugs and is safe and pleasant for the whole family. There is nothing better to stop coughing due to irritated throats. Just ask for Thoxine, put up ready for use in 35c., 60c., and $1.00 bottles. Money back if not relieved. Sold by Gonder's and all other good drug stores.—Advertisement 13-1t.

Special entertainment is celebration of the birth of Christ will be held at the various churches of Oakland beginning on Sunday and continuing until New Year's, according to reports received at The Republican.

Special services will be held at both the Lutheran and Methodist churches on Sunday, and dawn services on Christmas morning. A midnight mass will be held at the Catholic church on Tuesday night, and the final celebration will be held by the young folk of the Presbyterian church who will watch "the old year out and the new year in."

St. Paul's M. E. Church

Many services will be held in the Methodist church during this season. Rev. B. T. Trevey, pastor, will speak Sunday morning on "The Message of Christmas." The choir will render two special numbers. The Sunday school will open with a worship program centered about the birth of the Christ Child.

In the evening the Epworth league, under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Thayer, will give the Christmas service, "Goodwill Toward Men," which is in the nature of a play with ten characters. The scene represents a typical home as it would appear just before Christmas. The program centers around the building up of friendship between our country and the countries of South America.

Christmas morning at 7 o'clock a silent communion service will be held. No word is spoken after entering the church. Hymns will be read in silence as the organist plays all verses. The pastoral prayer will be in silence and also the ritual service, which will be carried through at the signal of the pastor or the sound of the organ.

The Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. Paul Naylor, Mrs. Delbert Davis, Mrs. Hervey Smouse, Mrs. Mabel Sollars and Miss Virginia Casteel, assisted by the teachers, will give a Christmas program on Christmas eve, in the church. All children will take part.

St. Mark's Lutheran

Sunday school at 9:30, the period being grouped around the thoughts of the Christ child. The children will be given their annual Christmas treat.

The children will worship with the parents in a service especially designed for them at 10:15 on Sunday. Mrs. W. W. Grant will tell a Christmas story, and Rev. Shilke, pastor, will preach a short, appropriate sermon. Homecoming will be observed for the students who have been away to school and other people who have been away from the church for some time.

A Christmas dialog, with Mary Frances Yutzy, leader, will be given at Luther League, at 6:30, with special Christmas music.

A children's Christmas pageant will be enacted at 7:30 Sunday evening, when the story of the Savior's birth will be presented.

There will be dawn services at 6 o'clock Christmas morning, with special music and an appropriate message.

CENSUS ENUMERATION TO TAKE PLACE NEXT APRIL

Enumerators To Be Selected In a Short Time by Supervisor

A number of inquiries have been received by those in charge of the 1930 census taking in Western Maryland as to the manner in which this will be conducted and action necessary on the part of those desiring positions in the several districts of the county. The Republican has been requested to make a statement relative to the same.

It is required to have this work done during the month of April, 1930, and some one or more persons will probably be appointed in each of the election districts of the county. Those desiring places will have to submit answers to a questionaire which has been prepared by the Federal officials, and pass a short examination as to qualification for the position. Application should be made at once to Mr. John J. Stump, Cumberland, Maryland, for the necessary application blank, as these must all be in by January 1, 1930. Immediately after that date the various places will be filled by Mr. Stump, who has been appointed to have charge of Western Maryland.

Approximately 15 were present at the December meeting of St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood on Tuesday night, and heard Rev. Roy Hashinger, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Morgantown, W. Va., talk on "Men and the Church."

He stressed the fact that when God chose anyone for a special mission on earth, it had practically always been a man, yet for the past years he said the women had been doing the bulk of the work in the church. He praised the Brotherhood of the churches for beginning a new movement of activity for men in the church.

After the address Santa Claus appeared and gave each one present a gift. Refreshments were then served.

Three Arrested Following Street Brawl Saturday

What was termed a "free-for-all" in front of Nally's hall Saturday night, near where a square dance was in progress, resulted in the arrest of three, two on charges of being drunk and disorderly, and one on the charge of being disorderly. The first two were Mack Tasker and Roy Lish, and the last named, Everett Bray, Swanton.

It was necessary for B. B. Nethkin, policeman, to use force in subduing Tasker. They were given a preliminary hearing before W. A. Gonder, Saturday night when Lish and Bray furnished bond for their appearance.

Tasker and Bray were given a hearing on Monday and both fined $5 and costs. The hearing of Lish will take place at a later date.

The brawl was the outcome of a slight altercation in the Nally Square Dance hall, on Alder street, but most of the fighting ensued on the street.

Chevrolet Car Takes Short Trip Of Its Own Accord

A Chevrolet sedan, owned by Ramsey Smith, Deer Park, started from in front of the Court House steps on Third street of its own volition, last Thursday morning, made a perfect turn westward into Alder street, jumped the curb and passed Hamill's Book Store and Hart's store on the sidewalk, turned into the street again between a parked car and a tree, through a space hardly more than six feet wide, and finally crashed into the Chevrolet car owned by Paul Frazee, which was parked on the south side of Alder street.

The fender, running board and left side of Frazee's car were badly damaged, while the run way car seemed to be intact. The streets were slippery at the time on account of the sleet.

ROTARY CLUB OFFERING PRIZE FOR DECORATIONS

Service Organization to Award $25 In Prizes In Outdoor Holiday Home Lighting Contest

Only one week remains now until Christmas Day and Oakland is preparing for its happiest and most brilliant Yuletide season. Presents have been bought and carefully hidden away where old Saint Nick only will find them Christmas Eve. Christmas cards have been received and addressed to be mailed anytime now. And Oakland has another fork of joy this Christmastide, in addition to the joy of erecting and trimming the Christmas tree inside the house and thinking about the menu for the table on the day of days.

Scores of residents are preparing to erect outdoor Christmas lighting decorations. Many have entered the contest being sponsored by the Rotary Club for the purpose of selecting the best decorated and lighted homes in this community. Prizes totalling $25 and divided $12.50 for the best home; $7.50 for the second best and $5.00 for the third best have been offered by the organization.

Oakland is taking a real interest in the contest and scores of homes will be decorated and lighted outside this year, thus supplementing the usual holiday decorations placed by merchants and other business men.

The Rotary Club emphasizes the fact that it does not desire just a few elaborate lighting exhibits on a few homes but wants every Oakland resident to get the spirit of the contest and enter the competition, even if only a few lights and few decorations are used. This is a contest for the entire citizenship of Oakland and is an opportunity for each to show his pride in this progressive community. ## VALUATION OF YOUGHIOGHENY HYDRO CO. FIXED

Assessment of More Than Five Millions Placed on Holdings

By a recent decision of the State Tax Commission of Maryland the assessment against the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation was fixed for the year just ending at $5,443,282. This is the company operating the power plant on Deep Creek and the Youghiogheny River a few miles from Oakland.

Until this year the greater part of the assessment for tax purposes against this company was imposed upon the capital stock, but as the chief value lies in the real estate and power plant in Garrett county, the taxing officials felt that this should be reversed and through hearings held before the County Commissioners and the State Tax Commission it was finally determined to place an assessment of $4,859,138 against the real esate, including land, buildings, dam, tunnels and power plant and the balance of $584,144 against the stock. With the exception of the stock assessment, which may vary to some extent, the above assessment will likely apply to 1930 as well as to the present year.

HOMELESS FOLKS

As people gather in their comfortable homes, surrounded with the well being that American life gives them, they can well give a thought to the great number of wanderers who have no homes. Thanksgiving and Christmas are holidays when philanthropic organizations gather companies of these folks together and give them one square meal. It is a kindly act that may have results.

There is a great company of semi-wanderers, more or less down and out, who are not satisfied to locate in one spot. Their services are not very valuable. They drift from one place to the next, always hoping that the next town will give them some more hopeful chance.

Then there is the bottom layer of absolute tramps and vagrants, men with literally no place to lay their heads, who subsist by beggary or the most irregular work, hopeless and helpless creatures, not capable of holding down any regular job.

What can be done for all these irregular people, without means of support and commonly without the knowledge of skilled trades, or who lack industry and concentration? Some will say that it does no good to assist them by charity, that when you help them once they become all the more dependent.

Yet unpromising as such people look, one can never be quite sure what is in the heart of any man. His vagrancy may be due to a run of hard luck, one misfortune after another. Plenty of cases can be found of seemingly unreliable men who turned from their idle ways and made good. It is the glory of many charitable organizations and people, that undismayed by the number of unworthy folks, they yet keep doing their kind acts, and keep finding seemingly down and out people who are not really so, and who with one more chance have turned from their wanderlust ways to reliable industry.

BOOTLEGGING CHRISTMAS TREES

It would appear that Russians of the old-fashioned type will this year have to purchase their Christmas trees from lawless bootleggers and shut their windows tight before they venture to light candles attached to the branches. A cable from Moscow dated December 10 states that the Soviet authorities have issued orders prohibiting stores from selling Christmas trees or toys and from displaying Yuletide articles in show windows, that persons cutting or selling Christmas trees will be prosecuted, and that the police have been ordered to arrest any one found bringing them into the city. Moreover, all the employed will be expected to work the usual hours on Christmas Day. In furtherance of the government's anti-religious policy bells have already been removed from many churches to be melted down for industrial purposes. Nevertheless the church authorities have dared to call on the people to observe Christmas Day as of old. So there will be "bootlegged" Christmas trees and much strife, possibly even inside the houses of worship.

The Soviet authorities who appear to regard themselves as benignant as well as all-wise, plan to bless the children on Christmas Day with "anti-religious movies and concerts. The latter will be serviceable in their way, for Russian music of the higher type is in the world's front rank, but we may be sure that normal boys and girls would greatly prefer the old-time Christmas festivities. As for the "anti-religious movies," the church people of Russia doubtless have good reason to expect them to be appallingly blasphemous.

What will the people of Russia be like thirty-odd years hence, now that the rising generation is being converted into Godless and perhaps heartless little intellectual machines?

Nine of the fifteen former officers and employes of the Union Industrial Bank, of Flint, Mich., plead guilty in the Circuit Court there Tuesday to the theft of over three and a half million dollars.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

For years past Oakland has been the place to which aspirants to matrimonial bliss have come to have their hopes materialized, and but seldom are they disappointed. Many are the 25-cent pieces that have found their way into the coffers of the ministers living here.

A sewing machine agent from Cincinnati was lying dangerously ill at the Taggart House and it was said to be doubtful if he would recover sufficiently to return to his home.

The residence of Postmaster F. A. Thayer was under roof and was being rapidly pushed toward completion.

The display of Christmas goods in the windows of the stores surpassed anything ever before seen in Oakland.

J. Ed. Kildow, of Kingwood, visited Oakland on business.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Thomas Krauser, of Bayard, well known in Oakland, and employed as a mill foreman at Lanesville, W. Va., was killed on Saturday while engaged in oiling the machinery of the mill.

Dr. Henry W. McComas, of Oakland, a member of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, was nominated for the office of Grand Prelate of the Grand Lodge of Maryland.

Mr. Silas C. Beachy, of Bittinger, visited Oakland during the week.

Mr. W. Creed Dunnington, of Grafton, where he was engaged as manager of the Sherwood Hotel, spent a day or two in Oakland as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Felty.

Andrew Shartzer, sheriff-elect was to assume the duties of his office on Monday following.

A slight fire occurred in the residence of Mr. E. A. Browning on the outskirts of Oakland, and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tunny. It had its origin beneath the gas range in the kitchen. Considerable excitement was occasioned by the alarm but very little property damage ensued.

The Mountain City Band gave a concert in the opera house. In addition to the program by the band there were vocal solos by Miss Ashby and Miss Hinebaugh.

Parent Teachers Meet

The parents and teachers of the Oakland Grammar school held a meeting in the school building on Thursday evening, December 5, with Walter W. Dawson in charge. He read an interesting article entitled, "What the P.-T. A. means to me."

A reading by Mrs. Paul Naylor and songs by Reeves Blandford, with Bill Gibson at the piano, were much enjoyed by those present. Several lively discussions and renditions of "Bill's" songs by the association made the meeting the most interesting one ever held, those present stated.

OUR "TALKIES" ABROAD.

Some Americans who at first declared that they "loathed" the "talkies," because of the harsh and mechanical sound and sameness of the voices speaking from the film, have since been heard to admit that there has been improvement. But, while the American public may become in a measure reconciled to the new invention, foreign audiences can not reasonably be expected to accept our exported "talkies" without increasing and violent protest, says the Cumberland Times in a recent issue. An American "talkie" recently caused a riot in a Paris theatre, although a novelty to attract the curious in a country where no talking films are made.

The reason for such violent protest is simple. An exported silent film can be successfully produced anywhere in the world merely by translating the American "titles" into the native language, but to make a "talkie" intelligible it would be necessary to do the whole thing over new for every foreign country in which it is exhibited—obviously too large an order to be seriously considered. Foreign auditors naturally resent a screen drama which "talks" all through in English or "United States", neither of which they can understand. And as "stars" at Hollywood hailing from Ohio or Oklahoma can not do their business over again in French, German, Italian and Spanish, it looks as if "talkies" will have to be kept permanently at home and the production of silent films continued for the foreign trade.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wolf, of Oakland, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mildred, to S. L. Colona, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Colona, Pocomoke City, Md., on October 25, at Wilmington, Del. Rev. Horace C. Broughton, pastor of the Delaware Avenue Baptist church, performed the ceremony. They will reside in Pocomoke City, where Mr. Colona is in business.

The tax reduction bill, applicable to the year 1930, slashing 160 million dollars from the Federal Income Tax, has been passed by both Houses of Congress and signed by the President.

ROTARY CLUB OFFERING PRIZE FOR DECORATIONS

on the exterior of homes will go a long way toward establishing the proper Christmas spirit in Oakland and adding to the holiday scheme of beauty which is already evident.

Judges have been named by the Rotary Club to inspect each and every home entered in the contest and it is urged that those homes entered allow lights to burn on outdoor decorations until eleven o'clock every night from Christmas Eve to New Year's Eve, for it is during this time that the judges will make their rounds, and every evening until eleven o'clock it will be necessary to be about the city because of the number of entries expected. All entries must have been received by the Rotary Club by Christmas Eve, and none entering after that time will be eligible to win one of the prizes. The only qualification necessary to enter is to be a resident of Oakland and to have some sort of Christmas lighting decorations placed outside the residences of the contestants.

The lighted wreaths that have replaced the old tallow candles in windows in recent years are among the popular Christmas decorations, and not without cause, either, for the beauty and appeal of the red wreaths with a candle-like lamp in the center is hard to resist. Next to the wreaths the strings of Christmas tree lamps, which can be strung over shrubbery, outdoor living trees, porch balustrades, eaves and columns, or on trees and columns or on trees erected on the porch or lawn, are the most popular. Other forms of decorations include lighted candles and the three-light combinations which can be used during the holidays season to replace the porch light. Evergreen in rope or branch form, red or green ribbon or paper, pine cones or other Yuletide decorations, including autumn leaves dyed in Christmas colors can be twined about the lights in a highly pleasing manner and they make an effective form of decoration. One can scarcely imagine the fine effect obtained from stringing a few strings of Christmas tree lamps over the living evergreen trees on the lawn or lighting a tree placed on the porch or lawn, or in the sun parlor.

Nothing will add more to the Christmas cheer and good will to be displayed in Oakland this year than these tiny lamps forming outdoor Christmas lighting decorations. They will be a joy not only to the household but to the street and every person passing by. In addition three homes, effectively decorated, will win prizes worthwhile. The decorations used this year can be salvaged and used for years to come, so that the small expense for one year can be distributed over a number of years, making the annual cost for spreading Christmas cheer and beauty through outdoor lighting decorations a trifling sum. The home of Dr. McComas will be decorated as a model. All should see it and enjoy it.

Make plans now, if you have not already made them, to enter the contest being sponsored by the Rotary Club. Enter immediately and make your home eligible to win a prize. Its a community project for Christmas cheer and the participation of your home is desired.

There Isn't Any Law For Love, Squire Gonder Says

After 999 years, more or less, of hearing the axiom "All is fair in love and war," W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, was stumped the other day in his legal capacity, when some woman, accompanied by her husband and daughter, entered his office and inquired, "What's the law for love?" and upon seeing the amused, surprised, puzzled, and inquisitive expression, added, "Or ain't there any?"

The inquiry was the outcome of a little difficulty between two lovers, one being the daughter of the woman who asked the question. Some Apollo had promised to marry her, it was said, but shortly afterwards, a gay young lady Lochinvar got the jump on her, and as for the "lady in waiting," well, it was just too bad, that's all, just too bad. (Also too late.)

But maybe it won't be, after all, because Squire Gonder sent her down to the State's attorney, who, he said, takes care of all suits for breach of promise.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

This column is liable to be short again this week, and through no fault of Scoop's. If he keeps on giving excuses people will think he is getting lazy, but here is the real dope. The boss editor says this stuff isn't as valuable as some red hot political articles, and when there isn't much space, it has to be cut down.

Scoop has tried to convince him that this is the best part of the paper and that any number of people have told him so, but it just won't sink in. He never did believe in "true story" magazines and Scoop supposes that is one reason for his gross mistake. (Now don't believe this, because he often adds a lot of his own comment here that Scoop gets credit for.)

A Low-down Trick

A most low-down trick, if there ever was one, is that of stealing bulbs from the curb Christmas trees along Second and Alder streets in Oakland. One who has so far forgotten the spirit of Christmas expressed by these colored lights and decorated trees, to do such stuff, would kick a baby in the face, and then gleefully clap his hands in huge enjoyment. The one bright light in this dark spot is the fact that it is believed that the guilty parties are not from Oakland, or even from Maryland, but from West Virginia.

Carl Frame, editor and manager of Mt. Lake News, incorporated, and "Beyond the County," gives Scoop a little rag this week. Now Scoop is going to put detective Col. Bell on his trail. He will find something about him in a few weeks worth printing in this column.

* * *

There Is A Santa

Since last night Scoop and many more of the townspeople believe there is a Santa Claus. In fact he was in Oakland last night, a little early for Christmas, but just in time for the Christmas spirit.

After the appearance of Whitey Kaufman and his orchestra here last night, Scoop not only believes in Santa Claus, but is inclined toward miracles, faith healing, predestination, and whatnot. But he did actually appear, and it was surely some hot music.

It was Whitey's first, and probably his last appearance in Oakland.

* *

Although Col. Bell was extremely busy this week he consented to take just one picture for Scoop, if he would print it regardless. Scoop promised, although he didn't know what he was in for, but as it turned out, the picture was all right.

Col. Bell snapped Ed. Offutt on his way home from a trip which started out to be a window shopping affair. This is his first Christmas as a bundle carrier for his better half, and his expression shows how delighted he is.

Free Delivery Service

If square dancing gets to be much more popular Scoop is going to write something about it, hold a contest, or do something. An endurance contest in "circle four," might not be a bad idea. Some of those who have been prominent in square circles thus far are [illegible] darn it, the make-up man cut me off. Ife's getting as bad as the telephone operator.)

EYESIGHT OF CHILDREN SHOULD BE SAFEGUARDED

Much Interest Aroused in Classes for Sight Saving in Baltimore

Through the stirring appeal made by Miss Helen Keller, at the recent annual meeting of the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in Baltimore City, for the protection and safeguarding of the eyesight of young children, much interest has been aroused in the sight-saving classes that have been established for children with defective eyesight.

"Nobody could hear Miss Keller," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health said, "without wanting to help in every way possible to prevent the tragedy of blindness. Blind, deaf and dumb, as the result of an illness in babyhood, Helen Keller, by almost superhuman effort has overcome these handicaps. She 'sees' and 'hears' through the tips of her sensitive fingers. She has learned to articulate and all of her great talents are devoted to the improvement of the conditions of those already blind and to the prevention of needless blindness through ignorance or carelessness or neglect.

"Schools for the blind have been established for many years, but the idea of conserving the sight of all children with partial or defective vision by having special classes for them in connection with the regular courses in the public and parochial schools is comparatively new. In 1913 there were only two such classes in the United States. Ten years later the number had increased to 181. Now there are more than 500 classes of that sort throughout this country.

"In proportion to the population, the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness estimates that we should have 30 sight saving classes in Maryland—approximately 14 in the counties and 16 in Baltimore City. So far, only two have been established and both of those are in Baltimore City. Since classes of this sort require not only special equipment but special training on the part of the teachers, their growth is necessarily slow. But as a result of the interest that is being taken by some of the service organizations, we can expect more rapid development in the near future. Within the last year, through scholarships provided by the Lions' Club, three Maryland teachers have had special training at Columbia University for sight saving work.

"The special classes in the schools are not the only ways by which children's eyesight may be safeguarded. By observing the habits of their children when handling their books or toys, parents may often discover eye conditions that need the attention of oculists—that is, of physicians who have had special training in the care of the eyes. It frequently happens that children who have been regarded as dull or stupid in their school work are found to have some trouble with the eyes. Correction of the condition under the advice of a properly qualified physician is often followed not only by improvement of the child's general health but by marked progress in his school work."

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

Forestry Councils Hold Meetings

In an effort to continue the movement started last year for the reforestation of Maryland's rapidly diminishing woodland, meetings were held st week in a number of counties in e State for the Purpose of reviewing the work of the past year and planning the program for 1930. Meetings were held in Dorchester, Wicomico, Caroline and Harford counties, according to F. B. Trenk, forestry specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service who is in charge of the work. Mr. Trenk is directing the reforestation work through County Forestry Councils, composed of interested individuals in the counties involved. Aid is being given Mr. Trenk by members of the State Forestry Association and a number of county agents. Last year more than 100,000 trees were planted in the four counties mentioned, as well as Carroll and Talbot counties.

Although lumber is somewhat cheaper now than it has been in recent years, this condition is due primarily to the fact that the Panama Canal offers a route for Pacific Coast timber to be brought here cheaper than it can be produced in this State. This condition, Mr. Trenk points out, is only a temporary one and it is but a matter of time before the entire country will be suffering from a shortage of timber that will prove serious.

Maryland is in the same position as the rest of the States in this respect and one of the means for solving the problem lies in the reforestation of land that is no longer profitable to cultivate. At the present time there are in the State approximately 180,000 acres of such land. The difficulty which faces those interested is to locate the acreage suitable for planting and to convince the owners of the practicability of the plan. For this reason forestry councils were organized in each of the six counties.

Dairy Specialist Tells About Herd Improvement

One of the surest methods for increasing the profits made from a dairy herd is to use a purebred bull, raise the heifers from the best cows and in this way increase the ability of the herd to produce more milk and utterfat, according to J. A. Conover, dairy specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, who further declares that a survey made recently of one of Maryland's counties showed that there were only 130 purebred bulls in use although six hundred milk shippers were listed in the county.

Mr. Conover declares that herd improvement records show that in herds averaging two hundred pounds of butterfat or less almost any purebred bull will increase production. However, as the production of the herd increases, fewer bulls will be found that will increase production in their daughters over the daughter's dams. Hence not more than forty per cent of the bulls in use in the herds of the herd improvement members have the ability to increase production in their aughters when the daughters come rom dams making three hundred and fty pounds of butterfat.

A dairyman should, therefore, exercise great care in selecting a bull. He should know something about the average production of his herd, the lowest producers and the highest. Having determined this, he is in much better position to make a wise selection of the bull of the breed that he prefers.

He should select an aged bull, of good type and conformation, whose laughters have made records that are higher than those of the cows in his own herd. He should select a bull whose nearest dams have made high ecords, or whose sisters have made uch records and it would be wise to ook into the record of the dams entire family.

Fairsweep School Leads In Attendance With 100 Percent During November

The Fairsweep school, two miles south of Oakland, in district number 11, was the only school in Garrett county having 100 percent attendance for the month of November.

The attendance of this school is outstanding among the one-teacher schools of the county. In September the attendance was 97 percent. Only twelve schools in the county had a better attendance than Fairsweep during that month. In October it came first among the one-teacher schools of the county with an attendance of 99.3 percent.

The county school authorities have commended Miss Hazel Garlet, principal, and the 13 pupils of this school for the splendid record they have made in attendance.

The names of the pupils of the entire school who made it possible for Fairsweep school to reach this enviable position are as follows:

Harold White, Lloyd Garlitz, Lawrence Wensel, Paul Moon, Robert Moon, Ken Beckman, Max White, John Garlitz, Floyd Durst, Betty Moon, Maxine White, Mildred Wensel, Alice Garlitz.

Miss Garlet and the Fairsweep community are very proud of the school's record and are confident that similar efforts will be made throughout the year to keep up the high standard of attendance.

The number of schools below standard for the month of November was less than for October in one-teacher schools, graded and high schools. Twenty five one teacher schools had a percentage of 95 or more, and 75 had a percentage of 90 or more.

Several schools, usually among the highest in attendance, were near the bottom of the list due to local conditions in their communities.

MT. LAKE PARK

It is necessary to look at the calendar to realize that it is the week before Christmas in order to know the season of the year. It might well be April or May. We don't know just what the thermometer registered on Tuesday, but we do know that B. V. Thomas would feel more comfortable than in a warm heavy red flannels. In a walk through the woods Monday with George Enlow and Arthur Fike, we noticed that the buds were beginning to swell on some of the more 'peppy' and less conservative shrubs. However, that seems to be in keeping with the flaming youth period in which we live, the slogan of which seems to be "Bud early and fade quick."

We noticed George Hanst, of The Republican staff, on the street in Oakland the other day actually working. While he was using a toothpick bailing out the holes in which to place The Republican's curb Christmas tree.

Mrs. Wiley Wedding spent the week end in Cumberland visiting her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. May will leave this week for Washington and North Carolina where they expect to spend the winter months, returning home in the early spring. Mr. May is much improved in health.

Word has been received in the Park of the death from pneumonia of Strella Polcous, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Polcous, of Clarksburg, W. Va. Many friends of the family will remember that two years ago Miss Polcous spent eight or nine months at Mountain Lake Park suffering from a glandular infection at the end of which period she returned to her home fully recovered. During her stay in the community Miss Polcous, who was about 16 years of age, was compelled to spend about all her time in bed and by her patience, optimism and cheerfulness in these trying circumstances won the admiration and love of a large circle of friends. Her rare beauty of character and face, combined with an attractive personality, endeared her to the hearts of many.

Mrs. H. G. Gibson has returned from Cumberland, where she spent a few days.

Miss Hasahah Yutzy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Yutzy, of Crellin, has returned home after submitting to a minor operation at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. Another daughter, Dolores, who has been a guest of Mrs. Alma Bell, has returned to the home of her parents.

Messrs. B. W. Harvey and Ollie and Joe Switzer have returned from a hunting trip in Potter county, Pa.

Hamilton Friend has been quite ill in recent days but is somewhat better now.

NUMBER OF MATRIMONIAL PERMITS BELOW NORMAL

Only Twenty-nine Licenses Issued in Two Weeks

Twenty-nine marriage licenses were issued during the past 2 weeks ending Monday at noon from the office of the clerk of the Circuit court, according to A. G. Ross, deputy clerk. This is below the average, he said, and if continued throughout the remainder of the month, will cut down the yearly total considerably. Eight of those granted were issued on Saturdays, while only one was issued on Friday, the 13th.

Two licenses issued were marked don't publish, while two applicants were refused a permit on account of the youthfulness of the contracting parties.

THE HOMEMAKERS CORNER

BY MISS ELSIE BENTHIEN
Home Demonstration Agent

"At Christmas play, and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year."

What better way to "play and make good cheer" than to demonstrate Christmas candies and cookies. For whoever heard of a Christmas without sugar plums and sweet meats? It would be like fruit cake with the fruit left out!

Brazil Nut Slices—yield two 15 inch rolls

Two squares Baker's unsweetened chocolate, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup Log Cabin Maple syrup, ½ cup rich milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup Brazil nuts, (toasted), few grains of salt.

Melt chocolate and butter in saucepan over hot water, add sugar slowly, mixing thoroughly, and stir in maple syrup and milk. Stir constantly until boiling point is reached and sugar dissolved. Cook to 234 degrees F., or soft ball. Pour out on large platter, let stand until cool. Add salt and vanilla, and beat until candy begins to get firm. Knead in nuts cut in rather large pieces. Shape into rolls and cut in diagonal slices. May be kept moist by wrapping in waxed paper.

Ginger Cookies

One cup molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup Crisco, ½ cup hot water, with 2 teaspoons soda added, 5 cups flour, ½ cup hot water, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cream sugar and Crisco together. Stir in molasses. Sift ginger, salt and flour together. Add alternately with water. Let stand several hours before rolling out.

A Jell-O Lake for the Christmas Table

For the kiddies' Christmas party you can make a beautiful centerpiece that represents an ice-covered lake set in among fir trees and snowdrifts. And it may all be eaten for dessert! To make the lake, pour a thin layer of clear lemon Jell-O on a large platter (a silver tray is especially good.) Make the snow drifts around the "shore line" by whipping lemon Jell-O until light and spongy and piling it around on the edge of the platter. Sprinkle Baker's Premium shred cocoanut over the "snow." Here and there, singly and in clumps, stick in sugar cookies cut in the shape of Christmas trees and frosted with green icing. Have a tiny Santa Claus and his reindeer-drawn sleigh crossing the ice.

Twenty-two first and second clnss scouts, members of Oakland Troop No. 1, passed 70 merit badges, 27 members of the troop advanced at least one rnnk and other achievements for the year 1929 are recorded in the annual report which has just been sent to National headquarters by George H. At the present time there are 42 members of the troop, 10 Tenderfoot scouts, 13 second class, and 19 first class scouts. Two of the first class scouts are Eagle scouts and one of these was made a Knight-Eagle, the highest rank any boy can obtain. Three over-night hikes with an average attendance of 15, and three day-hikes with an attendance of 23, were taken throughout the year; the troop participated in civic parades, had exhibits at the county fair, and helped in community enterprises. An average of 30 boys spent two weeks in the scout camp on Deep Creek Lake.

Local organizations which are auxiliary to the local troop include the Troop committee composed of W. W. Dawson, Harland L. Jones, Donald R. Sincell, F. E. Rathbun, L. M. Fraley; the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. Bernard Gonder, president; the Court of Honor, composed of a number of Oakland citizens who examine the scouts for merit badges.

Give the Birds a Lift!

During the winter months when natural feed is scarce and especially during severe weather or when the ground is covered by snow, it is very essential that we should furnish feed for our wild birds and animals. Such action on your part will preserve an adequate brood stock in the covers of Maryland which will assure a bountiful supply of brood stock for the propagating season following. It is not the cold weather that kills birds; it is the lack of food. Their presence adds a touch of life and good cheer. As we feed these winter guests we come to regard them somewhat in the light of personal possessions to the extent that our conscience tells us we have done the right thing by your feathered and furred neighbors.

The agriculturalists of Maryland should be greatly interested in feeding and preserving, not only the bob-white, but the numerous species of song and insectivorous birds which are of great value to the agricultural interest. It is very little trouble to locate their feeding or roosting places. If there is no shelter, provide a shelter by cutting some bushes. If there is snow on the ground, scrape away the snow and made a shelter of the bushes so that the winds will not blow the feed away. Place feed under the shelter and you will be repaid for your trouble. Such shelter should afford ready exit in case the birds are pursued by vermin. Feed in small quantities should be placed daily, if possible. A pint of feed, consisting of rye, wheat, barley, buckwheat, corn or scratch feed, is a sufficient daily ration for at least fifty birds. If possible, place a small pile of sand which is used for grit.

The mink, weasel, house cats and the hawks are common enemies of bob-whites. The skunk has been found to be as destructive, or more so, than any other species of vermin.

Farmers, sportsmen, school children and the general public should co-operate with the District Deputy Game Warden of each county in caring for the wild birds and game animals during the winter months when natural feed becomes scarce in the covers. Not only the residents of the counties, but residents of the cities of Maryland as well, should make an effort to locate wild birds and game animals in the covers of their respective neighborhoods and establish feeding places for them.

Wins Prize In Pythian Contest in Maryland

Milburn V. Mann, of Oakland, has just received a check for $10 from the Grand Lodge of Maryland, Knights of Pythias, for first prize in Maryland in a contest among members of Pythian lodges for the "ten best reasons why he is a member of the Knights of Pythias."

The contest was started by Loyal Lodge of Norfolk, Va., which offered a prize of $200 to any member in the United States who would write the ten best reasons. The Supreme lodge adopted the idea and offered second, third and fourth prizes. The Grand Chancellor of Maryland, in turn, offered a cash prize of $10 to the member in Maryland submitting the ten best reasons, and Mr. Mann's article was selected from a grent number of others submitted.

Awards in the national contest have not been announced.

SENATOR W. A. GUNTER ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB

Cumberland Attorney's Message To Service Club Unique and Extremely Practical.

Local Rotarians and their guests at the weekly dinner last Friday night at the William-James Hotel were exceedingly well pleased with the speaker of the evening and the message he brought them, his address being uniquely built around the subject, "Old Thoughts for the New Year."

Senator Gunter expressed himself as being exceedingly happy in coming to Oakland "where the hand of goodfellowship and courtesy is at all times extended." His address in full follows:

"'Thank God there is always a land of beyond
For us who are true to the trail;
A vision to seek, a beckoning beak,
A farness that never will fail.

"'A pride in our soul that mocks at a goal,
A manhood that irks at a bond,
And try as we will, unattainable still,
Behold it, our land of beyond.

"Within the next few days 1929 Anno Dominii will have become another one of those periods which we call history. As we stand upon the threshold of the new year we are seized with a feeling of anxiety and thoughtfulness—we are wondering what fruit it shall bring forth for us. When the stock is inventoried and the books are balanced at the end of the next twelve-month period, will we require black or red ink? Will our ledger show assets of health, wealth, happiness, success and laughter, or liabilities of poverty, sickness, sorrow, failure and tears?

"The birthday of the new year is to most of us a thoughtful day, for it is the one day in the year when consciously or unconsciously we stand before the looking glass, take a good look at ourselves and think of what we are and what we shall be.

"Know Thyself" was the inscription carved over the doorway of a pagan temple. Man is more deficient in self-knowledge than in almost any other kind of knowledge, not that men and women do not think about themselves, for most of us seem to think of little else, but we think of what we shall have, what we shall get, how we will appear, what we shall do, now and then perhaps what we shall be, but rarely, if ever, what we are.

"And so, during the last 364 days of the year, the mighty rushing wind, the convulsive earthquake, the scorching fire of business competition, of social and political rivalry and struggle fill the ear with their deafening roar and drown out the accents of the still small voice of circumspection, but on the first and natal day man stops, ponders, soliloquizes and forthwith the mind germinates groups of new intentions, new endeavors, new promises, known to most of us as resolutions for the new year. We pledge ourselves that we intend to be more kind, charitable, honest, industrious, faithful, successful and a myriad of other beneficent and worthy intentions. We are serious, we are sin-

Christmas Spirit Is Exprssed By Outdoor Decoations

Never has the Christmas spirit been so outwardly displayed in Oakland as has been the case this year both visitors and townspeople alike have declared during the past few days.

The decorations range from the simple to the elaborte but all are in keeping with the spirit of Christmas and are very beautiful. Citizens of the town seem to be vieing with each other in their many-colored displays, not so much in the hope of being awarded the prize offered by the Rotary Club, but to show their spirit and retain the name that Oakland has always borne—not doing things by halves.

The curb Christmas trees of the merchants, in addition to the many decorated homes, present a picture of Christmas which is hard to beat in much larger and wealthier towns, it is said.

To Serve Year In Confinement

Alonzo Cummings, 18, was arraigned before Judge A. G. Hughes, in the circuit court in Kingwood, W. Va., last Thursday afternoon and sentenced to serve a year in confinement. Cummings plead guilty to driving the automobile which struck Claud Lipscomb, aged 9, at Aurora, about a month ago, killing him instantly.

Cummings had been sought by State and county officers for a month but was not apprehended until Tuesday evening when he was arrested at the home of Calvin Simmons, near Erwin, by Sheriff W. W. Williams and Deputy Sheriff Carl Roth.

He was taken before Judge Hughes last Thursday afternoon and upon a plea of guilty, sentence was pronounced. The defendant was accompanied to the bar of the court by his counsel, J. V. Gibson, attorney.

The Passing of Another Christmas Season.

By CON. GLOMERATION

Well, another Christmas has passed and now store clerks will be busy for two months in making exchange of 28's for 36's, 6's for 7's, green for red, pink for pinker, and some will even try to get cash for their articles.

Aside from receiving a shirt, size 13½, which I couldn't squeeze my ankle into, a hat, size 7½, which even my big ears wouldn't hold up, and a Christmas tie, of passionate blue, which I wouldn't even wear on a camping trip, I had a very Merry Christmas. I don't mind the tie so much. I can give that away next year to somebody who is just as big a sap as I am, but the 13½ shirt and 7½ hat sure did get my nanny. If the sender's object was to give me a good choking he could have sent me a hangman's noose—it would have been cheaper and just as effective.

And the hat! Just imagine a 7½ for MY head. Why, it wasn't near big enough, according to my way of thinking.

In returns, I came out on the short end of the stick. I sent out 111 cards to friends, college chumps and relatives and only got 55 in return, making a net loss of 59 cards, or $5.90, retail. Then, deducting a little more for the sentiment of the cards, the loss is still greater.

Last year an uncle to whom I had sent a present, didn't even mail me a card. This year I cut him clear off the list, and he comes through with a pair of socks, green as grass. I'll just send him a New Year's greeting.

Dropping in of unexpected relatives at home yesterday was almost embarrassing, but I was prepared for them. I had bought a dozen bath towels in case anything like this happened, and they never knew but that I had bought them especially for the dear relatives. I still have seven towels left and can use them myself.

By the price tags that still remained on most of my gifts, and with the help of a down-town clerk, I figured that I had received presents totaling $49.17 in vlaue. As I had only sent out gifts to the amount of $31.91, this more than made up for the loss on cards.

I can harlly wait until night comes so that I can slip into one present—a pair of silk pongee pajamas. It raises goose pimples on me every time I feel it.

SAME TEACHING STAFF IN SCHOOLS TO BEGIN 1930

For First Time in Many Years No Resignations at this Time

For the first time in the history of the County Board of Education since Mr. F. E. Rathbun has been County Superintendent of Schools, there have been no resignations of teachers received at the office following the closing of schools on December 20 for the Christmas holidays.

Every year several resignations of teachers are received, the principal reasons being marriage, discontent, failure, etc., but the exception is the rule this year, according to Mr. Rathbun.

Two reasons were advanced for this unusual condition, they being satisfactory salaries and a trained teaching staff that can adapt themselves more readily to conditions in the county. Salaries have been increased annually in Garrett county with the number of trained teachers and those accepting positions are more willing to complete the school year.

So schools in Garrett county will reopen on Monday, January 6, 1930, with exactly the same teachers as were in charge when the holidays began, barring deaths and accidents, Mr. Rathbun concluded.

Young People's Leagues to Entertain.

The Young People's Leagues of the Oakland churches are planning a New Year's Eve party at the Lutheran church next Tuesday evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. All the young people of the communtiy are cordially invited to come and enjoy games and stunts. An interesting program of entertainment is being worked out and a hilarious good time is promised to all who come.

At ten o'clock refreshments will be served and a quiet social hour will follow.

At eleven o'clock a Watch Night service will begin in the church auditorium. A beautiful and inspiring candle-light service is being planned so that all may go forth into the unexplored New Year guided by the Light of Truth, the Light of Joy, the Light of Good Will, the Light of Peace, the Light of Faith, the Light of Hope and the Light of Love.

Those who anticipate attending the Watch Night service are cordially invited to come to the church at ten o'clock and enjoy the social hour with the young people.

Why not begin the New Year right? Many people like to begin it wrong—by indulging in some harmful dissipation. Begin the year with the devil and the devil will probably take possession of all of it. Begin the year with God and He will bless you with happiness and prosperity all the way through the coming twelve months.

Dr. Legge's Home In Baltimore Damaged by Fire

Three dogs were burned to death and furniture from 150 to 200 years old was damaged Monday night in a two-alarm fire at the home of Dr. John E. Legge, Baltimore, formerly of Oakland. No one was home at the time of the fire.

The fire was discovered by James A. Gary, Jr., who, while putting his car in a garage behind the Legge residence, noticed smoke coming from the cellar windows. Mr. Gary telephoned the fire department and firemen turned in an alarm on arriving. Later a second alarm was turned in when flames burst out on the third floor.

Dr. Legge was at the Maryland General Hospital undergoing a slight operation on his neck. By the time he had been notified and arrived the fire was under control.

Super-Service at the Oakland Postoffice.

Few, if any, postoffices in the entire country rendered the public service as did the Oakland office last Sunday when the regular letter and parcel post delivery was made by the carriers and the delivery window of the parcel post section was kept open practically all day, thus affording the patrons of the office a service twenty-four hours in advance of the usual week-beginning schedule. Letters and parcels were delivered at the week-day hours on Sunday morning, which was quite a convenience and was appreciated by the patrons of the office. The policy of Postmaster Ravenscroft and his helpers is to give the best service possible and this standard he strives to maintain at all times.

MISS CECELIA HART AND J. M. STANTON ARE CALLED

Death Visits Two Families In Oakland And Takes One Member From Each

Funeral services for Miss Mary Cecelia Hart, daughter of the late John W., and Mrs. Anna Hart, were conducted Monday morning at nine o'clock at St. Peter's Catholic church, with a requiem high mass celebrated by the Rev. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

Miss Hart died at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, early Saturday morning, following an illness of more than four years duration. She was a graduate of Oakland High school, class of 1917, and of Mt. St. Agnes college, Washington, D. C. ### JEREMIAH M. STANTON

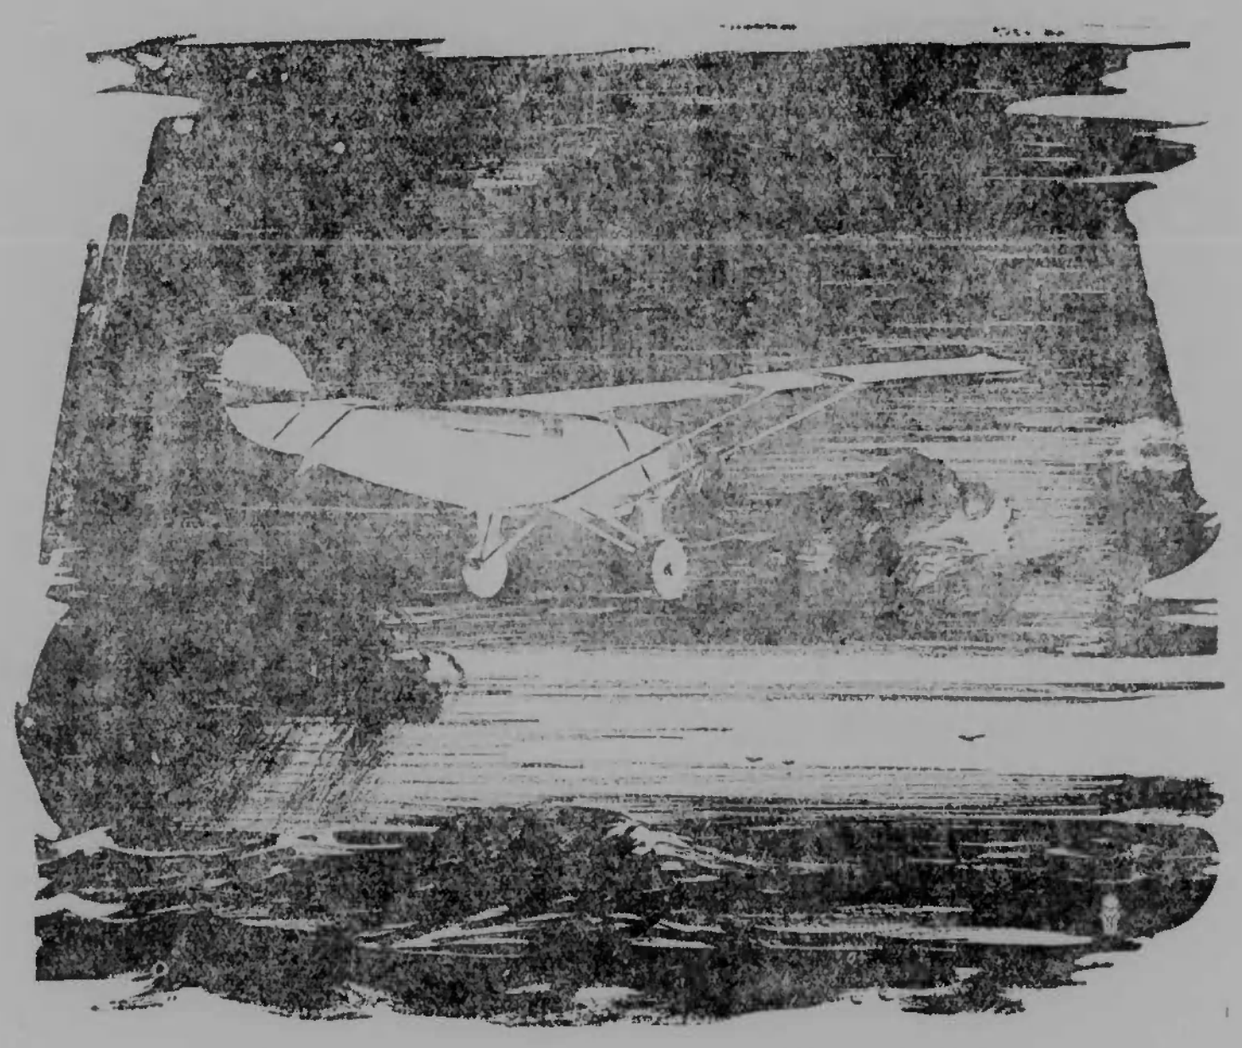
Jeremiah M. Stanton, aged 51, died at his home in Oakland yesterday evening at seven o'clock following an illness of three weeks of inflammatory rheumatism and a heart attack, the latter being the immediate cause of his death, the announcement of which was keenly felt by a legion of friends in Oakland.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, Rev. Fr. Wm. J. McVeigh, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. Fr. Thomas J. Stanton, of Baltimore, a brother of the deceased. Interment will be made in the local Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Stanton, the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stanton, was born at Deer Park, May 16, 1875, and came with his parents to Oakland shortly afterward where they continued to reside until their deaths a number of years ago. He was married twenty-seven years ago to Miss Mary Barlow, of Mannington, W. Va., his brother, Rev. Fr. Stanton, then serving as pastor of the Lonaconing Catholic church, performing the ceremony. He is survived by Mrs. Stanton and the following children: Sister Mary Jarlath, South Bend, Ind.; Joseph Stanton, Oakland; Sister Jane Frances, St. Mary's of the Woods, Ind.; Robert Stanton, Sarah Catherine and Margaret, all of Oakland. He is also survived by two brothers, Rev. Thomas J. Stanton, Baltimore, and Mr. John W. Stanton, of Chicago, Ill., and by two sisters, Miss Nellie Stanton, of Oakland, and Sister Paula, of the Leper Colony, Carmel, La.

Mr. Stanton during his lifetime was active in civic affairs in Oakland, being at one time president of the Board of Trustees of the local grammar school; president of the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Garrett county; president of the Town Council at the time of the installation of the water works system, and served as policeman for a number of years.



In addition to being a consistent member of the Catholic church in Oakland he was also a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name Society.

He had a pleasing personality and had a host of friends in Oakland and indeed throughout the county.

In recent years he was engaged in the drayage and taxi cab business with offices on Liberty street.

In the Orphans' Court on Tuesday morning the wills of the late John O. Thayer, with A. G. Thayer as executor, and that of Michael Canty, with A. T. Matthews as executor, were probated and the executors qualified.

Lesson for December 29

FELLOWSHIP THROUGH WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Neh. 8:1-12; Micah 4:1, 2; Ps. 122:1-9; Heb. 10:22-25.

GOLDEN TEXT—As his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshiping God Together.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Worshiping God Together.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Real Part in Worship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Common Worship and the Community Spirit.

I. The Place of the Bible in Worship (Neh. 9:1-12).

1. The reading of God's word (vv. 1-3).

(1) The eager assembly (v. 1). The people gathered themselves together and requested Ezra to bring the book of the law. God had touched their hearts, creating within them a yearning for His Word.

(2) It was a representative assembly (v. 2). It was made up of men, women and children. God's Word should be taught to all classes, men, women and children.

(3) An appreciative assembly (v. 3). So eager were they to know God's Word that they did not get tired, although the lesson lasted five or six hours. Their ears were attentive from morning until midday.

2. The attitude of the people toward God's Word (vv. 4-6).

(1) They reverenced it (vv. 4, 5). When Ezra opened the law all the people stood up out of respect for God's Word.

(2) They joined heartily in the prayer (v. 6). As Ezra led them in prayer, they united in saying, Amen, Amen, bowing their faces to the ground.

3. God's Word being interpreted (vv. 7, 8).

(1) Ezra stood up where the people could see him (v. 5).

(2) He read distinctly (v. 8). The manner in which many read the Scriptures greatly discredits them.

(3) He caused the people to understand the reading (v. 8). The supreme business of the minister is to make the Word of God plain to all, old and young.

4. Effect of the application of God's Word upon the life of the people (vv. 9-12).

(1) Conviction of sin (v. 9).

The divine method of convicting men of sin is the application of God's Word in the energy of the Holy Ghost.

(2) Weeping turned into joy (vv. 10-12). Forgiveness follows the recognition and confession of sin.

(3) Their blessings were shared with others (vv. 10-12).

II. Jerusalem the World's Central Place of Worship (Micah 4:1, 2).

1. Its place of supremacy (v. 1).

In the last days, Messiah's kingdom, with Jerusalem as its capital, shall prevail over all kingdoms.

2. The peoples, Jews, shall flow unto it (v. 1). It will be a beautiful sight to see the Jews who have been scattered all over the world come to Jerusalem as a mighty flowing stream.

3. The Gentile nations shall go there to worship (v. 2).

4. The supreme purpose of their going will be to be taught of God, that they may walk in His ways (v. 2).

What a wonderful day when all peoples of the world shall worship together in God's holy temple!

III. The Song of the Worshipers (Ps. 122:1-9).

This psalm is one of the songs sung by the Jews as they made their pilgrimages to Jerusalem to worship at the great festivals. This song embodies the following great ideas:

1. The joy of the worshipers (vv. 1, 2).

The invitation to go up to the house of the Lord to worship stirred within them delightful emotions.

2. Love and admiration for God's house (vv. 3, 4).

We should go to the house of worship because we love the place. Like Jesus, we should regard it as our Father's house.

3. It was the seat of royalty (v. 5).

When Christ's kingdom shall be established in Jerusalem, worshipers will delight to journey there because of their love for Him.

4. Prayer for God's house; prayer for the peace of Jerusalem (vv. 6-9).

It is our duty as well as privilege to pray for Israel. God blesses those who are kindly disposed toward His chosen people (Gen. 12:1-3).

One Way to Help God

There is but one way in which man can ever help God—that is by letting God help him; and there is no way in which His name is more guiltily taken in vain than by calling the abandonment of our own work, the performance of His.—Ruskin

The Book of God and Prayer

Give the Book of God its place in prayer. Prayer is not talking to God simply; it is listening first, then speaking.—S. D. Gordon.

THE PASSING SHOW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

There is considerable uneasiness among the anti-Ritchie forces over the inaction of the McIntosh supporters. They think there should be more of a stir regardless of the fact that the Governor has not yet made formal announcement of his fourth-term candidacy. The opponents of the fourth term hold that the Governor is well known to be an active candidate for renomination and they know that he is pulling every possible string to that end. And so also that he is having Brooke Lee and others pull such strings as he cannot himself effectively pull.

It is urged that McIntosh, if he is to stay in the race, should be stirring around to get support and they are provoked when they see his name in the papers from time to time in connection with fox hunting, especially when no fox is captured. The anti-Ritchie people hold that the fox hunting can well wait, that there will be foxes to chase in the years to come and that what is wanted at this particular time is a vote chaser.

Some Talk of Switch to Gambrill

Almost daily there is to be heard talk of the availability of Representative Gambrill as a candidate against Ritchie to take the place of Senator McIntosh. The argument is that Gambrill would, if given encouragement, plunge in and make a vigorous campaign, and thus demonstrate the justification of the Ritchie fear of the Howard Counties.

Gambrill, it is assured, would have great strength throughout the Fifth Congressional District which he represents, and he would also have strong support in Baltimore City. And it is asserted that the delay of certain of the county elements in giving open support to the McIntosh candidacy is due to the belief that Gambrill or some other new candidate will eventually be chosen. All agree that a vigorous fighter is needed.

Brooke Lee Plagued By Law Suits

Major Brooke Lee, who recently has been acting as a sort of buffer and man Friday for His Excellency, must be a bit put out by law suits. Not long ago, John W. Coffman, editor of the Takoma Journal, sued Lee in a stock transaction in the Circuit Court of Montgomery county, and Judge Peter sitting, has decided the case against Lee and his codefendant, the Silver Spring National Bank, of which Lee is a director.

Coffman was running a weekly paper at Takoma Park when Lee undertook to take control of the newspaper situation in Montgomery in connection with his real estate business and political affairs. He acquired and combined three papers already established, one of them being Coffman's paper at Takoma Park. Payment was made to Coffman partly in cash and partly in stock. Coffman became an employee of the Lee paper but later there was a falling out and Coffman withdrew.

Coffman got a loan of $600 on the stock, in the Silver Spring National Bank and he alleged that the bank did not give notice of the note falling due until the day after it was due. Calling on the bank the day after the note was due, it appears, Coffman found that the stock had been sold by the bank that morning to Lee for $600.

Coffman went to court and the defense was that the stock had been disposed of by public sale according to law in such cases. But the court decided that the sale was neither public nor regular and as a consequence Lee has returned the stock to Coffman on the payment of the $600 and whatever else may have been legally due.

Now on top of this Morris A. Beale, until recently editor of the Montgomery Independent, has sued Lee and his fellow directors in the publication of the Lee organ, the Maryland News, claiming $75,000 as damages for libel. This claim is based on publications in the Maryland News reflecting on Beale, who has since sold his paper to a local syndicate which is running it in opposition to the Lee-Ritchie regime in Montgomery.

Governor Doc His Boston Stunt

The Governor went to Boston and got away with his stunt very well. It was the same old stuff about spotted prohibition. Nothing new. But the Governor got a lot of new publicity among the Bostonese and caused great excitement among his journalistic supporters in Baltimore.

For reasons best known to himself, His Excellency took along with him his Secretary of State, Mr. Winebrener, who pulled off the fourth term dinner at Frederick recently, and Major Wm. P. Lane, of Hagerstown, another ardent fourth termer. A sort of body guard as a result of the objections of some of the drys to the Marlyander's visit. And then the accommodating Wet Blanket sent along two reporters to record all the doings, possibly in the fear that some dry wretch might embarrass His Excellency by throwing a decayed codfish at his head and thus making him a Maryland martyr. But no such thing occurred. The governor merely told the Bostonese that Maryland without a State-wide prohibition law was becoming a sort of second heaven. He might have saved his car fare by sending a copy of his speech by mail and having it published. We Marylanders know it almost by heart as His Excellency doesn't change his text very often.

All this, of course, in the hope of doing two things. One was to brace up the Baltimore City wets for the fourth term, and the other to line up the Boston wets for the Presidential nomination in 1932.

Mayor Broening Has Rather Rough Week

Mayor Broening has had a rather unpleasant week through an accident in the City Hall and a ruction in the City Committee of his party. The committeemen, or some of them, have taken great offense at the nerve displayed by His Honor in naming Covington K. Allen as Commissioner of Street Cleaning without asking the committee's approval. Some members of the committee sought to read a riot act to the Mayor while others, realizing that they would make unhappy spectacles of themselves, counselled the soft pedal. Anyway, there's now a committee of eight members to confer with the Mayor on such matters in the future while Mr. Allen, with feelings not at all akin to a earth tremor, handed the Mayor his resignation to prevent a ruckus. The Mayor had the good sense to tell Mr. Allen to keep his job and he is doing so.

Then along came that cable in the City Hall elevator and let the head of the city administration and others drop, without regard to rank, party or previous condition of servitude. Of the thirteen in the falling car the Mayor was the only one to get a worth while hurt, while one of the papers—the Wet Blanket to be specific—has been saying and saying that Broening's injuries were due to Chief Engineer Good falling on him and former City Solicitor Perlman falling on and adding his weight to Mr. Good. The fact is that Mr. Perlman did not fall on the Mayor nor did he fall on Mr. Good as he was on the opposite side of the lift (or fall).

Some who believe in signs will take the incident as a bad omen for the administration, coming, too, in the same week that a Federal Grand Jury in Washington found an indictment against Republican Representative Zihlman on a charge of being an active member of a corporation engaged in extracting wealth through the mails by unjustifiable methods.

Republicans Quiet About Governorship

There has been a lull in the talk about the Republican candidate for Governor—or possible candidate—and some say that the Mayor has received a perceptible set back. On the other hand there has been more frequent mention of Albert G. Towers as the final choice of the party although Mr. Towers' chances have not been helped by the boosting he has been getting from the Wet Blanket. Many are coming to look upon that journal as a political hoodoo even though so many of the older generation do not see it that way.

What the Republicans need most of all is a candidate with nerve enough to denounce the scheming journal and all its political works. Such a candidate would at once find support throughout the State—the support of citizens who are weary of the domination of the small group that has been in control of the government for such a long period.

So far as we have been able to learn Mr. Towers has not said he wants the nomination nor has he said he would refuse it if offered without a battle.

On the Republican side as a whole the attitude is that they can win with almost any candidate if Ritchie should be the Democratic nominee but that conditions do not favor their winning at all against any other Democrat next year.

Long Distance Telephone Rates Again Reduced

Effective January 1, 1930

ANOTHER reduction in various rates for Long Distance service—the fourth reduction in three years—will go into effect on January 1, 1930. It will involve a saving to Maryland telephone subscribers of about $56,000 a year.

On calls to points approximately 60 to 300 miles distant, the station-to-station day rates will be reduced 10¢ in most cases and 5¢ in the few remaining cases. A partial list of cities to which the rates have been reduced appeared in the pamphlet which was sent to all subscribers with the December, 1929, bills.

In addition to the reduction on station-to-station calls, there will be a reduction in the overtime rates per minute after the first 10 minutes on person-to-person calls. These charges will be reduced about 20% to 30% to practically all points. Also report charges on person-to-person calls to points approximately 100 to 2200 miles distant will be reduced by amounts varying from 5¢ to 40¢.

These reductions are in line with the fundamental policy of the Bell System, which is to provide the best possible telephone service at the least cost to the public.

CHRISTMAS OF 1777 WAS BLEAK IN AMERICA.

One of the bleakest Christmases in American history was that of 1777. Washington and his little army had gone into winter quarters at Valley Forge and the future looked gloomy indeed. Washington's Christmas that year was not a merry one. It is described in interesting detail in the current issue of the National Republic magazine in an article written by Mrs. Edith Irwin Hobart, President General of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, who writes:

"The dinner consisted of this: A little veal, a little mutton, not much, for it is probable that the turkeys, geese and 'fouls' were husbanded for the occasion; a small quantity of potatoes and cabbage and less of turnips; no tea, no coffee, no milk, a small amount of butter perhaps, but no bread, no eggs, no flour; so there were no pies, puddings or dessert. If there was either whiskey or rum (which is doubtful, as none was issued to the troops that day) there was no punch, for sugar was lacking. A minor, though irritating difficulty was the probable lack of sufficient knives, forks and spoons, for Washington had been separated from his bnggage during the Brandywine and Germantown maneuvers and did not obtain it again until the midde of January.

"The prices paid for the food of this Christmas dinner varied considerahly from present-day values. Reckoning the Pennsylvania shilling at about 13 1-3 cents of the present day, which was, probably, well above its purchasing value, mutton and veal cost about 15 cents a pound; potatoes a little over a dollar a bushel; turnips about a dollar and a half a bushel and cabbages 13 1-3 cents each. Butter was a dollar a pound, when obtainahle, and the chickens, which Gibbs always wrote as 'fouls,' were fifty cents each, with the turkeys a dollar and a half and the geese a dollar and a quarter each.

"From historical records we learn that these were the men who sat at the table the afternoon of Christmas Day while the heavy snow drifted down the gloomy little valley and banked in wet, clinging masses 'gainst frame and sill: George Washington, grave of mein and towering in physique even among the stalwarts of the Revolution; on his right the guest of honor, the Marquis de La-Fayette; the Baron de Kalb, major general of the day; Brigadier General John Paterson, of New Jersey; Lieutenant Colonels Thomas Paxton of the Pennsylvania militia and Robert Ballard of the Virginia line, and Brigade Major Simon Learned, of Massachusetts. The aids de camp were Robert Hanson Hnrrison, John Fitzgerald, Alexander Hamilton, Richard Kidder Meade, Peter Presley Thornton, John Laureus and Tench Tilghman; all lieutenant colonels except Tilghman, the volunteer, who was giving his talents and health to the eause of liberty without thought or care for rank or pay. There were two others, acting aides by special appointments, Captain Caleb Gihhs and George Lewis, a lieutenant in the guard and a well-liked nephew of the commander-in-chief. A goodly number! The young coutier from the most brilliant court in Europe, the seasoned and critically sardonic French veteran; an embryo judge of a supreme court, a Secretary of the Treasury and a special ambassador to Europe among the young aides who were learning, as were the others, the greatest lessons of life from the quiet dominant figure at the head of the table. A hundred Valley Forges could not have broken the spirit of American manhood within the candlelight of that board."

SURRENDER TO SOCIALISM?

Sinclair Lewis, author of a number of "best sellers" -and their sale is especinlly good among American-haters generally in Europe—said in an address at a socialist college In New York recently:

"All the other great nations are turning toward socialism—England, Germany, France, even Italy. If this country continues toward its goal of being the greatest capitalistic nation on earth, they will crush her. * * * All my books have said one thing—life in America is inescapably dull. Conversation is dull. People are dull."

It may be, of course, that the density of the American people is demonstrated by the large sale in this country of the Sinclair books. Many authors who contend that the United States is a stupid country decline to escape from its dullness by trekking to less profitahle markets for their wares, on the theory that foreign peoples would be entirely too bright to buy the output with which they seek to befoul the home nest.

But what Lewis says about the enmity which arises in Europe toward the United States because nations there have drifted into socialism and the success of so-called "capitalism" in America is a handicap to their doctrine of the master state and the slave citizen, has real significance in view of the fact that Lewis is in close touch with the radicals of foreign lands.

The Lewis statement means that the United States must go socialist or be attacked and crushed for the refusal by the socialist dictators of Europe, and Lewis failed to mention that at the head of the list of socialist states is Soviet Russia.

However, the American people will scarcely be frightened into the surrender of that birthright of individual freedom which is their most cherished possession hy the threat that the penalty of failing to do so is attack from European socialist powers, even when it comes from so distinguished a socialist propagandist as Sinclair Lewis.

CLUBWOMAN LAUDS NEW EDUCATION

The greatest value of public school education today and its highest promise for the future lie in the fact that its practice, for almost the first time in its history, is based upon a well reasoned, and creative philosophy.

The public schools are no longer merely information factories. They are the coming labaratories for character development. They stress the power to think straight, and to translate that straight thinking into harmonious and helpful action.

They are trying to train the whole child in such a way that a complete human being, renering satisfactorily to the demands of modern life, may he the result.

Individual thinking already is being emphasized by various methods, but in order that national progress may not sink to a dead level of uniformity, the safeguarding of individual differences should be stressed even more than at present, writes Mrs. John D. Sherman, chairman, Department of American Home General Federation of Women's Clubs, who continues as follows:

Supervised study and the socializing of the recitation should be worked out on a more inclusive basis as an aid to straight thinking and co-operative action. Accuracy in observation and statement should be fostered, not only for its mental value, but as well for the sake of its vital results in contracting others.

The enormous possibilities of radio and motion picture ..ducation should be fully realized and acted upon. These aids to teaching are almost enough in themselves to revolutionize the science and nrt of pedagogy.

Home economics in its broadest sense should be recognized as a standard subject and emphasized for both boys and girls.

Much time should be devoted to the idea of home creation, as a magnificent outlet for the best thinking and most esthetic practices for both sexes. The spiritual values of home making in their deepest significance should he made a part of the curriculum.

To quote from a well known educator, Mary C. C. Bradford, "The test of an educated human being is the power to think straight, work hard, play fair and love much."

Anything that will mnke this possible in the lives of the hoys and girls of the next generation will be an improvement in American education.

Some men never hit the mark because they never pull the trigger.

Our present prosperity has resulted more largely from a flow of ideas than from a flow of money.

PUPILS ON INCREASE IN COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Child Population From 5 To 18 Years placed By Survey At 225.000

There were approximately 6.000 more white children of ages from 5 to 18 years enrolled in the county schools during the last school year, as compared with the census taken two years ago, according to a statement issued by the State Department of Education. The census, upon which the statement is based, is taken every two years.

The child population of these ages in the counties, the statement snid, totals 225,000, of whom 183,000 are white and 42.000 Negroes, and figures for each group indicate that approximately 15,000 white and 3,500 Negro children start to school each year in the counties. The census also shows that there are more white boys than girls in every age group.

Compulsory Attendance

"The ages for compulsory school attendance in Maryland counties cover from 7 to 16 years, inclusive," the report continues. "Only children who are physically and mentally handicapped, or those 15 and 16 years old who have graduated from the elementary schools, have a legal excuse for failure to enroll in school. Out of the 6,000 children enumerated in this last census, approximately 3,200 are in the public school and 2,100 in private and parochial schools.

"Of each one hundred white children of ages 7 to 16 years, eighty-three were in public schools, eight in private and parochial schools, and nine were not in any school. Of course, some of the nine not in school were not required by law to be enrolled because too mentally or physically handicapped to attend school or because they were graduates of the elementary schools 15 to 16 years old.

Aids Truant Officers

"One of the outcemes of the census enumeration is the follow-up by attendance officers to bring into school those who were not attending and should have been there.

"Conditions in the counties vary greatly. Talbot, Caroline, Kent, Harford, Worcester and Somerset had over 90 percent in public schools nnd practically no enrollment in private and parochial schools, while St. Mary's county had 49 percent in public schools, 38 percent in private and parochial schools, and 13 percent not in any school. Calvert county had 48 percent in public schools and 15 percent not in any school.

Basis Of Appropriations

"Over $1,250,000 is distributed to the counties and the city of Baltimore annually, in accordance with the census of children of ages 6 to 14 years," the statement adds. "Each county is, therefore, interested in making its enumeration as complete as possible.

"Fifteen of the counties had an increase over the previous enumeration in the number of white children of ages 7 to 16 years, but the following counties showed a decrease: Caroline, Kent, Somerset, Charles, St. Mary's Howerd, Carroll and Harford.

"Baltimore, Allegany, Montgomery, Washington, Frederick, Anne Arundel and Prince George's counties had increases over 300, the maximum being 2,000 in Baltimore county and the minimum 340 in Prince George's.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

By HARRIET SAMUEL.

President Hoover touched the button which lighted the national Christmas tree in Sherman Park on Christmas Eve. Secretary Ray Layman Wilhur gave an address and introduced the President. The United States Marine Band gave a concert nnd carols were sung hy a choir of several hundred children.

Two Christmas trees were lighted in the White House on Christmas Eve, one in the historic East Room and the other in the President's private apartments on the second floor.

The President and Mrs. Hoover have their younger son, Mr. Allen Hoover, with them for Christmas, but their elder son, Mr. Herbert Hoover, Jr., his wife and two small children remained in California for the holidays. Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. Jean Henry Large, with her son and daughter, joined the family party at the White House and old S Street neighbors are being entertained there during the Yule tide season.

Before adjourning for the Christmas recess Congress passed the bill promoting Commander Richnrd Evelyn Byrd to the rank of Rear Admiral on the retired list. After the Senate, where it was introduced by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, had voted affirmatively on the bill, it was sent to the House to be passed amid prolonged applause. The President affixed his signature immediately, giving to the young American explorer a Christmas present of the highest ranking office in the Navy in times of peace. On rare occasions, when through especially brilliant exploits, an officer has been made an Admiral, as in the case of Dewey, the hero of Manila Bay.

Rear Admiral Byrd is only 41 years old, the youngest officer of his rank in the Navy by 17 years. He was retired from active service in 1916 because his athletic activities had caused him a number of injuries culminating in a broken ankle. The Midshipmen's annual in 1912 said of Byrd: "He has already lived a life rich in experiences, and he will lead a life richer still, but he will always give to life more than he asks." Seventeen years after that was written, the Virginian had flown over both Poles and had crossed the Atlantic with an airship's crew, besides making invaluable contributions to science.

An historical work in the Virginia State Library is dedicated to the members of the present generation of the Byrd family, "who have done so much to restore the prestige of the family to its former glory." Rear Admiral Byrd and his brothers, Governor Harry Byrd, of Virginia, and Captain Thomas Byrd, are lineal decendants of Colonel William Byrd, the founder of Richmond, and his wife, Evelyn. Their home, "Westover," near Richmond, is one of Virginia's historic estates.

Citizens of Pennsylvania are planning to erect a fountain in Washington that will be one of the finest in the world, rivalling those of Paris and Rome. If Congress gives its consent to the plan, funds will be raised by popular subscription for the erection of the fountain which will be the contribution of the State of Pennsylvania to the development of the National Capital.

Among the important social events of the week is the dinner which President and Mrs. Hoover will give at the White House this evening for the President-elect of Mexico, Senor Pasqual Oritz Rubio, and Senora de Rubio.

Th. first of the Cabinet dinners for President and Mrs. Hoover was given by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson Monday evening at "Woodley," their home which also at one time or another has been occupied by four Presidents of the United States.

Following the holidays other Cabinet members will entertain the Chief Executive and his wife in the order of precedence based upon the dates when the various executive departments were established.

THAT THORNY ROSE

By D. J. Walsh

PRUDENCE PARKER, small, dark and rather plain, stooped and carefully removed a luscious looking pie from the oven. Turning, she smiled at her companion and in a tone which expressed great satisfaction remarked:

"As my old neighbor Mrs. Peck says, 'That pie will eat well.' Tom's very fond of pie, especially blackberry pie, and this is the first one we've had this season."

"Yes," her companion said as she sniffed the delicious aroma, "but if you had stayed in the city you could have bought really baked blackberry pies this very long while. I can't understand you, Prue." Rose Breen's voice showed slight irritation. "You used to be so crazy about the theater, crowds, bridge parties, clubs. You and Tom had more dates than any other young married couple in our set and now you seem to be contented to settle down in this poky town with only your car to remind you that you ever really lived. It must be deadly dull, especially for Tom, who is so handsome. Now confess, dear, wasn't it chiefly because Tom was so handsome and—well, of course there was Bernice Carrier. Bernice and Tom were such a fine looking couple until you came along, you sly young thing, and married Tom out of hand." Rose's voice contained something deeper than simple inquiry. "And, by the way, I heard just before I left town that Bernice is coming back. Mark my words, mark my words, Tom and Bernice are bound to see each other. It will take more than blackberry pie to keep them apart." With a provoking laugh Rose retired to the back porch to write a letter.

Prue, keeping on with her work, pondered what Rose had just said. Rose had appeared unexpectedly the day before. She explained that she was on her way east and decided to stop over for a day or two. Prue was delighted to see her. The women had known each other for five years. But the acquaintance began at club meetings and parties had never ripened into anything like a fast friendship. Prue's thoughts wandered from Rose to Tom. Her marriage to Tom had been the one bright event in a rather drab girlhood. Tom was big, good natured, popular and, as Rose had said, handsome. During the early days of her married life Prue had thought very little about Tom's looks. As time went on, however she heard more and more often such remarks as "Prue, you plain little thing, how on earth did you get such a good looking husband?' Or after a long and speculative look, "You must watch Tom dear. He is such a handsome man." To be sure, it was said in a jesting way and nearly always provoked laughter. After a time Prue found herself watching. She began to dread meeting strangers. She wondered if they, too, weren't thinking how Tom ever came to marry her. It never occurred to her to come back with 'Tom chose me from all the other girls—it was he who sought me." It all ended by the whole thing getting so on her nerves that her health suffered and plain little Prue only became the plainer.

It was by the advice of the family physician that Prue finally went to the country for a long stay. Tom spent week-ends and holidays with her. Soon he found a position that paid better than his old one.

Was she dull? Prue asked herself the question. How could she be with Junior and little Mary growing into fine, sturdy children. She had her garden, chickens, neighbors, home, and, best of all, the close companionship of Tom. Her eyes turned to the pie. She had arisen at sunrise and stolen out into her garden to pick the berries for the pie, hours before Rose had opened her eyes long enough to become aware that the sun was assuring another wonderful late summer day. Prue thought of the moment when she had paused with pail brimming full of berries to sniff the pungent smoke which was arising from her own kitchen fire. Tom had awakened and missed her and had arisen and started the breakfast fire. Prue had been happy so long that she had unconsciously settled into the comfort of never doubting that her happy time would last forever—until day before yesterday. Rose's coming had somehow brought a change. Already Tom seemed different.

"What do you think?' Junior shouted as he flew up the steps, "Daddy stopped at the schoolhouse and left this note. He said he'd give me a quarter if I'd hurry right home after school and give it to you."

Prue took the note and read it.

"Prue, I'm going away—I'll be back—some day. Tom.'

"Oh, Prue!" Rose cried at her elbow. "Just what you might expect. Tom has gone to meet Bernice—aren't men brutes?" She put her arms about Prue. But somehow Prue evaded the caress. She tucked the note in her pocket and went in. Rose and the children followed. Rose could not find the slightest trace of disturbance in her voice as she said:

"Run along, children, and make ready for dinner. Daddy won't be with us this noon and that means, Junior, you have his piece of pie." To Rose she said with a smile: "That is the rule with my menfolks. When either fails to appear on time to a meal the other gets his dessert."

Two days passed with not a word from Tom. Prue maintained her usual pleasant manner. Her house, her children and guest were taken care of as carefully as ever, only the increasingly dark circles around her eyes gave a hint of what she was suffering.

It was the third evening after Tom's unexpected departure. The children had gone to the movies with some of their friends. Prue and Rose were sitting on the back porch in the moonlight. Rose had had it on her mind all day to speak very plainly to Prue. Why, the woman must be crazy to let her man run away and leave her without making some sort of an effort to either bring him back or at least try to find him—

"Prue," she began, and her voice was low and vibrant with meaning, "what are you intending to do? You must know you can't sit here forever without making some effort to bring Tom to justice. Think of your children, Prue! You must think of your children—" She was interrupted by a cheery voice speaking from inside the house. It was Tom. He had come into the house from the front and finding no one there, and hearing voices had wandered onto the back porch.

"Why must Prue think of her children?" he shouted. "Good heavens! They're the only thing she ever does think of except her home and me and a million other things. How's everybody?" And coming out on the porch he threw himself upon the steps at his wife's feet, took up her hand and kissed it.

Prue couldn't speak. But Rose said sarcastically:

"I guess Prue had been thinking a good deal about Bernice for the past few days—

"Bernice who?" Tom demanded. "Anyone been trying to put something over on you, Prue?' His voice was belligerent.

"Now don't play innocent, Tom," Rose said, as Prue still remained silent. "I meant of course Bernice Carrier—"

"If she's been thinking about Bernice Carrier I don't wonder," said Tom. "If I'd heard about her earlier I'd have thought about her, too. A man was telling me on the train coming out tonight. It's all in the evening papers. You know, she and her first husband parted. Some jealous old scandal-monger made trouble, I guess. Bernice got a divorce and has just married again. She and her husband were on their honeymoon and something happened to their car. They went over to the bank. They never got near here at all. Gosh, I'm a tired man. I've done more figuring the last few days than ever before in my life. John Hitt dropped in at the office unexpectedly and carried me off in his car. He wanted me to clear up a little question of survey that I knew about when I worked for him. He wouldn't even let me have time to come home for a clean collar. So I stopped at the school and left a note with Junior. Tomorrow we have a telephone put in so I can call you up if such a thing happens again. But I knew, Prue, you'd understand. I don't suppose there happens to be a pie in the cupboard, does there?"

"Yes," Prue's voice had a happy little ring. "There's a blackberry pie, Tom. I've baked a fresh one every day since you went away."

"Good old girl'" Tom jumped to his feet and bounded whistling into the house.

Next morning at the breakfast table Rose announced that important and pressing business made her immediate departure necessary. An hour later she was gone.

Moral: Don't Be in Hurry to Judge Other Fellow

The porter comes through the car and shouts "All windows down for the tunnel!" So you reach over and put down your window and you look around and other people are putting down their windows. At last all the windows are down except the one in front of you.

The man sitting in that seat acts as if he didn't hear. Maybe he's deaf. Or maybe he's just one of those hard-headed people who never do what they are told. Anyway, it will be very disagreeable sitting where you are with that window open and the smoke coming in. If one window is open, all of them may as well be open.

Why doesn't the idiot put his window down? He hasn't got a right to keep it up. The porter or somebody ought to make him put it down, but nobody seems to notice. There is always one person like that who spoils things. Nothing is too bad for a man who doesn't put a window down when you are going through a tunnel. There certainly are a lot of disagreeable people in this world.

Perhaps you ought to touch him on the back and say, "Hey, put down that window!" But he might get angry and say something back and cause an altercation, which would be unpleasant. You can see from the back of his head that he is mean and selfish. No use getting mixed up with a man like that. Serve him right if the smoke from the tunnel choked him. But he won't suffer as much as the people behind him. If this were a boat, he would rock it.

You would like to give people like that a piece of your mind. That's the trouble with things in this country. Everyone imagines he can do what he pleases regardless of the other fellow.

And here is the tunnel. Confound him! But no, he's putting down the window. He's got it down. Perhaps he isn't so bad, after all. Oh, well!—Baltimore Sun.

The Hour of Danger

By DUFORD JENNE

(Copyright.)

AS BARRON waited near his rural free delivery mail box at the end of the lane, he mused on the odd turn of events that had happened during the week. He had taken the old house back among the hills in order to work out in peace some of the problems in the book he was writing.

It was a lonely place but suited him. Then he had made the discovery that his mail man was a brown-faced, rosy-cheeked girl who had ridden into his heart.

The steady sound of hoofs broke into his reverie. He looked down the road. She was coming.

As she rode up, extended his package, he caught one of the reins.

"You mustn't delay the United States mail, Mr. Evans," she said, smiling.

"Why the mister?" he asked. "Here I am, way up in a wilderness, and I need a little friendship. And here you are, riding these lonely hills."

"But I am not afraid, Mis—I mean Barron." A bit of color glowed under her brown cheeks.

The suggestion of her independence of him made a little gulf between them, but she seemed to sense it, for she made a little bridge back to him.

"But it is nice to have you stop and talk to me—and think of me," she said, and her eyes were gentle upon him.

She caught up the reins as if a bit in fear of the mood that was upon them.

"Really, I must not stop to gossip. Good-by!" She cantered away, waving back.

He watched her out of sight down the wooded road. Dreaming of her, he went back to work. She had about ten miles of lonely riding. Over the ridge was a cluster of farms, and he supposed he was foolish to fear for her safety. But he loved her, and that fact was enough to make him worry.

The next time she came he caught her hands.

"Hester," he said, "a bunch of rough-looking customers went by, and I don't like to think—"

She leaned toward him from the saddle.

"It is nice to have you think of me," she said gently, "but I am perfectly safe. I rode right by them. You are city-bred, you know, and I am hill-bred—but I like you just the same!" and off she went.

The next afternoon he heard the hoofs down the road, but around the curve came, not the graceful brown figure, but a riderless horse that he blocked off on the narrow road and held. The mail pouches were gone and the bridle had been torn as if it had been ripped by force.

He stood stock still, then went into action. He led the horse to the cottage, tied the broken rein, slipped a blue automatic in his pocket, telephoned over the ridge to a farmhouse, and galloped down the road. He scanned the road as he went, and, finally, the almost impossible hope in his heart that she had fallen off was ended. The spot where he stopped showed footprints of a struggle. He rode on—to tell any listening ears that a rider had gone by—dismounted and hurried back.

He found where a light car had been hidden. He trailed it down the road half hopelessly, but found where it turned into an abandoned road.

In one of his many strolls he had previously explored this road and he knew that it led back to an abandoned farm building. He slipped along swiftly, nervous with a great fear for the safety of the brown girl he loved. Robbery was the motive of those who had attacked her, he thought, but in the security of the lonely region, he feared to think what else might happen to her.

The road opened from the thick young woods into a clearing and the old house was at the upper end. He crept around through the woods, going cautiously. He heard the mutter of voices.

The voices grew louder. Inch by inch he crept to the back window, and slowly peered over the edge of the sill.

Two men, rough of garb, rougher of face, were busy tearing open the last of a pile of mail and packages. Beyond them he saw Hester, ankles and hands tied, a blue bandana handkerchief wadded into her mouth. She saw him, and through the gag a sound came. The men looked at her—then turned.

They stared at the automatic. "Back into that corner!" he ordered. They obeyed, hands up.

He drew himself slowly through the window, went to her, with one hand released her while with the other he covered the two men.

The roar of a car being driven up the old road broke the silence. Barron smiled. His telephone had brought aid and the men had spotted the handkerchief he had tied at the road's entrance. Four men piled in through the open door, took one look, and searched the cowering men.

Barron lifted Hester until she rested against his shoulder. She was trembling.

"I guess I am afraid now," she whispered.

"You won't be after this, for I'm going to keep you with me—if you're willing'"

Her lips told him, without speech, that she was "willing."

JENNINGS

One of the most successful Christmas entertainments ever held by the pupils of Jennings school was that of Thursday, December 19. The principal, Miss Erecelle Giles, and her assistant, Miss Helen Folk, directed the children in their parts.

At the conclusion of the entertainment, Santa Claus arrived and from a very beautiful Christmas tree handed to each child a gift.

The program and those taking part was as follows:

Address, Rev. E. E. Campbell; song, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear"; welcome exercise by the first grade; recitation, "Welcome," Clark Wilburn; song, "The Christmas Story"; recitation, Nevin Warnick; song, "Away in a Manger"; "Christmas in Many Lands," third grade pupils; "Christmas in Holland," Lena Broadwater; song, "Silent Night"; exercise, "Merry Christmas," Betty Wiley and first grade pupils; song, "Up on the Housetop"; recitations, "Borrowed Stockings," Emogene Durst; "A Letter to Santa," Lola Broadwater and Olin Meyers; "Santa's Whiskers," Helen Houck; song; recitations, "If Santa Should Fall," Wilbert Durst; "I Love Santa," Elmer Billmeyer; "The Christmas Tree," Pauline Broadwater; song, "Santa is Coming"; Santa Claus arrives and distributes the gifts.

A very much larger and modern school building, which is greatly appreciated by the Jennings people, was erected here this fall, and this was filled to capacity upon the occasion of the recent entertainment.

MARGIE AND HER BIG ADVENTURE

(C by D J Walsh)

MARGIE PATES bent under the weight of the heavy suitcase. It contained every stitch of clothing she possessed, even to the absurd wrist-warmers that Grandma Nelson had thrust upon her. These wrist-warmers had been an expression of the way the whole neighborhood felt at losing Margie from its midst.

It was a bitter morning upon which the girl was leaving home for the first time in her eighteen years. She had to pick her way along the muddy road. The wind clattered the naked boughs overhead. It seemed a long way to the station.

Round a turn she came upon a car over which a man was working. He lifted a friendly face.

"So you're really going, Margie?" he said. "I never thought you would myself."

"If I'm going to be anything or anybody I've got to get out into the world," Margie replied.

"S'pose that's right, Margie." Mr. Whitcomb studied the offending spark plug in his hand. "Still, this is a pretty good old place to live in. Your friends are here, Margie; don't you forget that. What started you off anyway, Margie?"

"Jean Potter wrote me to come and she'd find me a place to work."

"So that's it! Jean Potter, eh? If I could get this car started I'd take you to the station, Margie, but the thing has balked, bad. If it was a hoss now I'd build a fire under it." Mr. Whitcomb's face puckered with humor, "but a car—" he shook his head.

Margie went on down the road, carrying the heavy suitcase. "I'm a regular bawl baby," she thought. "It was all I could do to keep from crying before Mr. Whitcomb. I hate part'n I'm glad to get from Jean Potter didn't have such a fuss the morning she went and I helped carry her suitcase to the station. She's so all-fired exciting. Anything I wish I were like her."

Truth was, Margie's heart was back in the white house under the tamaracks where she had left her father and mother and her old dog, Zip, and her saddle pony, Buster, and all the dear familiar things that had satisfied her up to this point. But now of a sudden she was restless and discontented. She thought, too, she wanted to get away from Charlie Watson, who had been in love with her since he drew her to school on his sled. Charlie was a dear boy, but if she married him it would just be repeating the quiet, dull, happy life of their parents. No thrills, no high spots, no close calls which leave one so glad to be alive afterward.

Toot—toot—toot! Another car. Margie stepped aside, her cheeks flaming. The mud-incrusted touring car, driven by a brown, good-looking young man stopped beside her.

"I went up to your house after you but you were gone," Charlie said, sternly. "What did you run away like that for? You knew I was coming."

"I didn't mind walking," stammered Margie, caught in her effort to escape another and the hardest parting of all.

"Give me that suitcase. Now you get in here beside me. Be careful of that fender. You don't want to carry any Shinhopple mud away on your pretty new clothes."

Margie sat silent as Charlie drove with a great clattering of chains through the mud.

"You'll never miss us back here, Margie," he said. "You and Jean will have fine times together in town. Sometimes, you know—I've felt I'd like to quit this place and go away myself, just to see what I could do."

"Oh, you couldn't leave here!" Margie said earnestly. "You'd be miserable out of your—your habitat."

"Hahlitat! What about your habitat?" cried Charlie. "You're going, aren't you? With never a look behind!"

"It's different with me," Margie protested. "You're a man. You're earning big money just at what you're doing. You've taken correspondence courses, you've read lots of books on farm economics. You can't help being a success here. But I'm a girl. There's nothing for me—"

"There's marriage," Charlie said softly. Margie turned her head away. "There's love, there's companionship and living life together. Some girls are just made for that alone. You're one of them, Margie."

Margie turned on him a flashing face. Her eyes flashed, but her voice trembled.

"That's what John Norton told Jean when she went away," she said. "And Jean has proved that she was made for something else. Just see how she's succeeded! She's earning $50 a week. And they've made her treasurer of the Zonta, the working girls' club. And—"

"Well, here's the station," sighed Charlie.

He stopped the car. Margie got out. He got out and carried her suitcase to the platform. A train was coming in, the southbound, which waited there for the northbound to pass.

Margie stared mechanically at the train, at the passengers as they were getting off. But she was miserably aware that Charlie saw nothing but her vivid little face under the close-fitting black hat which Jean Potter had sent to her from the city. Presently her eyes were so full of tears that she was blinded. In another instant they would be running down her cheeks. She fumbled for her handkerchief.

"Margie!" A tall girl in a stylish costume, carrying a bag, rushed up to them. "Charlie!"

"Gosh-sakes!" It's Jean!" shouted Charlie.

Margie dabbed at her eyes and saw it was Jean. Dismay shook her.

"What does this mean, Jean Potter?" she demanded. "I'm just starting for the city. I counted on you being there to see me through. And now—"

"It's all right, Margie, dear." Jean said, smiling. "The matron of the Girls' club is expecting you, and two of the girls will be at the station to meet you and make things pleasant for you. You'll get along just as well as if I were there."

"But why aren't you there?" persisted Margie.

Jean blushed. "John telegraphed. He said it was now or never with him. He just put his foot down hard. I—oh, what's the use? I may as well be frank about it to both of you. After all, you're John's friend as well as mine. I can't live without John. Business life is all right, but when a girl has to choose between it and the man that's loved her honest and true for two whole years, the man that will go on loving her to the end of her days, I suppose I sound like a fool," Jean ended lamely.

"You don't, you don't," Charlie said in a thick voice. He turned away. "Get into my car, Jean. I'll take you up to your folks. John didn't know you were coming, or he'd be here by this time."

"I never told a soul," Jean said.

"Good-by, dear," Charlie said. He tried to smile. "Your train's coming. Margie. I'll help you aboard."

The train came in and stopped. Margie [illegible] toward it. Then she turned and looked piteously into the [illegible] face. Charlie was white; his lips were set in a gray line.

"Oh, I can't—I can't—" she sobbed.

Jean clutched wildly when Margie got into the car beside Charlie.

"I'm a quitter; they'll make fun of me, but I don't care," Margie said.

"Money and adventure and lots to see aren't everything," Jean said, patting her shoulder.

"It wasn't that," Margie laughed, unsteadily. "I just remembered that Alice Barton wrote me the other day eyes.

"Don't you believe it, Margie. I'd have waited for you till I was as old as Methuselah," he declared.

Speculation Concerning the Dwellers on Mars

Professor Rene Thevenin, a French scientist, says the Pathfinder Magazine, has been amusing himself by trying to imagine what life on Mars is like, if any. He begins by stating what science knows, or thinks it knows, about physical conditions on that mysterious planet. First, he says, Mars is much smaller than the earth, it is farther from the sun and its axis is more inclined. Mean annual temperature of Mars is about 50 degrees Fahrenheit, as compared with 78 on the earth.

However, Thevenin says in the American Weekly, in consequence of the inclination of its axis and the elongation of its orbit, the extreme variations of temperature are much more pronounced, according to the latitudes and the seasons on Mars.

"The polar regions," this scientist states, "extend much farther over the globe of Mars than do ours. We can judge of their vast proportions by the aspect of their great snowy caps, which are very wide in winter and melt completely during the Martian summer." The summers on Mars are relatively hot and the winters cold. Gravity there is three times less, because of the planet's small size. Mars is also comparatively dry."

There came a moment in the evolution of the planet, he says, when the developing intelligence of its inhabitants faced a great danger. This was when all living creatures found they must struggle against the loss of liquid which their bodies were suffering through the intense dryness of the atmosphere. They may have turned to thick skins or bony hides, like the turtle and alligator, and thus saved themselves at the expense of intelligence. On the other hand they may have had time enough to grow thick, hairy coats to overcome the evaporation of moisture from their bodies. If that happened they probably developed into a super-race in respect to intelligence.

World's Debt to Monks

In the Dark ages, not only were religion and education kept alive in the monasteries, but the sciences were nurtured. Gregor Mendel became famous for his experiments with plants; Monk Guido d'Arreze invented scales and rules for music harmonization; stained glass windows are attributed to a monk; many devices in hand painting and engraving had their origin in monasteries; astronomy and seismology owe much to monks and priests, while spectacles, watches, compasses, automatic devices for stopping trains, radio equipment have been invented or improved upon by these religious recluses.—Washington Star.

Clarence A. Bundlick, connecting company representative of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia with headquarters at Charleston, has been doubly honored in having been awarded the Theodore N. Vail medal for noteworthy public service by the officials of the company, and the President's medal of the National Safety Council.

Mr. Bundlick received these awards for his knowledge of first aid which resulted in saving the life of a man struck by lightning at a swimming beach near Princeton, W. Va., August 5, 1928. Being a graduate of the telephone company's first aid classes, Mr. Bundlick on learning that a guard at the swimming beach had been knocked unconscious, proceeded to resuscitate the stricken man, using the prone pressure method with which he was most familiar. After more than an hour's strenuous work the man was removed to a hospital where he subsequently recovered.

Twenty-four permits were issued during the past week ending Monday at noon, bringing the total for the last month of the year to 53.

Seven licenses were issued on Tuesday and the same number on Saturday of last week. Five licenses issued were marked "don't publish."

SENATOR W. A. GUNTER ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB

cere, we are honest in our resolutions, but before the year has grown to be a good-sized child we find that we have forgotten or we have procrastinated, or we have compromised, or we have deliberately violated our solemn covenants with ourselves and in our shame and despair we throw them all overboard and cry out, 'What's the use?' and so we brand ourselves as failures, as traitors to ourselves, as though we were the only malefactor and delinquent. We recall the words of Johnson that 'Hell is paved with good intentions,' and the words of Malet, 'Good resolutions are a pleasant crop to sow. The seed springs up so readily and the blossoms open so soon with such a brave show, especially at first, but when the time of flowers is passed, what as to the fruit?" We forget the lines from the Chocolate Soldier, 'Resolutions? Yes, we make them, not to keep them but to break them, for we are only poor weak mortals after all.'

"An artist who painted portraits for a living was doing a piece of work in Bristol, England, in the year 1757. A small boy, five years old, looked on with curious interest. The artist, to please the child, said to him: 'My little fellow, I will paint you a picture; what shall it be?' 'Paint me an angel,' said the child with flashing eyes. 'Paint me an angel with wings and a trumpet to sound my name over the earth.' The child was Thomas Chatterton, England's 'marvelous boy poet.' His precocious answer was prophetic of the sad career whose consuming motive was ambition and whose melancholy end was suicide at the age of seventeen.

"Why do these air-castles we construct out of exquisite architectural fabrics of our fancy so soon vanish from our sight? Why are we not permitted to fill them and thrill them with the life and warmth of our being and make them what we would have them to be—realities? Why is it that ambition and realization are so often two parallel lines destined never to meet?

"'My son, if thou will receive my words and hide my commandments with thee; so that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom and apply thine heart to understanding; yea, if thou criest after knowledge and liftest up thy voice for understanding; if thou seekest her as silver and searchest for her as for hid treasures, then thou understand the fear of the Lord and find the knowledge of God.'

"So spoke the sage and king of Israel 3000 years ago. One of the greatest monarchs that ever filled a throne or swayed a scepter. His name belongs to all tongues and over all the earth abides the shadow of his fame. His wealth probably exceeded that of any monarch or millionaire who ever lived before or since. His income was $80,000.00 an hour. As to his intellectual attainments, it is said that all the kings of the earth sought his presence to hear his wisdom. In many respects King Solomon was the most remarkable man that ever lived and his career presents one of the strangest problems of human nature. Beginning life under bright morning skies, dark clouds obscured its noonday splendor. The wisest of men by the special favor of Heaven, he became by choice the greatest of fools. He uttered powerful warnings against the fascinations of strange women and then married or otherwise annexed to his domestic establishment a full one thousand of them. In early life a humble worshiper of Jehovah; in after years he turned apostate, reared altars to the god of the heathens and sacrificed to Moloch.

"And yet, despite the contradictions of his character and the inconsistencies of his course, no man ever uttered wiser words than Solomon concerning the problems of life and the duty of man.

"And so it detracts nothing from the value of our counsel that we ourselves forsake at times our own principles and become backsliders. Some men have lectured on temperance and died of alcoholism. A New England navigator who had charted the dangerous reefs of the Massachusetts coast, wrecked his own vessel on a sunken rock which he himself had described and of which she warned others. A surgeon on one of the Arctic expeditions of the last century earnestly and repeatedly cautioned his fellow-voyagers against the peril of yielding to the almost over-mastering impulse to sleep, but the surgeon himself fell asleep and perished. History and experience abound with appalling contrast of precept and example. The failure of a pilot to follow his own chart or of a preacher to hold his own life up to the level of his own pulpit admonitions in nowise discredits his knowledge or his doctrine, but rather brings out the truth of his words and the tragedy of his failure, and thus enhances the value of the lessons to be drawn from his career. So of the counsels of Solomon: they are like the warning cries of the shipwrecked mariner as he sinks beneath the flood. The whole tenor of his exhortation is that of profound and painful experience.

"And so my friends the thought I desire to leave with you most is that even though the resolutions you may make for 1930 may be broken, don't be discouraged and do not wait until the next new year of 1931 to make them all over again. We should remember that there are still eleven days left in this year and there are three hundred and sixty-five in the new year each of which can be a new start toward our ideal.

"Every succeeding sun-up should be to us a magic song that drowns out the discord of yesterday's failure and sorrow. Let us be grateful for our tomorrows; they are the rainbows of hope that follow the storm clouds in our todays.

"'When you're lost in the wild, and you're scared as a child,
And death looks you bang in the eye,
And you're sore as a boil, it's according to Hoyle
To cock your revolver—and die.
But the Code of a Man says: 'Fight all you can,'
And self-dissolution is barred.
In hunger and woe, oh, it's easy to blow—
It's the hell-served for-breakfast that's hard.

"'You're sick of the game!' Well, now, that's a shame:
You're young and you're brave and you're bright—
'You've had a raw deal!' I know—but don't squeal;
Buck up, do your damndest, and fight.
It's the plugging away that will win you the day,
So don't be a piker, old pard!
Just draw on your grit; it's easy to quit;
It's the keeping-your-chin-up that's hard.

It's easy to cry that you're beaten—and die;
It's easy to crawfish and crawl;
But to fight and to fight when hope's out of sight—
Why that's the best game of them all!
And though you come out of each gruelling bout,
All broken and beaten and scarred,
Just have one more try—it's dead easy to die,
It's the keeping-on-living that's hard.'"

Senator A. D. Naylor, of Oakland, who is a fellow-member in the Maryland Senate with Senator Gunter, was a guest of the club Friday evening.

In addition to the talk made by Mr. Gunter, Mr. Joseph E. Harned paid a tribute to the memeory of the late Dr. Pettis, of Terra Alta Rotary, who was well known and universally liked by the members of the local club, and a letter of condolence to the members of Dr. Pettis's family was directed to be sent them by the president of Oakland Rotary.

MT. LAKE PARK

The many friends of Mrs. Martha E. Whitaker were deeply grieved when word was received here of her death, which occurred last Tuesday at her home in Larchmont, N. Y.

Mrs. Whitaker, some 18 years ago, was a resident of Wheeling, W. Va., where she lived for almost 60 years. While there she was director, organist and solist of the St. Joseph's Catholic choir and up until a few years ago the fullness and sweetness of her soprano voice was considered remarkable for a woman of her advanced years. She was 84 years of age when she died. Since leaving Wheeling Mrs. Whitaker has made her home with her granddaughter, Mrs. Irene Updegraff Brann, wife of Henry A. Brann, Jr., a prominent New York lawyer.

She is survived by four grandchildren, Misses Martha and Ruth Whitaker, of Bloomington, Del.; Porter Whitaker and Mrs. Brann.

The funeral services were conducted in the chapel of the Altmeyer Funeral home, at Wheeling, Friday morning, followed by the solemnization of a requiem high mass at St. Joseph's Cathdral. Interment took place in Mount Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Whiteaker for many years has spent her summers at Mt. Lake Park, where the charm of her personality won for her many friends, who deeply mourn her demise.

Located on rolling land, amid thousands of giant oaks the Park is admirably adapted to outdoor illumination. This week numerous homes have been brightly lighted with candles winking their welcome and good cheer to the passerby. The exterior of homes in Loch Lynn and the Park were beautifully lighted with varicolored lights placed in the trees and shrubbery. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Willison, located on the slope facing the glade, excited the favorable comment to all fortunate enough to observe it. The out door Christmas tree at the Enlow-Utterback home received many enthusiastic comments.

The entertainments at both the U. B. and Baptist churches during Christmas week were well rendered and greatly enjoyed by large audiences.

Loch Lynn enjoyed its first Community Christmas tree, which was placed by the citizens of Loch Lynn on the Odd Fellows' corner. It was brilliantly lighted and was a huge success. A delightful program was rendered, consisting of songs by a selected choir and community singing. The pastor of the U. B. church, Rev. S. A. Jessee, delivered an appropriate address, after which the children were given a treat of candy and fruits. To those whose homes needed cheering, baskets filled with groceries, etc., were distributed.

Mutt Ready is home for the holidays

J. C. Frame is spending the holiday season with his parents.

Carl Lower, U. S. Marines, is a holiday visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Lower.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harvey and child, spent Christmas day with the parents of the former, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Harvey.

Mrs. Cora Bishop, Miss Kathleen Bishop, Miss Nell Walker and Mrs. Margaret Berghaus are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allie Haymond and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame.

Miss Kate O'Donnell, a teacher in one of the Baltimore schools, is visiting her mother in Loch Lynn.

Mr. Elmus Ream, a member of the faculty and basketball coach at Charlott Hall Acadamy, is spending his vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ream.

Edward Loughry, Fairmont, W. Va., is visiting his father, Mrs. Jas. Loughry.

Niles Falkenstine, of the University of Maryland, is home for the Christmas holidays.

The United Brethren Sunday school, instead of treating themselves this Christmas, made a very handsome contribution to the church orphanage at Quincey, Pa., which now has in its care approximately 150 children.

We have a few friends spending the winter with us who are worthy of our attention. The deep snows and severe winter weather have made their homes almost uninhabitable and have cut down their supply of food almost to the minimum. In fact, our observation is that unless the good people of the Park take the matter in hand, they are in danger of starvation. FEED THE BIRDS.

TAKE CARE IN SKINNING OR HANDLING OF RABBITS

Four Cases of Tularemia Have Been Reported This Year

Four cases of tularemia or "rabbit fever" contracted in skinning or handling infected rabbits, have been reported to the State Department of Health, from various sections of the State, and one from Baltimore City, so far this year. Referring to these cases, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department, advised hunters, market men and other food handlers to take special precautions in skinning rabbits and in preparing them for sale, for the table or for any other use, and warned again of the danger of contracting tularemia through handling infected game.

"Rahbit fever, or tularemia—to give the disease its scientific name," Dr. Riley said, "is an infectious disease found in wild rabbits and in other small game. The infection spreads from animal to animal through the bite of the rabbit tick, the wood tick, and through a species of fly. It is contracted by human beings in two ways—through handling the infected animal or through the bite of the infected insect.. The germs are picked up on the hands in skinning rabbits or in preparing them for cooking or for any other uses, and the infection is usually taken up into the system through a break or scratch in the skin. The germs may also be carried by the hands to the eyes or the nose, and the infection may enter through the mucous membrane.

"The disease is usually accompanied by a typhiod-like fever of long, slow convalescence. The attack often starts with a severe chill, and the disease at first is supposed to be grippe. In many cases an ulcer develops at the site of the infection with marked enlargement of the glands that drain the ulcer. The diagnosis may be confirmed by a blood test and should suspected cases occur in the counties of Maryland, the laboratories of the State Department of Health is prepared to make the necessary tests and will do so at the request of the family physician, of the local or the Deputy State Health Officer.

"Tularemia was made reportable in Maryland two years ago. There were eleven cases reported in 1928, 6 in the counties and 5 in Baltimore City, with one death in Baltimore City. One case occurred in a farmer who had run a splinter into his finger while cutting wood, and who a short time afterwards handled rabbits that had been shot nearby. He was taken sick a few days later and was supposed at first to be suffering with grippe. Another case was that of a woman who assisted her husband in skinning rabbits soon after they had been shot. In her case the infection entered through a scratch on the hand. In each instance, laboratory tests proved the presence of tularemia.

"Tularemia occurs principally among wild rabbits. It has not been found in rabbits raised in rabbitries. Thorough cooking of the meat destroys the germ. Thoroughly cooked rabbit is accordingly harmless.
